Tom Blanton issues a directory of the places in town where you can get a little snifter—of ginger pop.

Some years ago when Washington had a Red Light district, and was so wicked it was described by an eminent divine as the "Floor of Hell," the reformers, in a spasm of virtue, went on the warpath and published the names and addresses of all the houses of gilt flame in town. In a week the pamphlet was selling on the New York curb for $2.50, with $3 asked. Moral: Publicity is the life of trade.

Ye who have tears may shed them now,
Both Southern girls and Yankees,
For here's a dreadful thing, I vow,
So pray get out your hankies;
Now weep, ye maids, and tear your hair—
Matilda, Maude and Carrie—
This news is more than you can bear:
Your Lindy's going to marry!

Well, this shock will kill all the romance in America except Miss Morrow's.

So many things he's taking out,
He had not when he came—

And other kinds of game.
In one box is a whacking pup—
Bucephalus is crated;
The pesky job of packing up
Could make no one elated.
Large hampers marked ECONOMY

We still cling to the Constitutional fiction that our Presidents are chosen by electors in the several States, and not by the mob by direct action, and while the institution is a good deal of a vermiform appendix we shall be wise not to remove it by an operation—the time may come when between election day and the time of counting the votes something may arise making it necessary to withhold from the presumably successful candidate at the polls the final coveted degree from the Electoral College.

Lily Langtry, the most beauteous actress who ever floated down F street past The Post building from the old National Theater, is dead at 77. We used to wait evenings for an eyeful, for she was better looking off stage than on. She first dazzled a Washington audience on Monday evening, April 16, 1883, at Ford's Opera House, as Hester Grazebrook in "An Unequal Match," and in those days that little theater was as nifty as the Jersey Lily herself. We can't live forever.

It is rather remarkable that history has relegated James Buchanan to perdition and elevated Abraham Lincoln to the Hall of Fame; yet until Sumter was fired on Lincoln followed the Buchanan policy of doing nothing, because there wasn't anything else to do. We have an idea that Lincoln will stay great, and that Old Buck some day will get a square deal from the historian.

HOOVER STARTS TARIFF STUDIES WITH OWN MEN

Committee He Appointed Year Ago for Inquiry Reaches Miami.

MUCH DATA READY; PURPOSE IN DOUBT

Conferences to Begin Today; Cuts Short Fishing on Western Coast.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 12.—President-elect Hoover returned here today unexpectedly to confer tomorrow with a subcommittee that has been making what is believed to be tantamount to a preliminary tariff study for more than a year.

It is composed of A. W. Shaw, of the A. W. Shaw Co., of Chicago; Edward Eyre Hunt, of the Department of Commerce; Clarence M. Wooley, of the American Radiator Co., and Adolph Miller, of the Federal Reserve Board.

It was explained that this is a subcommittee of a committee of 30 which Mr. Hoover named, and of which he is chairman. It is a continuation, it was explained, of the original unemployment committee created by Mr. Hoover, and is the third phase of the general study of economic conditions in this country.

First there was a committee on the business cycle, then one on the relation of unemployment to Government construction, while the present committee has been dealing with recent economic changes.

No Recommendations Made.

In view of the fact that Mr. Hoover is about to assume the Presidency and an extra session of Congress is in the offing to revise the tariff, particular significance is attached to the findings of the group.

There were indications that the subcommittee is here to confer with Mr. Hoover before formulating its conclusions or making any recommendations.

Mr. Shaw said that no recommendations had been made yet, in fact that the final report had not been prepared. Inasmuch as Mr. Hoover is chairman of the committee it would seem natural that the conclusions be reached in consultation with him.

It is possible, too, in view of the change in Mr. Hoover's status since the appointment of the committee that he may deem it wise to keep the findings for his own information and not make them public. Mr. Shaw said that the committee would "complete its work" about May 1.

Committee In New Light.

It is hardly likely that Mr. Hoover appointed the committee a year ago in the contemplation that he would be President by the time it concluded its work, or that it would submit its findings at the height of tariff hearings by the House ways and means committee.

These things having happened gives the personal committee an entirely new light, but it is believed that their study may be made very helpful to the tariff revisionists, and especially to Mr. Hoover himself, who will, of course, have a word as to what the new tariff bill will be.

Mr. Shaw was awaiting Mr. Hoover upon his return here this afternoon at 1:15 o'clock from his trip to Fort Myers, where he went to felicitate the venerable inventor, Thomas A. Edison.

The manner of Mr. Hoover's hasty return caused considerable speculation. There was a decided change in the weather on West Coast shortly after he took off from the Edison home yesterday afternoon on the houseboat of Jeremiah T. Milbank, jr., treasurer of the Republican national committee.

The President-elect had intended to fish for a couple of days and return

Lindbergh to Wed Anne Morrow, Daughter of U. S. Ambassador

Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, foreground, whose engagement to Col. Charles Lindbergh, center, was announced yesterday by her father, Dwight Morrow, the American Ambassador to Mexico. Mrs. Morrow is seated to Lindbergh's right.

COLONEL AT HAVANA; FLIER SIX HOURS LATE

Anxiety Felt as Lindbergh Delays to Make Survey of Yucatan Coast.

CUBANS CHEER ARRIVAL

Havana, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Camp Columbia Field here at 7:49 p. m. The colonel brought his Sikorsky amphibian plane down on the field where officials of the Pan-American Airways had been anxiously waiting since early afternoon. A survey which he made of the British Honduras and Yucatan Coasts had delayed him nearly six hours after the time when he had been expected to reach Havana.

By a coincidence, the greatest fears for the safety of the aviator during his present round trip flight to the Canal Zone with mails were felt on the very day that United States Ambassador Dwight Morrow announced the engagement of his daughter, Anne Spencer Morrow to the youthful flier.

Lindbergh left Belize at 8:12 a. m. in company with another plane, and had been expected to reach Miami, Fla., the starting point of his air mail tour, late today. It was not until early evening that word was received that he had landed safely on the bay at La Fe an isolated seaport 100 miles west of Havana. He refueled there before continuing on to this city.

The colonel was first sighted over Havana at 7:37 p. m. when he flashed the signal lights on his plane. At the air field the authorities had hastily mobilized flood and search lights which, although not entirely adequate, illuminated it sufficiently for Lindbergh to make a perfect landing. He circled the field three times before choosing the pathway of the greatest light.

Lindbergh was the first to clamber out of the plane, followed by Col. John Hambleton, vice president of the Airways, and Lieut. Christian Schily, United States Marine Corps, who is on leave of absence in order to act as superintendent of the new mail route.

The President-elect had intended to fish for a couple of days and return

American Financier, in Formal Statement, Tells of Engagement.

Wedding Will Be in May or June, in New York or in Mexico.

Mexico City, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, it was learned authoritatively tonight, will be married either in May or June, in Mexico City or New York. The principals still have under consideration the exact time and place.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, soon after the arrival of his wife and daughter from the United States today, formally announced the engagement of Anne to the famous aviator. He declined at that time to give any details of their plans. It is possible that the ambassador and his family will go to New York for a visit in the early spring in which event the wedding might be held at their home in Englewood, N. J. or in New York City, across the Hudson River, otherwise Lindbergh will come to Mexico City, and would undoubtedly fly here.

Anne, like her father and family, is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Ambassador Morrow in Mexico City attends the Union Church, which includes all protestant denominations.

Miss Morrow and Col. Lindbergh have not yet decided what denominational minister will perform the ceremony.

Flown With Lindbergh.

Anne has flown with her finace several times in Mexico and New York. She was a passenger on flights over Mexico City fourteen months ago when Lindbergh spent a fortnight here after his famous good-will flight from Washington to Mexico City. She again flew with him here last November when Lindbergh came to the capital in the course of a hunting trip. Her love of the air is one of the strongest bonds of interest which they have in common.

Miss Anne Spencer Morrow now is at the American embassy here with her parents. The young couple first met when Col. Lindbergh made his famous nonstop flight from Washington to Mexico City, a little more than a year ago. Since that time Col. Lindbergh has been the guest of the Morrow family in Mexico City and at their country home at Cuernavaca.

Miss Morrow is a brunette and a favorite in the diplomatic social circles here. She won two prizes for proficiency in scholarship at Smith College, from which she was graduated last year.

Capital Suspects Romance.

The Mexican capital suspected that a romance was in the making between the colonel, who has been the idol of feminine hearts since he flew to Paris, and Miss Morrow. Rumors to that effect had been printed in local papers last November, but at that time were denied.

Anne and her mother arrived in Mexico City shortly before noon today from Laredo, Tex. They were seventeen hours late because of interruption to traffic caused by the Sunday night bombing of the train of President Portes Gil. The bridge destroyed by the dynamiters has not been replaced and all passengers have to change trains at that point.

Late this afternoon Ambassador Morrow summoned the newspper correspondents and handed them a formal typewritten statement. It read:

"Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow have announced the engagement of their daughter, Anne Spencer Morrow, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

Ambassador Morrow refused absolutely to say anything more. He declined to give any indication of the time or place of the wedding but the capital

DAWES PLAN UPHELD BY YOUNG IN PARLEY

American Raises Issue of Why Change Anything After Hearing German.

VIEW PLEASES FRENCH

Paris, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The chief bone of contention in the reparation question, whether the Dawes plan requires completion or revision and how, was reached in today's session of the "Young committee."

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, who had the floor all day presenting his version of Germany's economic strength, provoked questions from the other delegates as to the rate of taxation in Germany compared with other countries and as to the scale of wages while he prompted the remark by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee, that the working of the Dawes plan seemed to show up so satisfactorily that the question might be posed: "Why is the new committee here?"

The Reichsbank president retorted that it must not be supposed from his presentation of the situation that the Dawes plan was all that could be desired and that he would produce evidence to show why it was not. This evidence, which it is expected will be produced at least in part tomorrow, will doubtless furnish material for one of two immediately succeeding sessions.

Dr. Schacht, in a three-hour talk, explained his view why Germany could not continue paying the yearly amounts that it has hitherto paid. In the course of a ten-minute address Mr. Young is reported as having answered Dr. Schacht: "Thanks for the implied appreciation of the Dawes plan payments."

The question thus raised was felt to show that Mr. Young, although speaking in the most diplomatic terms, appeared prepared to defend the work of the first Dawes committee, on which he played so prominent a part, and the manner in which it has been carried out by S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations.

The impression of several of the delegations was that the United States would oppose any radical change in the letter and spirit of the Dawes plan.

It is understood that when Dr. Schacht resumes his exposition of Germany's viewpoint, he will take occasion to reply to some of Mr. Young's financial arguments.

Dr. Schacht, in today's talk, began with the declaration that Germany can not continue to pay the maximum reparations annuity of 2,500,000,000 marks annually (approximately $600,000,000) and then set out to explain his reasons for this statement. The German delegate refrained from mentioning Mr. Gilbert's recent report, but what he said was interpreted by some as sounding like a studied reply to the findings of the reparations agent.

The questions asked across the table by the different delegates showed that they were not convinced by Dr. Schacht's argument. Some wanted to know why Germany's tax rates were lower than in allied countries while others wanted light on the comparative wage scale before accepting the theory that Germany was in an inferior economic position.

The impression of today's session was particularly favorable in French circles where Mr. Young's remarks were commented upon significantly. The French delegates were most careful to take no part in the discussion, leaving expression of the open difference of opinion to Mr. Young and Dr. Schacht on the working of the Dawes plan.

BLANTON LISTS GRAFT; MORE, SAYS CARAWAY; BRIDE IS PROSECUTOR

Other Trials May Follow Captain's if Evidence Is Developed.

CITY COUNSEL PLANS FOR COMPLETE CASE

Commission Drops Out of Case, Except to Aid in Getting Facts.

PERSONNEL OF BOARD FOR HEARING DEBATED

All Leads to Be Run Down in an Effort to Clear Up Police Situation.

Every avenue of investigation will be followed to its end, and prompt action will be taken against any one else who may become involved in graft or improprieties discovered in the course of the District government's preparation and prosecution of the charges whirling about the head of Police Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, suspended commander of the Second Police Precinct.

Far from contemplating any "white wash" of Burlingame the proceeding against the accused police captain will be pushed to the limit to discover and punish any wrong doing, not only on the part of Burlingame, but on the part of any other person as well.

Determination Made Clear.

The determination of the District government heads to push the matter to the full was made clear in a statement made public by William W. Bride, corporation counsel, a few minutes after the District Commissioners had formally turned over to him yesterday the task of preparing charges against Burlingame and prosecuting those charges before a police trial board still to be named by the Commissioners.

While the Commissioners themselves refrained from public comment, it was made clear that Bride's announcement of the District government's determination to sift every specific charge and punish whoever may be found guilty met with their approval.

New Angles Possible.

It is known that Bride has conferred with officials of the Department of Justice in connection with the charges and that Justice Department agents are at work checking up on various matters, some of which may lead to important disclosures which neither Bride nor other officials would discuss yesterday.

Bride declared that he did not intend to be stampeded into a wild goose chase after ill-founded and anonymous rumors, nor to turn the trial of Burlingame, on whatever grounds he is charged, into a scandalmongering, but that he did intend to do everything in his power, in so far as District law and the lack of funds at the disposal of the Commissioners would permit to discover the true situation.

Commission Steps Down.

With their formal action, turning the preparation of the case over to Bride, the Commissioners stepped out of the picture, for the time being at least, as prosecutors of the charge or the investigation of them.

They feel that they, in the final analysis, must sit as judges on the verdict in the case, and are not willing to be put in the position of prejudging now the charges against Burlingame of limiting the scope of the inquiry nor of forecasting his guilt or innocence in any way.

Bride was closeted with the Commissioners in board session yesterday aft-

Burlingame in Record By Blanton's Address

Twenty-three entries are contained in the "record" of Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, read into the Congressional Record by Representative Blanton, of Texas, in the course of a speech against the captain and police generally on the floor of the House yesterday.

The record shows Burlingame to have been tried once for "gross neglect of duty," and once of "neglect," and that he was fined $10 in each case, the last one being in 1903. Twice he was found not guilty of a violation of the police regulations. In 1921 he was reprimanded and warned for "taking possession of an automobile," and in 1925, while commanding the liquor squad, was reprimanded and warned for going into Maryland in pursuit of alleged bootleggers.

The "record" read by Blanton did not disclose anything about Burlingame's promotions to sergeant, lieutenant and captain, although the date of the last promotion, July 1, 1923, was noted. "No action" was noted behind eleven of the complaints noted by Blanton.

Burlingame Case Is Held Only "An Incident" by Arkansan.

TEXAN SAYS FIFTY ARE PAYING POLICE

Talking on House Floor, He Names Four Places as "Protected."

SENATOR HAS ADDED DETAILS FOR GIBSON

Plans Conference on Data With Chairman; New Movements Soon.

The charges against Police Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, suspended commander of the Second Precinct, comprise but "an incident" in the true behind-the-scenes story of police graft in Washington, it was charged yesterday by Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and Representative Blanton, of Texas.

Blanton, in a speech on the floor of the House, declared that he could "name 60 or more" speak-easies and gambling places which are running wide open in the National Capital under police protection because of graft.

Actually, Blanton gave specific names and addresses of four places in the course of his vitriolic denunciation. He extended his criticism beyond the Police Department to include other branches of the District government and was caustic in his reference to Commissioners Proctor L. Daugherty and Sidney P. Taliaferro.

"Names, dates and places are now in my possession and reliable witnesses will come forth to back up the charges," Caraway declared in support of his charges against the District police and the existence of speak-easies, gambling places and other places in the District.

Rivals Philadelphia, Claim.

The Arkansas senator, author of the Senate amendment to the pending District appropriation bill cutting off Burlingame's salary until he is vindicated of the charges made against him by Mrs. Helen F. Bralock, told reporters that information which he had received and which he intended to disclose would show conditions in Washington rivaling those in graft-ridden Philadelphia.

Caraway said he would not make public the information he had received, which he regarded as "conclusive proof" of police iniquity, he said, until he had conferred with Representative Gibson, chairman of the House District subcommittee charged with investigating District affairs.

If the Gibson committee "can not use" the information the senator said he would turn it over to "some one under whom I can build a fire until there is action."

Representative Blanton told the House that advance information to "lay low" was given to those who paid graft by police raiders.

Names Four Places.

"When the vice squad starts out to make raids upon the fellow who has not bought protection, all of the individuals who have bought police protection are phoned a message about the vice squad being on their way to their neighborhood," Blanton charged.

"When they get this message, they hide all the whisky and stop selling until the excitement is over.

"Go up to 1421 P street northwest, Dutton's buffet," he continued. "He sells whisky seven days per week from 7 a. m. to midnight.

"Then also watch 1429 P street northwest. Stand in front of these two places and watch and you will see they own P street.

"Also watch 1427 P street northwest and see the gambling going on there all day. These two bars do a land-office business. See this for yourself.

MEN BLANTON LISTS ALL DENY CHARGES

Post Reporter Finds Places Denounced in House Quiet and Orderly.

ONE IN WRONG PRECINCT

Surrounded by a few quiet and sympathetic customers, proprietors of the four places named by Representative Blanton on the floor of the House yesterday as "full-fledged" bars and gambling places operated under police protection, last night forlornly denied the Texan's charges.

Any one who took advantage of Blanton's invitation to "see for themselves" saw little of interest, and nothing illegal last night, and met proprietors who coupled their denials with the question, "What's the use? What can you do to Blanton?"

A reporter for The Washington Post, visiting Dutton's Buffet, at 1421 P street northwest, where, Blanton said, whisky could be bought from 7 o'clock in the morning until midnight, saw nothing illegal. When the reporter entered the buffet about 9 o'clock last night the only activity he noticed was that of the proprietor selling several cigars to a middle-aged customer, and two young men eating a dinner while seated at a table in the rear of the establishment.

When asked what he thought about the Texan's charges, the proprietor shrugged his shoulders and said:

"What's the use of saying anything about any of Blanton's charges. He can't be held responsible for what he says on the floor of the House."

Stopping next at a little cigar store at 1427 P street, where Blanton charged gaming was permitted, the reporter saw the proprietor, a small, middle-aged man standing in front of his store, which he had just closed for the night.

"In the name of humanity you can deny Blanton's charges," the proprietor said. "There hasn't been any gambling going on here for more than a year to my knowledge."

Stopping next door in the soft-drink and near-beer place at 1429 P street, the reporter discovered the place empty of trade. A young man who said he was in charge, denied that intoxicants

Huntress Who Shot Spouse Is Held Sane by Doctors

Mrs. E. E. D. Wilson Had Been Under Observation at Bellevue Hospital, New York, Since January 30; Judge Acted on Letters He Received.

New York, Feb. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Esther Evans De Forest Wilson, big game hunter, and society woman of New York and Washington, who was convicted by a jury in general sessions court of second degree assault for the shooting of her husband, Dallett H. Wilson, prominent lawyer, has been found sane by physicians who have had her under constant observation in the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital since January 30, they disclosed today. Relatives have been notified that Mrs. Wilson would be released Thursday with a clear record. However, since she must come up before Judge Nott, who has been ill for several weeks, and who will not return to court before Monday, for sentence, it is thought that she will remain in Bellevue until then.

Mrs. Wilson was found guilty on January 24. It came as a complete surprise when a week later she was removed to Bellevue. Judge Nott explained that he had decided to have Mrs. Wilson's sanity tested because of many letters he had received expressing belief she had not been normal mentally for several years.

In some of the letters it was pointed out that Mrs. Wilson had been in a sanitarium for several months and that her mother had died in a sanitarium. Also that her actions in prison were unusual and erratic.

Investigation revealed that Mrs. Wilson had been confined in a sanitarium with neuritis, and had been discharged after two months, entirely cured. Doctors had at the time said her illness was due to nervousness. Before leaving for Bellevue Mrs. Wilson expressed no surprise at the sudden change in plans. She told reporters that she knew her husband had wanted her put under observation for some time.

Story of Lincoln's Wedding Is Told by Capital Woman

Mrs. H. D. Ames, Granddaughter of Mary Todd's Aunt, Declares Bride Said "Gingerbread Is Good Enough for Plebeians," After Reproach for Selecting Him.

On the morning Mary Todd announced to her household in Springfield, Ill., that she intended to marry Abraham Lincoln that very night, her aunt, Mrs. Ninian Edwards, went to the young woman's room to discuss such plans as could be made in the few hours left to them.

The attentions of Lincoln, the raw, uncultured lawyer, to the "elegant" Miss Todd were not applauded by the girl's family and, despite that he had been "courting" Mary for a year, the young woman's announcement surprised her aunt's household. Mary, determined at last to have her way, retired to her room on making the announcement, and her aunt found her in tears.

Pointing out that arrangements would have to be made at once, Mrs. Edwards asked Mary Todd to express any wishes she had.

"It makes no difference, madam," Mary Todd haughtily answered "Ginger bread is good enough for plebians."

Mrs. Edwards was the aunt of a Washington woman, Mrs. H. D. Ames, of 1860 Columbia road northwest, and Mary Todd's expression on her wedding day has been a meaningful expression in the family ever since. On the occasion of the 120th anniversary of the birth of Lincoln, Mrs. Ames, who would not object now to being described as a charming old lady, recounted incidents in which her great-grandmother, Mrs. Jane Dey Dodge, figured. Mrs. Dodge was Lincoln's confidante, Mrs. Ames said.

Mrs. Dodge, a member of one of the East's prominent families, moved to Springfield, Ill., to be near her daughter, who was Mrs. Benjamin Edwards, wife of a prominent lawyer. Benjamin Edward's brother married Mary Todd's sister and Mary had come to her sister's home from Kentucky to visit streets northwest. He pays the First Precinct $15 every morning the minute he opens the door for business and $15 more when he closes.

"I could mention fifty more places if necessary.

"When you investigate the P street places watch how many police go into these two places, and get their drinks, and their lunch at Duttons.

"Are we going to sit still, we representatives of the people, and allow this to go on in the Nation's Capital?"

Representative Schafer, Republican, of Wisconsin, interrupted Blanton to inquire whether Blanton had not approved Burlingame's name as a member of the police trial board which tried former Policeman Orville Staples, for whom Blanton acted as counsel.

"Oh," Blanton answered, "Capt. Burlingame was handpicked."

"That is not the question," Schafer insisted. "It will be borne out by the records of the trial board."

Interrupted by Schafer.

"I do not yield for that; just be seated," Blanton told Schafer amid laughter from members of the House.

Schafer sought to read into the record facts about the Staples trial board, but Blanton refused to yield, "even for one more question," and Schafer, perforce had to sit down, whereupon Blanton went on to say that Burlingame "was not a member of the trial board and neither was the other captain that was sent there."

"They were hand-picked and sent down there by headquarters to convict this young fellow, just like the new board that will try Capt. Burlingame will be hand-picked."

Blanton viciously attacked Commissioners Taliaferro and Dougherty, declaring that a law partner of Taliaferro was one of the attorneys who defended former District Commissioner Fenning.

"Why these two Commissioners, Dougherty and Taliaferro, were appointed in the place of Commissioners Rudolph and Fenning," Blanton said.

"That is the reason we have an 8-cent car fare here in the District of Columbia, with 65,000 little school children paying 8-cent car fare every day with the holders of street railway stocks making fortunes, with the stock having gone up 300 and 400 and even 500 per cent within the last few years; it is because of this association, and this is the reason that you can not get anything down there in the District Building."

Paid $500 Weekly, Charge.

Blanton named Frank McCormick, Sam Beard, Eddie Killeen and Vic Sipos as four persons from whom, he charged specifically, Burlingame had received graft. The Texan said McCormick paid $500 a week.

He said he had furnished specific information to the District Commissioners about conditions at least ten months ago but that nothing definite had been done to develop the facts or punish those guilty. Burlingame has from $300,000 to $500,000 in various banks, Blanton said.

Both Blanton and Caraway said they have been the recipients of many letters and telephone calls and telegrams from persons congratulating them on their courage for their attacks on the police. Several persons have gone to each and offered information about graft and vice, they said.

One of these was a disgruntled bartender who was discharged some time ago, who wished to tell of the graft his former employer paid to sell liquor in violation of the law.

Caraway Withholds Details.

Caraway said he would not accept any charges made anonymously, but he refused to go into detail about what information he now has until after he has conferred with Gibson. Gibson said he would be glad to see the senator at any time.

That neither Caraway nor Blanton are finished with speechmaking about the situation they say exists in Washington was indicated by both yesterday.

Blanton served notice that he intends to speak in favor of Caraway's amendment to the District appropriation bill cutting off Burlingame's salary when the measure comes before the House again.

Blanton's attacks have the support of many members of the House, who insisted yesterday that he be given opportunity to speak, and Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader, has declared his purpose not to shut off debate on the District bill.

COOLIDGE MAY SIGN CRUISER BILL TODAY

Budget Bureau Reports $45,000,000 Needed for Two Years' Program.

FIRST OUTLAY IS SMALL

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Coolidge will sign the cruiser bill today or tomorrow, according to indications yesterday at the White House. The Bureau of the Budget has reported to the President that $45,000,000 or $50,000,000 will be required to put the building program into operation during the fiscal years ending June 30 next and June 30, 1930.

But the expenditure during the present fiscal year would be small, it was explained. Whether the estimate of $12,750,000 for this fiscal year remains correct is not stated, but it was said at the White House that the bulk of the funds would be needed during the following year.

The same estimates for expenditure would apply in case it became necessary for the Congress to pass the bill over the President's veto, but the suggestion of a possible veto has dissipated at the Capitol, even in advance of the latest White House indications.

After all, the cruiser building program represents a recommendation made by the President to the Congress in his last message, and it also represents an appeal to the country which Mr. Coolidge made in his memorable Armistice Day speech.

Though the precise method which the President recommended to the Congress was not followed when the Senate retained the time limit clause in the bill, the substance of a major Coolidge policy is embodied in the legislation even though the form has been altered.

Silent on Capper Resolution.

Apparently, the Capper resolution to put teeth in the Kellogg antiwar treaty by making America a world umpire to signal out aggressor nations and punish them by embargo and economic sanctions, has not aroused the immediate interest of Mr. Coolidge. It was said in response to inquiry that the President had not read the resolution.

But from comments about it which the President has read, it was stated that the resolution goes farther than Mr. Coolidge believes it wise to go.

The resolution has already ceased to be an issue at this session and will remain pigeon-holed until December next at any event and perhaps longer. Mr. Capper has no intention of pressing it now. As suspected, the idea was conveyed to him in New York some time ago and is therefore not original with the senator from Kansas who has frankly stated the circumstances in connection with the proposal.

It appears that other senators have been asked to sponsor the same resolution in somewhat different wording.

Excepting Prof. James T. Shotwell, of Columbia University, New York, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and a group of League of Nations advocates, there has been no support whatever for the plan Opposed American Chairman.

President Coolidge had hoped that the Paris reparations conference would not name an American as chairman of the commission of experts. The President furthermore had informed Mr. Young of this hope. But the situation developed in such fashion as to apparently make the choice of Mr. Young desired by the commission and Mr. Coolidge, under these circumstances, feels there can be no objection interposed.

In other words, the reparation experts are assuming the responsibility of making their own arrangements and the United States Government is not called upon to make recommendations of its own in the matter of selecting a chairman.

President Coolidge expects to leave for Northampton immediately after the inaugural ceremonies on March 4. The White House packing-up time already has arrived and it was said yesterday that Mr. Coolidge is having more trouble getting out of the White House than he had in getting in. A large accumulation of belongings connected with the President's term of office have to be packed and 150 boxes are ready for shipment.

Bookplates for Charity.

Despite the last-minute rush of work, the President has found time to assume leadership in aid of a charity in which both the President and Mrs. Coolidge are personally interested. It concerns the raising of a $2,000,000 fund for Clark School, where Mrs. Coolidge once taught the deaf and dumb at Northampton. To raise the additional $400,000 the President will authorize the sending of a White House book plate to any person who contributes $5 to the fund.

The fact that Mr Coolidge has not read the Capper resolution does not mean that the idea of using an embargo on war supplies has not heretofore been considered by the Executive.

The President already has the power by law to place an embargo on arms so far as the Western Hemisphere is concerned and with respect to countries where the United States has extraterritorial jurisdiction.

Possible use of the embargo in furtherance of peace contains a principle which to some extent has the President's sympathy. But he would carefully investigate the details of any such plan before committing himself, it was explained.

Where a neutral nation places an embargo on arms to both belligerents, there is some justification for consideration of this proposition. Nothing done by the neutral nation in such circumstances involves the taking of sides against one power or group of powers.

Embargo Resolution One-Sided.

In the Capper resolution the United States would place an embargo on one belligerent against the other, and thereby place America in the position of aiding one nation against the other as effectively as if war alliance on limited terms were entered into by the United States with one of the belligerents against the other.

Commenting yesterday on the resolution, Senator Edge, of New Jersey, said:

"The Capper resolution strikes me as a proposal that would quite likely put the United States into war while trying to avert it.

"In the event of hostilities between nations, it appears to be the intent of the resolution to hold the President responsible for a decision as to which nation is the aggressor. Under the broad interpretation given by all proponents of the multilateral treaty in such a contingency, self-defense will provide a multitude of excuses. I cannot imagine a surer method of creating an international misunderstanding than to have the United States place responsibility for war.

"The adoption of such a resolution is an invitation to put the United States in the very middle of every international broil in any part of the world. Even the League of Nations, where we were asked to participate with other nations, never suggested that we alone become the war umpire of the world, as seems to be provided by the Capper proposal.

BRIDE TO GET ALL EVIDENCE IN CHARGES AGAINST POLICE

ernoon after the Commissioners returned from the Capitol, where they had gone in the morning on other matters than the Burlingame case.

Told of Blanton Attack.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, also was present at the board session for a few minutes, but said that he had merely called on the meeting to inform the Commissioners of a newspaper report he had received that Representative Blanton was on the floor of the House in the midst of another attack on the District government. The Commissioners received the news, the police chief said afterwards, with some signs of regret, but with no indication of excited interest.

The question of what charges specifically are to be preferred against the suspended captain still is to be determined. Corporation Counsel Bride declared emphatically that he did not intend to be "rushed headlong" into action.

Neither, Bride said, is it intended that the whole matter will be rushed forward at a speed which would make for an inadequate prosecution and permit Burlingame to get out from under thereby.

Trial Board in Doubt.

Both Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty and Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro declared that they had not determined on the trial board. That is a matter, they said, which does not demand immediate decision and must be considered with the greatest care from many angles and for many reasons.

The name of E. C. Graham, former president of the Board of Education and a member of the small group of business men who are credited with being the dominating influence in the Republican organization of the District, was mentioned as a possible member of the trial board which will be named by the Commissioners.

Graham, however, told reporters informally that he would be unable to accept if he were appointed, and that is thought to end that.

Former Justice A. A. Hoehling, of the District Supreme Court, also was suggested as a possible appointee, but the judge refused to comment, saying that he had not received any intimation of such action by the Commissioners.

Support for Hoehling.

Judge Hoehling's appointment, it is known, would have much stronger support from several influential District officials than would the appointment of some others whose names were informally suggested by observers.

His judicial standing, it is felt would do much to assure the people of the District and members of Congress that there was being made a sincere effort to remedy whatever conditions which may be found bad

Former Assistant District Attorney Rush Holland was another who was suggested as a possible member of the board, of which there was some suggestion that Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, should be chairman. But none of these suggestions were made with sufficient authority to dignify them with the force of a prediction.

Another suggestion which has been made is that each of the Federation of Citizens' Associations and other civic bodies be invited to nominate three candidates from whom the commissioners may make their selection.

Payment Question Debated.

The question of payment for the board members, if they are appointed from outside the District service, is under consideration, not especially because those appointees are expected to demand large payments for their services but on the ground that some pay may be necessary to give the board legal status. The law in that case gives the commissioners broad discretionary powers to appoint whoever they deem best.

What the commissioners eventually will do about appointment of the board yet is to be decided. Referring to the proposed outside board one official yesterday said that what may seem a good thing at first glance may not prove so good after it has been carefully studied.

Another factor which will influence the commissioners will be the personnel available from whom they may select. They will not name a board of men outside the District simply for the sake of doing so but only if they are able to get the services of men whom they consider outstanding and in the confidence of the residents of the District.

Many Will Be Called.

When Burlingame is brought to trial he probably will hear the testimony of all of the individuals who have been named in the House and Senate as having directly or indirectly paid him graft. While this course will be followed by Bride it is not expected by observers to develop very much in the way of sensational disclosures, for even if the men mentioned have paid graft to Burlingame or others they are not expected by outside observers to get on the witness stand and admit doing so.

Bride said yesterday that it probably will be several days and may be as long as two weeks before he has completed his investigation and studied available evidence to see what he may be able to prove against Burlingame.

were sold there, and repeated what had been said by Dutton, convinced that nothing could be done in his defense so long as Blanton continued his public indictment of commercial establishments under the protection of Congressional immunity.

Ten minutes later the reporter walked into the soft-drink place on G street between Sixth and Seventh streets northwest, where Blanton said, police were paid $30 a day for protection. No one was behind the small bar in the front of the place.

In the rear, seated at a small table, was a young man who said he was in charge. He was playing cards with several friends. There was hardly a sound to be heard.

Informed that Hugh Lawler, the proprietor was out, the reporter asked of the young man in charge whether he had any comment to offer about the Texan's charges.

"I have nothing to say. You'll have to see Mr. Lawler for any statement," the reporter was told.

Blanton, in his charges on the floor of the House yesterday, said Lawler's soft-drink establishment was located in the First Precinct. Detectives at police headquarters, last night, however, pointed out that the place was located within the boundaries of the Sixth Precinct.

1930 Charity Drive Committee Named

Will Nominate Officers to Direct the Campaign for D. C. Chest.

Arthur C. Moses, William Knowles Cooper, Arthur May, Rabbi William Rosenblum and Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson were named as a nominating committee to select candidates for officers of the Community Chest for next year at a meeting of the executive committee of the chest, held yesterday afternoon at the American Security & Trust Co. The members of the nominating committee were named upon the recommendation of Frederic A. Delano, president of the chest.

Plans for a great annual meeting, to be held at Keith's Theater on the night of March 20, were also discussed. At this meeting there will be brief reports by the president and director and one-minute "chestograms" by representatives of the various agencies.

Yesterday's meeting was featured by the report of the director of the chest, Elwood Street, who explained that the officials have every assurance that the pledges actually received will reach a total of $1,410,000, as reported at the closing meeting of the campaign, as contributions which have come in since the close of the campaign will offset any shrinkage that may result from auditing.

He stated further that a meeting of all captains, workers, division chairmen and division secretaries of the metropolitan unit will be held at the Burlington Hotel, February 19, to obtain their suggestions as to next year's campaign.

House Gets Legislative Bill; Total $18,645,052

Funds for development projects adjacent to the Capitol building are included in the legislative appropriation bill reported yesterday to the House.

The bill carries appropriations for the Senate, House, Capitol police, the joint committee on printing, the office of legislative counsel, the Architect of the Capitol, the Botanic Garden, the Library of Congress and the Government Printing Office. The bill recommends total appropriations of $18,645,052, which is $177,468 less than the budget estimate and $891,978 more than the current appropriations.

Laborite Introduces His Wife in Commons

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Hugh Dalton, Labor member for Peekham, today introduced his wife, Mrs. Florence Hugh Dalton, to the House of Commons. She won the recent by-election in Bishop Auckland, Durham, and like her husband, is a member of the Labor party.

There was loud cheering from the opposition benches as Mrs. Dalton was conducted to the speaker's chair. Laborites shouted "Resign" to members of the government and there were audible references to "Baldwin's funeral."

Treasury Accepts Reduced Dry Fund

Compromises With Senate on $24,000,000 Bill; Figure Reached.

(United Press.)

A compromise between Senate drys and the Treasury over the $24,000,000 prohibition fund provided in the pending deficiency bill has been arranged under which the Treasury will accept a smaller sum for immediate dry law enforcement.

Revealing the agreement, Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills, said today at the Treasury he has prepared a supplemental estimate for the Prohibition Bureau and Customs Service which he will submit to the House appropriations committee today.

Additional funds to be asked in the Treasury's new estimate, Mills said, will be small in comparison with the $24,000,000 which the Senate desires to give the Treasury for dry law enforcement. Secretary Mellon is opposed to so large a sum on the ground that is is not needed at present.

There is no inconsistency Mills said, in the Treasury's stand against the big dry fund and its new request for some money. When the estimates were first submitted to Congress by the Treasury they were "cut to the minimum" to avoid any chance of a deficit in Government finances.

BURKE LAUDS POPE FOR PEACE EFFORTS

Coronation Anniversary Is Celebrated in Service at Catholic University.

MANY NOTABLES ATTEND

Pope Pius IX was eulogized yesterday by the Rev. John Burke, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, at a service at Catholic University in recognition of the seventh anniversary of the Pope's coronation.

The service was held in the crypt of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at the university. Solemn high mass was celebrated by the Right Rev. Mgr Philip Barnardini. The congregation included many dignitaries of the Catholic Church, members of the Diplomatic Corps and United States senators.

Father Burke spoke of the principles of Christianity for which the Pope stands, showing that the Pope believes that peace can come to the world only through the restoration of the Kingdom of Our Lord Jesus Christ.

Christ Only Saviour.

"The light that defines and consecrates duty, the power that energizes men to perform it, the truth that leads society to be humanly just—are the light and power and truth of Jesus Christ, lived and extended.

"So, Pius XI does not hesitate to proclaim the living Christ as the only Saviour, the only peace. That portion of life or of human endeavor from which He is excluded will rot and die. Into the every-day life of men, and the whole of it; into the industrial social problems of the moment, and all those problems without exception, Pius declares Christ must enter and reign. Thus does the Supreme Pontiff, as a new prophet of God, seek to widen and make all inclusive under Christ the conscience, individual and social, or human-kind. His message is precluded to the fulfillment, far off, of those aspirations that now stir the souls of worthy men.

"Not as teaching alone would Pius bring back the truth to the world—but also as love. Pius brings us a love that pours out from the heart of this living Christ through His living church into the hearts of men, and would make of each, a living flame, enkindling the love of all men for one another, of one nation for another, of one people for another—till all are informed and united in a spirit transcending earthly prosperity and earthly rivalries; transcending nationalism and nationalities—bestowing peace, the peace of Christ in whom we are more than conquerors.

Sovereignty Restored.

"No earthly recognition adds to the divine commission by which Pius sends it forth. But the fact that under Pius the independent sovereignty of which she has so long been deprived has been restored to the Church, will set forth and visibly emphasize his sacred person, his supernatural and supernational mission. Pius reigns today with a freedom that has not been enjoyed by any pontiff for almost sixty years. The rightful liberty which has been restored to him will increase his own freedom of action. In its light the whole world will see more clearly the unique character of his office."

Among those present were: Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and Lady Isabella Howard; Sir John and Lady Broderick, of the British Embassy; Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador, and Donna Antoinette de Martino, Count Marchetti, of the Italian Embassy; Paul Claudel, the French Ambassador, and Mme. Claudel; Senor Don Alejandro Padilla, the Spanish Ambassador, and Mme. de Padilla and their daughters; Associate Justice Pierce Butler and wife, Senator Edwin S. Broussard, of Louisiana; Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts.

Medals Presented In Harmon Contest

S. W. Rutherford and May Howard Jackson Get Money Also.

Ceremonies for presentation of the Harmon awards for distinguished achievement among negroes were held for the recipients, S. W. Rutherford, founder and general manager of the National Benefit Life Insurance Co., and May Howard Jackson, of 1816 Sixteenth street northwest, last night in the auditorium of the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church, the former receiving a gold medal and $400 honorarium in business, while Mrs. M. A. McAdoo, for Mrs. Jackson, received a bronze medal and a $100 award in the fine arts.

The presentations were made under auspices of the inter-racial committee of the Federal Council of Churches in America, through the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance and the Federation of Churches. Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary-treasurer of Howard University, made the presentation address in the business award, to which Mr. Rutherford responded. Presentation of the fine arts award was made by Alain Leroy Locke, negro Rhodes scholar, who has specialized in finding avenues of outlet for negro artistic achievement.

Capper Predicts Early Vote on Car Merger

Senator Capper, chairman of the District committee of the Senate, yesterday announced that the Senate steering committee had agreed to bring up for consideration within a short time the street car merger resolution.

A tacit agreement with the steering committee, Senator Capper said, was that the merger resolution would be considered immediately following a vote on the reapportionment bill, possibly within the next ten days.

Chase Ends in Arrest Of Pair on Dry Charge

Henry Love, 25 years old, and Joseph Stanley, also 25, both of Beaver Dam, Va., were arrested yesterday and charged with transporting and illegal possession of 200 quarts of alleged corn liquor following a ten-block chase by Detective W. A. Berry, of the Twelfth Precinct.

Berry became suspicious of the pair when he noticed that their car sagged on its springs, and, giving chase, overtook them at Fifteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. At a late hour last night the men had failed to arrange bond and were still being held at the precinct station.

POPE IS GIVEN NAME 'PIUS THE CONSOLER'

Many Thousands Cheer the Pontiff, Who Bestows Public Blessing.

KING SHARES IN HONOR

Rome, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—"Pius the Consoler" was the name given today to Pope Pius XI by a throng of more than 100,000 persons who received from the pontiff the first open blessing given from the balcony of St. Peter's in seven years.

They had come to catch a glimpse of their spiritual leader, while some 60,000 more crowded the famous basilict for the celebration of the pontiff's seven-year service as head of the church, the conclusion of the Vatican's pact with the government of Italy and the fiftieth year of the Pope's priesthood.

When the Pope, attended by cardinals and chamberlains, appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's, the throng first cried "Viva il Papa," or "Long live the Pope." Then some members of the crowd, inspired by the peace pact with the government of King Victor Emmanuel, began shouting "Viva il Papa Consolatore."

Appellation Quickly Spreads.

The great mass quickly took up the appellation until a steady best of "consolatores" could be heard. The new name spread about the streets afterward and a few hours later Pius XI was more or less generally known in Rome as "Pius the Consoler."

The royal house of Italy was given a full share of the demonstrations in honor of the signing of the accord. The square before the Quirinal Palace was jammed this afternoon with a mass of persons who shouted their loyalty and would not be satisfied until King Victor Emmanuel had appeared on the balcony with Queen Helena.

A steady rain drenched the great crowd before St. Peter's in the morning, but it ceased later in the day and tonight Rome was a city of light. Colored rays shot from batteries of lamps on all public buildings and danced in the hissing spray of Rome's innumerable fountains.

Lights Sweep St. Peter's.

Searchlights swept the great facade and colonnade of St. Peter's. All this coincided with Mardi Gras celebrations to give the old capital one of its most colorful nights in recent years.

Everywhere the papal flag as well as the Italian flag was shown on public and private buildings. The emblem of the Vatican was hoisted over the Chigi Palace, which contains Mussolini's office.

The American College added the Stars and Stripes to the combination of government and church banners.

Pope Pius had not intended to bestow a public blessing, having felt that the time would not be ripe for such an event until the treaty with the crown had been ratified by the proper government bodies. But when Cardinal Gaspari, papal secretary of state, told him that an unnumbered throng had waited several hours in a driving rain for a brief glimpse, he consented to appear on the balcony.

Only a simple blessing was given. The pontifical apostolic benediction was reserved until the peace treaty and the concordat have been formally approved.

The many thousands knelt in the rain when the pontiff extended his hand in blessing.

LINDY IS IN HAVANA; PLANE 6 HOURS LATE

many hours, were the first to shake the hand of the aviator. Airways officers, attendants and Cuban army aviation cadets joined in a cheer when the colonel brought his plane to rest.

Col. Lindbergh will remain here over night as the guest of the ambassador, whom he visited last year when nearing completion of his good-will tour of the Caribbean countries.

Hopes for Early Start.

He said that he hoped to take off for Miami at daybreak if customs clearance can be arranged for his ship. Ordinarily, no clearance is granted between 5 p. m. and 8 a. m.

The Lindbergh plane was preceded into La Fe and Havana by a similar ship, piloted by Raymond J. Merritt. Occupants of this plane dispelled whatever uneasiness remained over the safety of the colonel. They reported that he was not far behind them and that the delays had been due entirely to inspection of the country along the route.

Lindbergh has only the 90 miles to Key West and then 170 to Miami, Fla., to fly to complete his round-trip flight inaugurating air mail service between the United States and Panama. On his return flight from the Canal Zone he followed the same route as on his southward journey. Starting from France Field on Sunday morning, he stopped at David, Panama and Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, before coming down to spend the night at Managua, Nicaragua. The next day he continued to Belize, where he again passed the night.

Will Fly to Pacific.

"My future plans are rather indefinite," he said, "but I expect within the next several days to take a plane over the transcontinental air line from New York to the West. I will fly from Miami to New York on Thursday."

He said that he had not accepted an invitation to be present at the inauguration of Herbert Hoover on March 4, and that he would not know whether he would visit the President-elect in Florida until he reaches Miami.

The delay in arriving here was attributed by Lindbergh rather to the difficulty of taking off from the water at Zoume Island than to the time utilized for surveys.

"The type of ship I am flying is easy to land in rough water, but difficult to get out," he explained. "When we took on our fuel shortly before noon today we were forced to taxi completely around the block—the island—to an eastern bay, where the waters were quiet."

ENGAGEMENT OF LINDBERGH TO ANNE MORROW ANNOUNCED

Morrow Highly Pleased.

The Ambassador was smiling and seemed highly pleased as he made the announcement.

He declared that no definite plans have yet been determined upon. There was immediate speculation as to whether the colonel might fly to Mexico City as soon as he completes his air mail flight.

Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the aviator, is now en route to the United States from Constantinople where she has taught for six months in an American school, where a sister of Ambassador Morrow also teaches. It was, of course, certain that there will be no wedding until she arrives, but that would not mean a long delay.

When Lindbergh took off from Valbuena Field here last November for the United States, he gave a beautiful aerial salute to Anne. She was at the field with her family to watch him start.

As soon as he had climbed to a little height he circled over the field and then dipped low over the head of Anne.

Persons who witnessed this recalled it today as a significant farewell message from the aviator to his fiancee, although only the principals suspected it at the time.

Second Daughter of Morrow.

Anne is described by her friends as a quiet, sweet and attractive girl studious but at the same time domestic. She is said to be interested in modern artistic and literary movements and in world affairs, but at the same time to be of the home-loving type. These persons regard her as the perfect type to round out the somewhat one-sided life of the colonel.

Anne is the second daughter of the Ambassador. The oldest is Elisabeth and the youngest is Constance. Anne studied at the Chapin School in New York City before entering Smith College. She was born at Englewood, N. J., where the Morrows have a home.

"All you can say on such points is mere guess work," said Ambassador Morrow, when the reporters pleaded for more details. They urged that the American papers would demand particulars of so important event.

To this the Ambassador replied, "I think your guess will be good if you say the time is not yet fixed."

Rumors Hitherto Vague.

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The engagement of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to one of the daughters of Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, former Morgan partner, has been rumored for some time but the reports were indefinite as to just which one it would be—Anne or Elizabeth, her older sister.

When Elisabeth returned from Europe last November, after having visited Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the flying colonel's mother, in Turkey, the rumors were more or less definite that it was Elisabeth. She smilingly declined to answer all questions pertaining to the matter at that time, and being under the escort of J. P. Morgan, succeeded in keeping secret the fact that it was her younger sister who was favored in Col. Lindbergh's eyes.

Anne Morrow, the colonel's fiancee, is 22 years old, five less than the colonel, and has been a favorite in Mexico City diplomatic circles, participating more often than her sister, who, although heiress to millions, preferred to teach school.

When rumors of Lindbergh's regard for one of the Morrow sisters were first published here, Mrs. J. J. Morrow, their aunt, was quoted as saying that both girls had told her several times there was nothing to the rumor, as "Lindy isn't a bit sentimental and doesn't care for girls."

She also was quoted as saying it was her attitude, and she thought the attitude of the rest of the family, that if "Col. Lindbergh wanted to marry a Morrow he'd have to give up flying."

Silent on Engagement.

Havana, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who arrived here today, was quite ready to discuss all details of his flight, but when reporters attempted to learn his plans for marrying Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, it was another story.

"I will confine all my remarks to aviation," the colonel said.

When shown copies of cables from the Associated Press correspondent in Mexico City, telling of the formal announcement of his engagement, Col. Lindbergh said:

"Well, then you know all about it and I have nothing to say."

The aviator indicated, however, that he expects to fly soon to the Pacific Coast, whence it would be a matter of a short day's flight to Mexico City.

St. Louis, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Miss Anne Morrow, whose engagement to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was announced today, saw the trophies of her future husband's historic flights for the first time last Friday. Miss Morrow and her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, made a special stop here to visit the collection in the Missouri Historical Society Museum on their way to Mexico City.

It was necessary to make special arrangements before their arrival to have the exhibit open and they passed more than an hour there. Miss Morrow was particularly interested in the trophies of the flying colonel's Mexican and Latin-American flights, Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, the curator, said.

Arrest of Two Ends Crime Wave, Is Belief

With the arrest of two colored youths, Charles Alexander, 15 years old, of 1446 Corcoran street northwest, and Wilbert Howell, 16, of 1918 New Hampshire avenue northwest, police believe they have put an end to a petty crime wave in the Third, Eighth and Tenth Precincts.

Both youths are being held at the Tenth Precinct stationhouse on five charges of housebreaking and five charges of joy riding, while police of the Eighth and Third are trying to pin on them eleven charges of purse snatching and five charges of larceny of bicycles.

34 GYPSIES FROZEN TO DEATH IN CAMP

Other Tragedies Are Reported From Europe; Temperature 76 Degrees Below.

MANY SHIPS IN DISTRESS

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A whole gypsy band consisting of 34 men, women and children, was found frozen to death today in their encampment in the forest near Lublin, by forest guards.

Many other deaths from cold were reported. Port Gdynia is icebound, the export of coal has stopped and all industry and commerce is hampered by the disorganization of the railways. A temperature of 76 below zero Fahrenheit, has been recorded in some places.

Wave Breaks in Turkey.

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Except in Turkey, where a sudden rise in temperature today brought welcome relief to the suffering population, there was no indication tonight of a yielding of the iron grip of extreme cold which holds all Europe, with the exception of Spain, Portugal and Italy.

Untold miseries have resulted from arctic temperatures of a severity hardly equaled by any records that the modern civilized world has kept, a cold so intense, as to crack steel bridges and railroad lines and to bring troops of hungry wolves and wild boars to attack villagers, as reported today in the Balkans and Belgium.

Already many human activities have been brought to a standstill. Navigation along the whole coast, from Holland into the frozen Baltic, has become next to impossible.

Ice Breakers Powerless.

The strongest ice breakers are powerless to make their way through the daily thickening ice. Ships and ferries are icebound and are being provisioned by airplanes. The same condition obtains in all central European waterways.

Alarming reports reached Berlin from the western Baltic, where about 30 vessels were held by ice. Most of them are of British, Swedish and Norwegian registration. Some of the ships are foodless and others so badly damaged as to be unnavigable. German cruisers are engaged in rescue work, but are hampered by the strong ice barriers. The government has sent out several airplanes with food supplies.

Sofia, Bulgaria, reported that the Black Sea ports of Varna and Burgas were closed by ice for the first time since 1849.

Black Sea Is Frozen.

The ice extends from shore as far as eye can see.

The Isle of Jersey had the deepest fall of snow today in a quarter of a century. It was 2 feet deep in some places. The midlands and northern England also had heavy snows and Scotland was swept by a veritable blizzard. Snowdrifts 12 and 15 feet deep in some sections blocked railways. Two trains were caught in a snowdrift near Stanraer, but the passengers were rescued. In the same district a hearse with a coffin was abandoned in a drift.

The Orkney Islands and the Isle of Man got the full force of the storm. Drifts were 14 feet deep on the latter. A trainload of school children were snowed in and had to pass the night in the Corsuer Ballasalla.

BILL WOULD CHANGE CIVIL SERVICE LAW

Brookhart Proposes Radical Departure From Allocation and Rating Methods.

CLASSIFICATION UNIT HIT

Establishment of a new system of rating for Federal employes and a board of civil service appeals, to which the individual employe could take a protest against allocation, is provided in a bill introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa.

Senator Brookhart proposed that the Personnel Classification Board be abolished and its work taken over by the Civil Service Commission.

The bill would amend section 4 of the classification law relating to allocation of employes, to read as follows:

Allocation Is Subject.

"That the head of each department shall allocate all new positions in his department in the District of Columbia to their appropriate grades in the compensation schedule prescribed by section 13 of the act of 1923, as amended. Such allocations shall be reviewed and may be revised by the commission (meaning the Civil Service Commission) and shall become final upon approval by the commission, except that there shall be a right of appeal from the action of the commission by either the head of the department or the employe concerned, to the Board of Civil Service Appeals hereinbefore created. Whenever the head of a department or an employe concerned believes that any position heretofore or hereafter allocated is not properly allocated according to law, application may be filed by either or both with the commission for reallocation of such position."

For purposes of rating as to efficiency, employes would be grouped in four classes, comprising the new system, as follows:

Ratings Are Specified.

"First, excellent, rated from 90 to 100; second, good, 80 to 89 per cent; third, fair, from 65 to 79 per cent, and fourth, inefficient, below 65."

The tribunal set up by the bill, to which the individual employe might submit any protest against efficiency rating felt to be unfair, would be composed of three members, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The members would be paid salaries of $10,000 per year for terms of six years. One would have to be a woman, and not more than two members of the same political party.

The decision of this board on any case brought to its attention, either from the department head or the individual employe, would be in writing, with reasons stated, and would be final and conclusive.

The bill was described as one of the most important pieces of proposed legislation touching the Federal employe in the District introduced in recent years by Mrs. Margaret Hoskins Worrell, president of the League of American Civil Service.

B STREET LOCATION ASKED FOR MARKET

Unsigned Leaflets, Giving Another Site, Confuse; Stampede Tried.

SOUTHWEST FIGHT HINTED

Permission to occupy space in front of the uncompleted Washington Memorial on B street northwest, between Sixth and Ninth streets, as a temporary farmers' market, was asked of the District Commissioners yesterday in a petition signed by several farmers.

The fight over the new location of the farmers' market flared up yesterday when unsigned leaflets were distributed around the market, declaring that on and after tomorrow the market "will be located at Convention Hall Market, at Fifth and K streets northwest."

George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets of the District, took occasion yesterday to deny the authenticity of the leaflets and Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty also denied that they were authorized by the District.

The move was seen as an effort to stampede farmers to the Fifth and K street market and defeat the effort to have the market placed in the southwest section. Builders of the Internal Revenue Building are said to have told the farmers that the need the present site of the market on which to store materials.

MRS. M. L. PADGETT DIES.

Heart Attack Fatal to Woman While on Way to Doctor.

Mrs. Margaret L. Padgett, 72 years old, who had been a resident of Washington for the past ten years, died suddenly yesterday, while on the way to receive treatment for heart disease. Mrs. Padgett collapsed in the lobby of the Washington Medical Building. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mayris Padgett, of 245 Eighth street northeast.

Mrs. Padgett, according to her daughter, had just entered the main doors of the building when she fell to the floor. She was rushed to the office of Dr. B. R. Bolton, where she died within a few minutes.

Besides the daughter, Mrs. Padgett is survived by her husband, John C. Padgett, and another daughter, Mrs. Robert Goodall, of Baltimore. Mrs. Padgett resided with her daughter here.

Funeral services have not been announced.

MRS. REINHARD IS BURIED.

Services for Lifelong Capital Resident Held at Home of Sister.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Reinhard, 78 years old, lifelong resident of Washington, who died Sunday at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Margaret E. Rock, 611 Sixth street southwest, were held yesterday afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Rock. Burial was in Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Reinhard was the widow of William Reinhard. She was well known in Baltimore. A brother, Albert Reinhard, survives, as well as Mrs. Rock.

here in time to leave for an inspection of the Lake Okeechobee flood project Friday morning.

He had been out in the gulf for only a short while when the change in weather, a high wind blowing up and the temperature taking a drop, made fishing out of the question, so it was expected that Mr. Hoover would cut his trip short, but not necessarily quit the houseboat so early this morning for a five-hour motor ride across the State.

Mrs. Hoover and other members of the party stayed aboard and it was later explained that if the weather moderated they would make the trip down the coast come through one of the keys to the East Coast and return to Miami Beach in the same manner that they went over.

Mr. Hoover's getaway from the houseboat followed a visit by Lawrence A. Richey, his personal representative, who had remained behind in Miami Beach and this added to the speculation on Mr. Hoover's quick return.

Mr. Shaw seemed to be the only one waiting for Mr. Hoover, however, and the rest of the members of the subcommittee are to appear tomorrow. There is no reason to believe under the circumstances that Mr. Hoover was called back by other than a desire not to keep the committee waiting, especially inasmuch as fishing was out of the question.

Quite an exhaustive study has apparently been made of economic changes, because Mr. Shaw was armed with a sheaf of bound typewritten pages. It is probable that Mr. Hoover will keep the committee here for several days.

Mrs. Mills was 48 years old. The couple resided at 225 Q street northwest. Burial will take place in Glenwood Cemetery after services at the W. W. Deal Funeral Home, 816 H street northeast. Two other sons survive, James A. and Joseph H. Mills, of this city. A daughter, Miss Anna Margaret Mills, 15 years old, also survives.

CRIPPLED STEAMER IS FOUND ON ROCKS

Gale Prevents Rescue Ship From Aiding Japanese Freighter Meiyo Maru.

TOW LINE IS TORN APART

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Japanese freighter Nanko Maru, reported by wireless late today that it had located the distressed vessel Meiyo Maru pounding on the rocks near Unimak Pass, Alaska, in a violent gale.

The Nanko Maru messaged that rescue operations virtually were impossible until the terrific storm subsided. Due to the storm the Nanko reported that it was not sure whether the stranded ship was grounded on Aikak or Ugamak Islands in the Aleutian Archipelago.

With the freighter Alloway only a few yards from the beach of Unimak Pass late today, all except one man had been taken from the vessel. His 33 companions fought their way in life boats to the steamer Montauk, 500 yards away.

Almost within sight of safe anchorage the Alloway was torn away from the steamer Montauk's tow line and drifted toward the rocks. The crew, worn from a heroic battle with disabled engines and mountainous seas, was ordered into boats.

There was no room in the narrow entrance to Unimak Pass for the Montauk to maneuver into position to get another line aboard. The Montauk took the Alloway in tow yesterday.

The Alloway, which was on her way to the Orient to be scrapped, had a large cargo of lumber and other goods. Her position was not far from the spot where the Meiyo Maru went aground early today.

This information was wirelessed to Dutch Harbor by the Montauk. The rescue ship reported that other lifeboats were being prepared for launching in the violent southeast gale which tore away the tow line between the two ships as they neared safety in the harbor here.

Ships Smashed Together.

The Montauk wirelessed just after the tow line parted that the two ships were smashed together in the pass, but that it was able to break away, leaving the Alloway, which carried a crew of 34 men and officers, to its fate.

The message did not say whether either vessel was damaged in the collision.

Although the violent gale was tossing the two ships at will, the Montauk wirelessed that no men had been lost in the launching of the first lifeboat.

Gravesend, England, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The British steamer Highland Pride, from Buenos Aires, was beached near here today after colliding with the Norwegian steamer Bras, which sailed from Savannah on January 12. The Highland Pride, which is of 4,700 tons, suffered damages on her port side, but the Bras, of 1,300 tons, was able to proceed on her voyage to Tyne. Tugs are standing by the Highland Pride.

Marseille, France, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The German steamer Atlas was reported by the Lorient wireless station today to be in distress 25 miles southwest of Les Sables D'Olonne, France.

Lloyds register lists a German steamer Atlas, home port Hamburg, register 645 tons.

Senate and House Will Count Votes

Meeting Today to Tabulate Electoral Ballots in Outworn Ceremony.

The Senate and House will meet in joint session today for the antiquated ceremony of counting the electoral votes of the last election and finding out who has been chosen President—and who is to be Vice President—for the next four years.

Those charged with arranging this solemn and long since outworn event, that was of paramount importance in George Washington's time, all agree in the prediction that when the ballot boxes are opened and the votes counted there will be 444 for Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis and 87 for Alfred E. Smith and Joseph T. Robinson, and that Vice President Dawes, who presides, will announce the news that the two former will be, respectively, President and Vice President of the United States.

The king's bedroom was flooded with sunshine and his attendants said this had an excellent effect on his spirits as he lay in bed and watched the white-flecked sea.

3 BOMBS IN HOMES OF MEXICAN CHIEFS

Attempts on Nationalists as Threat Is Made Against Calles' Daughter.

GIL ALSO IS MENACED

Mexico City, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Threatening letters have been received by President Emelio Portes Gil and his predecessor in office, Plutario Elias Calles. Three more unexploded bombs have been found in residences of prominent members of the Nationalist Revolutionary party, which is dedicated to preserve the policies of Calles and the late Gen Obregon.

The letters received by Former President Calles also threatened kidnaping of his daughter, Ernestina, wife of Thomas Arnold Robinson, of New York, now in business in Mexico City. The threatening letters were said to resemble similar ones received by President-elect Alvaro Obregon before his assassination.

Some of the anonymous letters received at the Calles residence read:

"We will get you. We will get your daughter Ernestina. You will be punished through her. You said that you would leave Mexico when you left office. You have not done so. You will pay by your daughter being taken away."

Ernestina is the dearly beloved daughter of the former president. Persons close to the family know that nothing could hurt him as much as injury to his daughter. Her husband was an American aviator in the World War and is the son of a Michigan millionaire.

Guards have been placed around the palace and Robinson's home. Robinson was said to have seen suspicious characters loitering about his home during the past two days.

The names of the political leaders in whose separate residences the three new bombs were found were not authorized for publication in order that the police guard around them might be tightened and the investigation not impeded.

The bombs were believed by persons in touch with the situation to be similar to those recently placed in the office of Gov. Aaron Saenz, candidate for the nomination as president of the revolutionary party.

It was recalled also that an attempt was made to bomb Gen. Obregon before he was killed by a pistol in the hands of Jose de Leon Toral.

The police are working upon the theory that the bombs and threatening letters were inspired by extremists in the religious controversy. Redoubled precautions have been taken to protect all officials of the government and prominent supporters of the policies of Calles and Obregon.

Snowslides Kill 2; Towns Are Isolated

Avalanches in Mountains of Colorado Increase Plight of Silverton, Durango.

Creede, Colo., Feb. 12 (United Press). Thundering 12,000 feet down the Cochetopa and La Plata mountains, a series of snowslides spread fear today through southwestern Colorado.

Two lives were reportedd lost, and the neighboring towns of Silverton and Durango were cut off from each other by even higher banks of snow than those which blocked highway and railroad traffic a week ago. Several small camps were snowbound.

Six men left Creede this afternoon for the Sulphur Bed region, 15 miles west, to search for James Wolfe, 50, and his 17-year-old son, whose cabin was demolished by a veritable mountain of snow.

The predicament of Silverton and Durango became worse with the new slides. Food and provisions were taken into Durango from the south, and into Silverton from the north, but the blockade between them crippled industries of both towns and citizens faced the prospect of three weeks virtual isolation.

Plane Aids Stricken Redmen in Canada

Medicines and Foods Taken to Influenza Sufferers in North Wilds.

Ottawa, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The airplane has been called to the red men in the hunting grounds around Pickle and Shonia lakes where not so long ago the canoe was the only vehicle of transportation.

Of the 600 Indians in this northern hunting ground, which is 100 miles north of the Canadian National Railway, more than half are reported to be suffering from influenza and there is imperative need for medical supplies. Food also is said to be scarce.

Dr. G. H. Bell already has made one airplane trip to the stricken Indians from Sioux and others are planned. The Department of Indian Affairs announced today that it would be responsible for any damage incurred in flights to aid the red men.

STORY OF LINCOLN'S WEDDING IS TOLD BY CAPITAL WOMAN

when the decision to marry Lincoln was suddenly arrived at.

Mrs. Ames relates that the interest her great-grandmother had in Lincoln always had been of interest to her family because of the contrast in their circumstances and the fact that she was several years older than Lincoln at the time.

"Mrs. Dodge was cultured and, after the manner of the time, careful of her acquaintances and the society in which she moved," Mrs. Ames said. "She lived in a hotel and maintained her own coach and horses, and lived as a distinguished lady of means did in those days.

Saw Lincoln's Fine Qualities.

"She met Lincoln, of course, through her son-in-law, Benjamin, and it must have been that she recognized in the rough, tall, ungainly man the capacities for greatness he had so abundantly.

"In arranging Mary's hair for the ceremony, the curling irons were too hot and the poor girl's hair was scorched across the forehead. It was the fashion, then, you know, to have little crinkly curls. The family had considerable mirth later in remembering that Mary came down for the wedding with her hair burned from her forehead and scorched around the edges."

Called Lawyer Plebeian.

Mary Todd's sarcastic remark about the gingerbread being "good enough for plebeians" was in the nature of a reproach to members of the family who had objected to Lincoln on the ground that in certain respects he could not compare with the accomplished girl whose affections he sought. The family often discussed the tall young lawyer, Mrs. Ames said, and usually wound up with the agreement that he was "plebeian."

Two other Washingtonians found more than fictional interest in the anniversary of Lincoln's birth. Lewis G. Reynolds, custodian of the famous Oldroyd collection of Lincoln relics in the Lincoln museum, 516 Tenth street, probably is the only man living who, as a child, sat on President Lincoln's knee.

Capt. Osborn H. Oldroyd, 87 years old, who gathered the Lincoln relics over a period of 70 years, never saw the great President, although he lived in his time. His collection, numbering more than 3,000 objects intimately associated with Lincoln's life, recently was taken over by the Government.

WALLACE BEERY transport pilot No. 3298, now appearing in "Tong War" tells how the movie stars are guarding their throats with OLD GOLDS.

"A year or so ago, Hollywood didn't think much about its vocal chords or its voices. We were all in the silent drama then.

"But the coming of the 'Talkies' has changed things. Lovely stars, leading men, 'heavies' and ingenues are guarding their throats with zealous care . . . and smoking OLD GOLDS.

"It didn't need the 'Talkies' to win me to OLD GOLDS. I've been smoking them ever since they came to Hollywood, two years ago. But it's an added satisfaction to know they are kind to the voice, when the voice has assumed a new importance!"

BOARD TELLS PLAN TO SELL U. S. SHIPS

Informs Senate Group Offer of $16,082,000 by Chapman Is Acceptable.

JOSEPH SHEEDY IS HEARD

(Associated Press.)

The Shipping Board yesterday advised the Senate commerce committee of its intention to sell the Government's North Atlantic Passenger Fleet to Paul W. Chapman, Inc., of New York, who has offered $16,082,000 for the eleven ships of the United States and American Merchant Lines.

After hearing of the board's intention the committee began an examination of Joseph Sheedy, veteran ship operator and the man behind the Chapman bid. It hopes to conclude the questioning of Sheedy tomorrow and Chairman Jones of the committee is in favor of an early decision by the committee members.

The committee is without legal authority to stop the sale, but can suggest a course of procedure to the board.

Expects to Make Ships Pay.

Sheedy told the committee how he hoped to make a paying proposition out of a losing one for the Government. He appeared after Chairman O'Connor of the board had said that six of the seven board members were ready to close the contract with Chapman. The Leviathan is included among the ships of the two lines.

Only Commissioner Myers dissented. He is willing to sell the United States lines to Chapman, but he prefers the bid of $2,525,000 of the Admiral Oriental Line, owned by Robert Dollar, for the merchant line ships. Dollar would set up a service from Pacific ports to Europe. Chapman's bid calls only for an Atlantic service.

Members of the board came before the committee in accordance with a promise to inform it of their decision before taking action. An investigation of the plan to sell the Government vessels was ordered by the Senate in adopting the resolution of Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, last week.

Board Ready to Act.

O'Connor told the committee the board is ready to act, but that it will give consideration to any advice of the committee.

Persistent questioning by Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, as to the ability of Chapman to make a success of the ship service, resulted in Sheedy volunteering to tell of his qualifications for the job. He said he is the man who is going to run the proposed Chapman concern and in rapid manner he tolled off his many experiences of over 32 years as an operator and shipbuilder.

Sheedy said he proposed to build seven new ships in ten years, although his bid would require the construction of only two. He assured the committee that no foreign influence touched upon his bid in any way and that he intended to keep his fleet under the American flag.

Copeland's Query Parried.

"You hope," said Senator Copeland, "by some magic to turn losses of $547,000 a year to profits?"

"I don't know about the magic," snapped Sheedy, "but I expect to make a profit out of it eventually. We are not going into this for charity, but we are going into it with the highest of motives. The whole proposition is whether I can do 10 per cent more business than is now done."

Sheedy said he proposed to use the entire organization and facilities now employed by the United States Lines—"lock, stock and barrel"—and added he had been closely connected with these lines since their inception.

"The board is satisfied of the responsibility of the bidder," O'Connor said, "both as to finances and as to management."

Bids for Laid-Up Ships Sought.

The Shipping Board yesterday authorized a call for bids on 253 vessels, all of the Government's laid-up fleet, except ships required as a reserve for Shipping Board operations.

The vessels offered for sale are largely of the oil-burning, steel cargo type, suitable after overhauling for ocean service. The "Laker" type ships are not included.

The board in authorizing the sale revised its previously recommended sales prices to conform with reduction in value of the ships as shown by recent surveys.

SPECULATIVE DATA SOUGHT IN SENATE

Shipstead Asks if Foreign Influence Was Behind Reserve Warning.

MOVE HELD IMPORTANT

Congressional forces interested in curbing the use of the Nation's financial resources for speculative purposes yesterday continued their drive toward legislation to correct the evils bared by the Federal Reserve System in its warning to the monetary centers of the country against credit for this activity.

Senator Shipstead (Farm-Labor), Minnesota, took an important step in the Senate when he introduced a resolution calling on the Federal Reserve System to give the Senate a report as to whether there was an agreement with foreign banking interests hat might influence present conditions. His move was looked upon as a step to shed light on whether the visit of Montague Norman, president of the Bank of England, to seek help in curbin gthe drain of gold from England, influenced the Reserve Board's warning.

In the meantime, Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, questioned whether the Federal Reserve System had fulfilled its primary purpose if it had failed to cut the "cancer of speculation" from American business.

The House merely marked time on the proposals for a general inquiry into speculative credit.

FOR HOOVER TO DECIDE.

Dr. Schacht opens the ball at Paris by telling the reparations experts that Germany can no longer pay at the present rate under the Dawes plan. It is his business to paint as dark a picture of German conditions as possible. He began the preliminaries a few days ago by stating that Germany could not expect to borrow enough outside money any longer to keep up the enormous Dawes installments. The United States has been the source of $1,100,000,000 of the $1,200,000,000 which Germany has paid on reparations up to date. It is probably true that Germany can not borrow any large sums in the United States under present conditions.

The reply of the French and British representatives would be most interesting to Americans, if they could listen in. No doubt they will lay stress upon S. Parker Gilbert's report, showing Germany to be in a flourishing condition and needing only a halt upon extravagance to enable her to pay heavy installments on reparations. Probably the French and British delegates will make a great show of willingness to treat Germany generously by cutting down the total reparation account—provided, of course, a certain Western nation will be equally generous to Britain and France. Possibly a flood of generous emotion will sweep over the experts if they detect any sign from the Americans that the war debts may be scaled down. The British and French experts will be very willing to be generous to Germany at America's expense.

It is too early to foresee the drift of the committee's discussions, and Mr. Hoover will be in the White House before any concrete plan can be developed. What the American experts will say must depend largely upon the instructions they will receive from Mr. Hoover. His attitude on this great subject is not disclosed, and perhaps he has not yet formulated a policy. The American experts will do well to avoid commitments until they can make sure of Mr. Hoover's attitude. It may be very different from that outlined by President Coolidge in his conference with Messrs. Morgan and Young.

HARVARD'S PLAN OPPOSED.

President Lowell's plan to divide Harvard University into a number of small units for administrative purposes is meeting with stubborn opposition from various factions in the student body. Last week the plan was ridiculed in the Harvard Lampoon, and a caustic attack was made on the motives of E. H. Harkness, New York financier, who has given more than $11,000,000 to make the experiment possible. The Harvard Crimson has now joined the Lampoon in opposition to what is described as a scheme to subject Harvard to a system of educational "efficiency." These student groups consider the present social organization, which allows complete freedom in the choice of college associates, highly preferable to the so-called house plan.

However, all the students do not share the opinions of the editors of the two publications. The indignation of one group was manifest Monday when 500 copies of the offending issue of the Lampoon were seized and burned on the steps of the building wherein it was published. With such a controversy over the proposed innovation, it becomes doubtful whether the house plan will fulfill the high hopes of its promoters.

President Lowell has clearly pointed out that the plan is experimental. It is designed to bring about closer cooperation between students and instructors and to provide an atmosphere of culture in which undergraduates will live during their college careers. It is a worthy objective, and if the plan meets with success in Harvard it may have an important influence on colleges throughout the country. As for the gift of Mr. Harkness, there is no reason to believe that it was given for any other purpose than the promotion of education.

The success of the new plan depends on the good will and cooperation of the students. Americans generally demand a voice in the affairs of the institutions of which they are a part, whether they pertain to education or government. A student body has a vital interest in any proposition to revolutionize the methods of education. While undergraduates can not set themselves up as competent judges on such matters, it might be found beneficial in the future to make certain of harmony between student organizations and the administration before undertakings of such scope are put into effect.

THE AIRPORT INQUIRY.

All hope that action for the establishment of a municipal airport might be had during the present session was dashed Monday when Senator Vandenberg, chairman of the special Senate committee appointed to investigate the airport question, introduced a resolution calling for the appointment of a new commission to make a thorough study of the entire situation. Senator Vandenberg proposes that the problem be studied from the standpoint of the needs of the various Government departments, and with this in view the committee would be composed of the chairman of the subcommittee for appropriations for the District, who would be its chairman; a senator to be appointed by the President of the Senate, and a senator from each of the following committees: Military affairs, naval affairs, commerce, District of Columbia, postoffice and post roads, and appropriations.

Four independent airport committees already have surveyed the various sites suggested for airport development in and around the District. All of them came ultimately to the conclusion that Gravelly Point was best suited to the purpose. Other sites had a few points of superiority, but in essential elements they were unsuited. In practically every case they were too small, or the approaches were dangerous.

It is important that Washington make provision for a suitable airport in the near future. The development of commercial aviation continues at an astonishing rate. This summer will witness the inauguration of numerous new mail, express and passenger carrying lines. Because Washington has no satisfactory landing field they will be unable to include the Capital on their operating schedules and later they may find it inexpedient to deviate from their established schedules. Baltimore, where a large-scale airport development project now is under way, may become the air terminal for this section of the country unless Washington provides a suitable landing field.

ADULT EDUCATION.

The recent agitation over the five-day week in industry brought questions from many quarters as to how workmen will spend their additional leisure time when the plan is generally adopted. One of the most interesting answers comes from educational circles, in anticipation that part of the new leisure will be spent in educational and cultural pursuits.

The day when education ended at graduation from high school has passed forever in the more progressive communities of America. More and more people are acquiring college training and the world is demanding men of technical education. But there are thousands who desire education beyond their financial resources at the regular college age. If they are to be satisfied they must go on learning and earning at the same time. It is to meet the needs of these people that adult education is so rapidly developing. As leisure time is increased through the use of machinery in industry, the country may expect a still greater demand for educational facilities for adults.

Since this movement has developed, educators have overthrown the old theory that only the youthful mind is susceptible to learning. A recent study of the subject by Prof. Edward L. Thorndike resulted in his finding that "the curve of ability to learn from age 5 to age 45 seems to reach its height at about 25 and then slowly drops until by 45 it corresponds to what it was at 18. But the change from 18 to 45 is so slight that one is justified in concluding that there is no reason for diffidence on the part of those in the prime of life in undertaking new branches of learning." The ability to learn results largely from the cultivation of habits, and if a mind is not allowed to grow rusty, its possessor may count on continuing the process of learning even into old age. In fact, most of the outstanding thinkers of today have continued the process of learning in their old age.

University extension divisions with afternoon and evening classes are springing up all over the country, and it is much easier for adults to continue their education than ever before. With increased leisure for the working class the movement should be accentuated, and since many devote their studies to their profession or occupation the net result should be further gains in efficiency and skill.

LINCOLN MUSEUM.

Lincoln's birthday served as a reminder that the Oldroyd collection of Lincoln relics is maintained in an uninviting environment and is in constant danger of fire. The matter has been brought to public attention by Representative Yates, of Illinois. Deploring the conditions to which the collection is now exposed, he intends to introduce a bill to authorize its transfer to Springfield, Ill., where the martyred President is buried.

The articles referred to are on exhibit in the little house on Tenth between E and F streets northwest, in which Lincoln died. The house is old and musty, and Mr. Yates complains that the basement contains quantities of paper and old furniture, which increase the fire hazard. Both the house and the collection are owned by the Government, and watchmen are maintained at the place day and night. There is still serious question, however, as to whether the place is safe from fire, and whether it is a suitable location for the relics.

There will be decided objection to Mr. Yates' plan for removal of the relics to Springfield. The proper place for the collection is the National Capital, where Lincoln performed his greatest service and where he died. Because the articles are now inadequately cared for is no reason why they should be taken from Washington.

A bill providing for removal of the collection to a place of safety has been pending in Congress for two years, but no suitable museum has been found. The plan of Representative Rathbone for restoration of the old Ford Theater as a memorial to the martyred President has found little favor because the country wishes to remember the achievements of Lincoln rather than keep alive the memory of his assassination. If the house in which he died is not a suitable place in which to retain the collection because of its small size, then a special building in the nature of a museum should be provided, where the collection will be forever accessible to the public.

UNCLE SAM, LAND OWNER.

The United States Government is generally considered as a Federal Union of 48 States, and it is seldom realized that the Government holds land of its own, equal in area to fourteen of the smaller States. The unappropriated public land amounts to 194,000,000 acres, most of which is in the West. In addition, the Government retains the mineral rights on approximately 19,000,000 acres of land patented under the stock-raising law, and rights to specific minerals in 11,750,000 acres. Potential water power available from these lands is estimated at 15,000,000 horsepower.

This is a tremendous estate, which is worthy of much study and careful administration in order that the interests of the people as a whole may be served. The Geological Survey estimates that the coal lands of the public domain contain 200,000,000 tons of fuel. The supply of phosphate which may be used to fertilize American farms of the future is estimated at 8,000,000,000 tons. Potash deposits appear to be unlimited. Besides the 65 developed oil and gas fields, which have an annual production of 33,000,000 barrels of oil, the Government owns 4,000,000 acres of oil shale which contains 60,000,000,000 barrels of oil that can be extracted when prices are high enough to warrant it.

These statistics are sufficient to indicate the tremendous responsibility of the Department of the Interior in the administration of these lands. The general policy of the Government, as reflected in recent legislation, is to retain ownership of the principal natural resources of the public domain, permitting development through leases or permits. In keeping with this policy, it is pleasing to see that the Government has assigned to the Geological Survey the task of examining and classifying all the public lands. Through this plan the greatest value of each tract may be determined, as well as the most beneficial use to which it may be put. In past years thousands of acres of valuable oil and gas lands have been turned over to private interests for nominal fees, because their value was not known to the Government. The Geological Survey will perform a service of inestimable value in giving the Department of the Interior an index on which to base more intelligent administration of the public domain.

THE CAPPER RESOLUTION.

FROM THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE.

Senator Capper's resolution, described in Washington as an effort "to put teeth into the Briand-Kellogg treaty," really antedates that instrument, being, as its author admits, a renewal, in substance, of a resolution introduced by him on December 9, 1927. It was in its original form, intended to pledge the United States to renounce war as an instrument of public policy, to define an "aggressor nation" as one which begins hostilities without having submitted existing differences to conciliation, arbitration or judicial settlement, and to restrain its nationals from giving aid and comfort in war time to an "aggressor nation." That was before the Briand-Kellogg pact was negotiated. Under the latter the United States has renounced war as an instrument of national policy.

But it has not defined an "aggressor nation," nor has it promised to restrain its nationals from trading with a nation engaged in war. On the contrary, the Senate only last week adopted an amendment to the fifteen-cruiser authorization act calling for a very broad reestablishment of American neutral rights, including the right to trade with belligerents.

The redrafted Capper resolution is hailed in some quarters as a helpful and logical extension of the Briand-Kellogg treaty. It seems to us more destructive than helpful and to apply blundering haste to the solution of the most difficult and confused of all international problems, that of neutral rights. Its first section would involve the United States in a unilateral modification of the war renunciation convention. Mr. Capper purposes giving the President power to determine whether another country has violated the multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war and authorizing him to lay an embargo on the export of arms, munitions and implements of war to any such country until the violation ceases. This is in open conflict with the official interpretations of the treaty made in the correspondence preceding ratification. Under the treaty as interpreted, any nation may go to war in self-defense and is the sole judge of whether it is going to war in self-defense or not. No other government is entitled by the treaty to challenge its judgment. The President would therefore be violating the conditions of the treaty if he undertook to pass upon any belligerent nation's claim that it was acting in self-defense and therefore within the treaty.

The Briand-Kellogg convention expressly refrained from setting up an umpire or referee to pass on violations. Suppose one signatory should hold that a nation claiming to be acting in self-defense was really an "aggressor." Other nations would be entitled to take a different view. In the wars of the future both or all belligerents will probably classify themselves as nonaggressors. The treaty would perish under such a test—to which its framers wisely decided not to submit it.

The Senate foreign relations committee's report stressed the fact that the Briand-Kellogg instrument was essentially a moral gesture, involving no enforcement commitments. Passing on questions of self-defense and imposing embargoes on legitimate neutral trade do not come within its scope.

The Senate has also just gone on record as a champion of old-fashioned neutral rights. Is it not too soon to rewrite a treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy on which the ink is hardly dry? The unilateral Capper revision would really invalidate the treaty instead of strengthening it. It would also dispose offhand of many questions of sea rights, sea power, sea policing and neutral commerce which are now confused as never before and whose clarification is one of the most difficult of international problems.

Sinkers.

Detroit News: All in all, we would rather remember the Salvation Army's fried cakes than its quarrels.

The Silver Lining.

Dayton News: Oklahoma legislators are kept so busy impeaching governors that they don't have time to pass a lot of fool bills.

Only the Derby Fits.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: Anyhow there is one sure wearer of the derby. Nobody ever saw a soft hat on a slide trombone in the jazz band.

Lucky Fellow.

San Diego Union: Being a comparatively young man, Mr. Hoover has probably not met half the eminent citizens who have been suggested for his Cabinet.

Sir Walter Himself.

Minneapolis Journal: A Michigan bootlegger volunteered to stay home and care for three small children, while his wife served the family sentence of six months in jail. Who says chivalry's dead?

Will It Be Cheaper?

Philadelphia Record: Americans, says President Coolidge, are now learning "the art of living." It will be a more popular study, too, than the long course they have had in the cost of living.

Door Openers.

Minneapolis Journal: The people of Missouri have been shown that the Missouri Legislature has 63 doorkeepers, six to a door, all of them relatives or warm friends of the Solons. No need to cry out, "Shut the door!"

Fine Idea, But.

Philadelphia Bulletin: This universal idea that any one feeling a cold coming on should go right home to bed is fine. But most of the work of the world is done by folks who don't imagine that a single sneeze means the flu.

One Explanation.

New Orleans Times Picayune: Brooklyn, N. Y., yclept "City of Churches," is organizing a "go-to-church" campaign. And meanwhile Manhattan, "city of shows," is urging a "go-to-theater" movement. The radio and automobile are sapping the attendance in both instances.

Fair Test.

Baltimore Sun: Midshipman Chapple has passed the hand-over-hand rope-climbing test, and therefore is allowed to represent the Academy as a heavyweight boxer, a role for which he is admirably fitted. And the news draws attention to this fair test of fitness. The heavy athlete with mighty muscles does not win out ahead of the little fellow by mere size, for he has, say, 195 pounds to lift as against the 140 of the other. And one can imagine how general is the wish that this practice could be extended to other fields—if, for example, the classroom examinations might be adjusted to the mental weight of the students

"Honest Abe."

Philadelphia Record: To us, the key fact about Lincoln was his splendid simplicity. It explains "Honest Abe." It made him the Emancipator. It gave him power in legislatures. It strengthened him as executive in the clashing combat of wills, with the Republic's fate at stake. It carried him through personal and public trials and tests to his imperishable place of honor in the memory of mankind.

Volumes have been written about Lincoln, volumes are being written, and volumes are yet to be written, enough to fill a goodly library; and of them all, the purpose is to explain to the world what it was that made this man great.

And the sum and substance of a million printed pages about Lincoln seems to us to be simply this: He had the wisdom and the courage to guide his life on the principle which we of today put into the slang expression, "Be yourself!"

Praise Be Radio.

New York World: There was a time when most barytones were trying to become tenors; the reason, as you might suppose, was that tenors received more money than barytones. Thus there was a great yodeling of head tones in all the studios, and for one Jean De Reszke or Louis Graveure who succeeded, countless wretches merely ruined their voices, which was a tragedy or a boon to the human race depending on how you look at it. Now, however, it is the other way around; most tenors are trying to become barytones; the reason, as you might suppose, is that barytones receive more money than tenors. For the high command of the radio has discovered that tenors do not carry well on the air; they sound distressingly squeaky, so squeaky that one broadcasting station has given orders that no tenor may be heard save with orchestral accompaniment, and other broadcasting stations have given orders that tenors are to be presented only very sparingly. Thus, instead of a yodeling of head tones there is a bellowing of chest tones in all the studios, and only time can spell the outcome.

All this strikes us as highly salubrious. For if the radio has done nothing but abolished tenors it has more than justified its existence.

Treaties Will Avail for the Same Reason That Gentlemen Never Hit Women.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN the great nations of the world recently signed a treaty renouncing war, simple people accepted it as a guarantee of everlasting peace, and cynics regarded it as a worthless gesture.

One group hopes too much and the other trusts too little.

To say that the treaty has no meaning is to say that men have no honor.

Throughout the whole of history, nations have made treaties with one another and have kept faith for periods of years, though bound by no other force than a pledge of honor.

Now, for the first time in history, nations have said to one another: "We shall not make war any more forever."

No forfeits are posted; no hostages are given; honor alone is trusted to make the treaty effective.

One of two things is true: The treaty is worthless because nations are without honor, or the treaty will end warfare because nations have honor enough to keep their word.

The hope of the world lies in the fact that custom is the strongest of forces and honor is becoming a custom.

Nations, corporations and groups still do dishonorable things because their nature gives evil a protecting anonymity, but honorable men in every organization that thus degrades itself feel resentment and shame, and their demands for decency become more effective as the years pass.

It isn't a matter of idealism, but of hard, practical sense.

Business men have learned that honor pays a greater profit than dishonor, and more and more the business men exercise control of the world's affairs.

Call them Babbitts if you will, but they are square; and though their inspiration is the hope of profit, their standards are the standards of gentlemen.

Business rules the world, and business has made honor a custom.

Nations have made warfare a custom, and this fact alone explains the difficulty of establishing peace.

Statesmen think war a necessity simply because it has the sanction of immemorial custom.

They think everlasting peace impossible for the same reason that an earlier generation thought flying impossible; because it is contrary to custom.

Men avoid a practice for no better reason than the fact that "it simply isn't done."

They practice honor without hesitation in certain circumstances, as they wear patent leather with a dress suit, because it is customary and everybody expects it.

When business men have made national honor a custom, nations will keep the peace and deal fairly—not merely for virtue's sake, but because the world frowns on those who violate custom and precedent.

MORE WHALES.

It is good news, if it is true news, that there are more whales in the Atlantic, says the New York Herald Tribune. The world needs more whales, bigger whales and better whales, for the sight of a single hundred-foot spouting mother whale, particularly if she be nursing one of her 40-foot calves in mid-ocean, is enough to cure any cynic full of dire reflections upon the evils of mass production.

But we are a little skeptical of the story brought back to port by Capt. J. R. Knowlton, of the sea-going tug Goliath. Capt. Knowlton thinks the Government ought to do something to save the fish from the voracious whales. The fact is that most whales take their food in semiliquid form and prefer large gulps of plankton to the tenderest codfish. And it is also a lamentable fact that there is more danger of extinction of whale than of extinction of codfish. A little fish has a better chance against a fisherman than the perilously conspicuous whale has against his hunter. The Greenland whale is already almost extinct, and the Norwegian fishermen who are Commander Byrd's companions off the shore of Antarctica are killing more whales every year. In the heyday of Nantucket and New Bedford 10,000 whales was a mighty season's catch, and last year the big steam whalers took the carcasses of some 30,000 whales aboard.

That mighty whaler, the C. A. Larsen, which towed Byrd's ship through the ice pack, is a 17,200-ton ship, an ocean liner in the polar seas, equipped with a 30-foot wide drag tunnel in her bow to haul 50-ton whales to her rendering factory amidships. She needs no shore station to help her, and when the season closes she may have several million dollars' worth of whale oil aboard.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Caveat Emptor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that some of our good prohibitionists are urging the enactment of a law punishing the buyer as well as the seller of liquor. Bless their souls, we have such a law already on the statute books. If a person has liquor secured by any other means than through the prescription of a physician, it is "unlawful possession," and unlawful possession is punishable. LEX.

Clear Off Potomac Park.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You are everlastingly right in your criticisms of the attempt of Representative Cramton to force on the city the burden of securing additional parks. Evidently it is a move of real estate speculators. The people of Washington are not asking for additional parks; they have no use for more than they now have. If Congress wants park grounds let Congress pay the bill out of the public Treasury, and not out of the pockets of Washington taxpayers. When the taxpayers of Washington ask for more parks it will then be time enough for Congress to consider the matter. Let Congress clear off the buildings it caused to be erected in Potomac Park and restore that ground to what it was intended for when obtained, rather than buy other ground.

TAXPAYER.

Legislatures Must Act.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What has become of the bill readjusting the membership of the House as required by the Constitution? Has it died in the borning, like so many other good intentions? A new House is to be elected next year. Under the provisions of the bill some States will loose in membership. Their legislatures will not be in session again until after the election in 1930. How are their districts to be readjusted to meet the adjustment of membership? Congress can not do it for them. The State legislature is the only body that can act in that direction. Those States will have to call an extra session of the legislature, with all its expense, or the operation of the new bill will have to be delayed until the members of the Seventy-second Congress are chosen. By that time a new census of population will be taken and another readjustment called for by the Constitution. All this trouble because Congress has delayed performing its duty. CONSTITUTION.

Cost of Living Increasing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you explain why the cost of living is continually increasing? Prices now on many things which enter into the living cost are much higher now than they were in war times. Yet we are told that everything and everybody is prosperous. All kinds of meat have increased in price since the war. This is especially true of beef products. They have jumped up about 30 per cent. Coffee, sugar, butter, eggs and all kinds of vegetables have been largely increased in price. For the coffee I use in my family I am paying 8 cents more per pound than I did at any time during the war. Butter which sold during the war for 50 or 52 cents is now selling at 62 and 64 cents. Fuel is also more costly than during the war. Rents have not decreased. I have endeavored to find some cause for this steady increase in the price of foodstuffs, but have been unable to figure it out, and I put it up to you to enlighten your readers. Tell us why. A. S. LEFFINGWELL.

As Goes the Literary.

Minneapolis Journal: The Maine Legislature will probably change the time of the State election from September to November. Having found it an expensive luxury to tell the Nation how it will go a little later, Maine will leave the field to the Literary Digest.

JOHNSTON'S MOTIVE FOR PARDON SOUGHT

Suspended Governor Signed Papers for Man Already a Fugitive.

DECEIVED, SAYS COUNSEL

Oklahoma City, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Possible ulterior motives on the part of Henry S. Johnston, suspended governor, for the pardoning of R. D. Crosthwaite, listed as an escaped convict, were sought today by the Oklahoma House investigating committee while the senate court of impeachment continued its trial of Johnston, with the pardon in the spotlight there also.

Attorneys for Johnston contend that the governor signed Crosthwaite's pardon last December without making or directing an investigation that would have revealed that the convicted murderer had been listed in State records as a fugitive from justice since 1923. The defense has sought to show that Johnston was deceived by his private secretary, H. E. Sullivan, in regard to the status of the Crosthwaite case.

After eluding process servers for about three weeks, T. N. Crosthwaite, father of the pardoned man, was brought before the committee today and questioned for an hour.

Buried Most of Cash, He Says.

The witness testified that he buried the major portion of $1,200 in cash which he obtained on a check the day after his son was pardoned. David L. Faulk, Marshall County representative, had told the house committee and repeated to the senate court today that Crosthwaite had offered him $1,200 if he would obtain a pardon for the son, and that he refused.

Crosthwaite, an elderly shoemaker of Ardmore, maintained that only $50 was expended in obtaining the pardon, and said that was given to Thomas W. Champion, Ardmore attorney for expenses. Crosthwaite denied giving any money to Louis Fischl, partner of Champion and a member of the house of representatives from Carter County. The shoemaker, first refusing to say what he had done with the money other than that he buried it, under severe questioning said that as he did not have a bank account, he hid it in a tin can under about two feet of earth.

Denies Knowing His Whereabouts.

The father denied knowledge of the whereabouts of his son, except that he "supposed" he was in South America. It had been testified earlier that haste in preparing the pardon had been urged to restore citizenship to the younger Crossthwaite so he might obtain a passport and sail for South America to represent an oil company.

Edwin Dabney, State attorney general, told the senate court he had advised the governor, through J. W. Mansell, late pardon and parole officer, that the clemency could be revoked. Mrs. Ernestine Hunt, clerk in the pardon and parole office, testified she had placed a paper purporting to be a revocation before the governor but that he did not sign it. Dabney said he was prepared to proceed with revocation action as soon as he received instructions.

Sullivan testified yesterday that he had asked that the pardon be prepared at the request of James R. Armstrong, advisor of Johnston. The governor's secretary quoted Armstrong as saying the pardon would be "good medicine," but said he had no idea whether Armstrong was referring to political, monetary or other advantages.

Fischl, who appeared at the governor's office in behalf of the pardon, has been a consistent supporter of the administration in the house.

New U. S. Buildings To Cost $9,210,500

Construction Work in 97 Cities Is Recommended by President.

(Associated Press.)

Expenditure of $9,210,500 for the construction of new public buildings in 97 cities scattered throughout the country was recommended to Congress yesterday by President Coolidge.

The proposed appropriation would represent the amount needed to meet the construction costs during the first year. The projects when completed would represent an outlay of $46,760,500.

Under the public buildings act of 1926 Congress authorized the expenditure of $215,000,000 for new public buildings for various cities, other than the District of Columbia. Including the expenditure recommended today, $182,563,635 of the total has been allocated for specific buildings.

BRILLIANT CONCERT GIVEN BY ORCHESTRA

Hungarian Suite Features Philadelphians' Program Under Rodzinski.

DEBUSSY WORK CHARMS

Dr. Arthur Rodzinski proved himself in the leading rank of American conductors yesterday afternoon at the Washington Auditorium when he directed the master musicians of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in a brilliant program before an audience representative of the National Capital. Among those present were the Hungarian Minister and Countess Lazzlo Szechenyi, who came especially to hear the orchestra play the suite, "Hary Janos," by Zoltan Kodaly, a Hungarian composer. This suite was first played in New York in 1926. This was the first time it was heard in Washington.

One of the outstanding features of the concert was Brahms' Symphony, No. 1, in C minor. This was played with all the beauty of tone usual with the Philadelphia Orchestra, with breadth, precision and excellent phrasing.

The indefinite rhythm of the sea was heard in the three symphonic sketches of La Mer (The Sea), by Claude Debussy. Poetical and fanciful, the Debussy number was a pleasing interlude in the program and the listeners could readily hear the sounds of the mighty ocean from dawn to noon, the sport of the waves, and the marvelously interpreted dialogue of wind and sea.

Dr. Rodzinski was called to the front of the stage many times by the enthusiastic audience. Each time he waved his baton to the orchestra to rise and share the applause.

On February 26 the final concert of the season of the Philadelphia Orchestra will be given at the Washington Auditorium.

Although Washington has enjoyed the guest conductors with the orchestra this season, yet it has regretted the absence of Leopold Stokowski, the permanent leader, who has been prevented by illness from appearing here more than once.

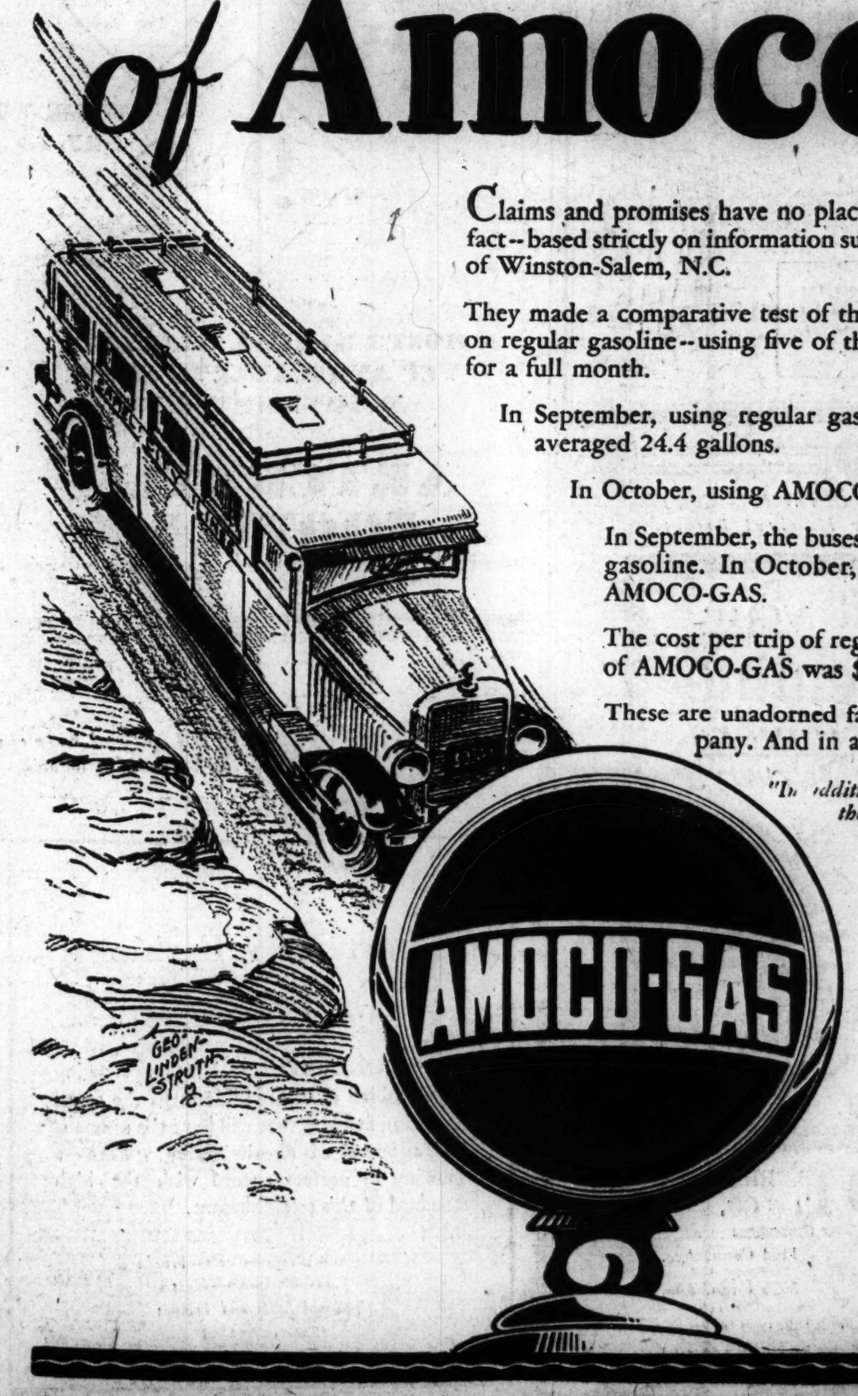
Facts and Figures that convinced a big bus company of the economy of Amoco-Gas



Claims and promises have no place in this advertisement. It's a statement of fact--based strictly on information supplied by the Camel City Coach Company of Winston-Salem, N.C.

They made a comparative test of the cost of operating on AMOCO-GAS and on regular gasoline--using five of their big fleet of buses--keeping close tab for a full month.

In September, using regular gasoline--the amount of gas used per trip averaged 24.4 gallons.

In October, using AMOCO-GAS--the average was 18.7 gallons.

In September, the buses averaged 8.5 miles per gallon on regular gasoline. In October, they averaged 11.1 miles per gallon of AMOCO-GAS.

The cost per trip of regular gasoline was $4.15--the cost per trip of AMOCO-GAS was $3.93.

These are unadorned facts from the records of this big bus company. And in a letter reporting this test, they add:

"In addition to the saving in gasoline, AMOCO-GAS gave the motors better and smoother acceleration, easier starting and a marked decrease in spark plug and carbon trouble. ALL THE COACHES ON OUR NORTH CAROLINA DIVISION ARE NOW BEING FILLED WITH AMOCO-GAS AND WE HOPE YOU WILL MAKE IT AVAILABLE ON OUR OTHER DIVISIONS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE."

Straight facts and figures--that's all--but the most convincing proof of the economy of AMOCO-GAS!

Complete Description

MAKE no mistake about what these books are. The set contains 60 different books, or 60 separate volumes. Each volume measures 3½x5 inches, and the books run to 64 pages each. The type is 8-point (the size used in the average daily newspaper), and it is clear and easy to read. The manner of setting these books enables us to put 15,000 words of text in each book, so you see the books are not sketchy, or mere "outlines." Each text is complete in itself. The total number of pages in the set is 3,488; the total number of words exceeds 825,000! Is not this a bargain at $2 98? And we pay the postage to your address! Many of the books have illustrations or diagrams to make the text more understandable. The books are uniformly bound in stiff, substantial covers. You will be amazed and delighted with the worth of this set.

Easy to Understand

TEXTBOOKS are often dry and musty. This Educational Course will be found refreshingly different from the usual educational volume. Every book has been written with the reader constantly in mind. Every page is clear and readily understandable by the average person. No attempt is spared to provide books which every one can use to learn without the aid of an instructor.

Every book in this 60-volume set is self-teaching—that is the plan that underlies them all, to make no instructor necessary. Of course, the books are of no value unless you read them with the determination to learn. There is no royal road to knowledge just by letting your eyes run idly over the printed page! But if you have real ambition, then these books to help you get ahead—these are books which may be of more genuine benefit to you than all four years of formal high school training.

The simplicity of these books is truly amazing. You will be gratified to find them entirely lucid in every way. No subject is kept difficult—all are presented to you so that you can get the most out of them. Just reading these books is educative to an extent that you can not realize unless you try the experiment! Furthermore, every volume is interesting. The type is of a size to make reading easy. The authors have been interested in their subjects, and this makes it certain that those subjects are presented in a delightfully fascinating manner.

What makes some textbooks difficult for the ordinary reader is that essential facts have been left out—such facts to be supplied by the teacher. In this Educational Course every fact is inserted in the text. With attention and determination a thorough grasp can be had of the subjects represented in this course (see the complete list at right). It is not necessary to ask questions—every question has been foreseen and already answered by the writers who have made this set a marvel of clearness and completeness.

Answers Questions Like These

All of these questions, and hundreds of others, are understandably answered in this 60-volume EDUCATIONAL COURSE, totaling some 825,000 words of text—and the price of 60 books is only $2.98, payment in full. This price includes the postage to your address. At such an amazingly low cost, can you honestly afford to be without a set of books which promise to be so useful and valuable to you?

(1) Who said: "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise?" (2) What is meant by "squaring the circle?" (3) What have the following names in common: Van Buren, Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Pierce? (4) What are the four forms of English Composition? (5) What is Psychology? (6) Who were Donatello, Cellini, Bologna, Rodin? (7) What is the Milky Way? (8) Who was Delilah? (9) What famous speech begins: "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears?" (10) What do the following mean: (a) "Sprechen sie Deutsch;" (b) "Parlez-vous francais;" (c) "Habla usted Espanol?" (11) How far does a falling body drop in the first second after starting from rest? (12) What does "ibid." mean? (13) What was the Roman god of war? (14) What were the three orders of Greek architecture? (15) What chiefly caused the U. S. Civil War?

CONSIDER for a moment the wide scope of these sixty books—think just how comprehensive they are! There are 825,000 words in these sixty volumes. They include a wonderful variety of subjects, from history and economics and literature to mathematics, foreign language and the arts. Even commercial subjects, such as geography and typewriting, are included. You get a substantial foundation in the arts, and an insight into the great world of science. Then there are the handy reference volumes, the alphabetical dictionaries, which give you concise information just when you need it and exactly as you want it.

Four foreign languages—the languages which most English-speaking people desire to learn—are given in this set. These foreign languages are self-teaching in these handy volumes. They may be readily grasped with the aid of these books.

Variety of Subjects

Everything you need is here—this series is compact and complete in itself. This is a course crammed with valuable information and useful knowledge. There are two volumes of questions and answers (quizzes) with which you may test your knowledge from time to time. There is that excellent general treatise on "How to Study"—this work alone is really worth the entire price of the set in the valuable hints it gives and in the manner in which it enables the average person to study in such a way that he will get the most possible good out of his efforts.

You will find it invaluable to have at hand many of these books which you may not use at first. Though some of the subjects may seem to you apart from your present interests, they will sooner or later come in handy. Every one, today, should have a representative library of reference to which he can turn in search of facts when he requires them. That is what makes this course so thoroughly useful, and that is why sixty volumes were chosen as the ideal number of books for the set.

In our modern civilization, with the miracles of modern printing, knowledge is within every one's reach. There is no longer any excuse for any individual to remain in ignorance. Lack of knowledge is not tolerated. Today you must be progressively alert—keep abreast of the times—and maintain a standard of education that is on a par with the knowledge of your fellows. This 60-volume EDUCATIONAL COURSE will be a forward step in this direction; these sixty books will be worth far more than $2.98 to you in achieving this much to be desired result. Mail that blank before it is too late!

What do the words "A High School Education" mean? They mean a thorough grounding in those essentials of modern knowledge which enables a person to be the most efficient in the everyday activities of his work and of his contact with others. When it is required that a person have a High School Education, it is meant that such a person must be equipped with a substantial background of English, History, General Literature, some Languages, Commercial Subjects (Business and Economics), Mathematics, Science and the Arts. It is expected that such a person will have his intelligence alert and trained to enable him to learn new things readily, to know where to look for facts not already in his possession; in short, to be a man or a woman aware of those fundamentals which form the basis of every education and of all culture.

Probably you have often felt the lack of knowledge you really ought to have at your command. Perhaps you did not get the most out of your school days, or possibly you were obliged to leave school before you had completed your education. Or your High School training has slipped into the past, and you are "rusty" on many subjects. Whatever the reason for the lack, you feel that the void is there—and you want to fill in the gaps! LOADING OF FREIGHT SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Growth of 20,704 Cars for Week Ended February 2 Is Reported.

CREDIT WARNING IS ISSUE

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Loading of revenue freight reached 946,892 cars during the week ended February 2, an increase of 20,704 cars over the week preceding, according to a compilation for the country as a whole, made public here yesterday by the car service division of the American Railway Association.

Increases over the week prior developed in the total loading of all commodities, except coke and forest products, which showed slight decreases. The total for the week of February 2 was an increase of 20,630 cars over the corresponding week in 1928, but a decline of 18,722 cars under the same week in 1927.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week totaled 332,339 cars; coal loading, 211,094 cars; ore loading, 8,669 cars; and coke loading, 12,481 cars; all representing substantial increases over the same week in 1928.

Grain and grain products loading amounted to 49,718 cars; live stock loading, 27,508 cars; merchandise less than carload lot freight, 245,630 cars; and forest products, 59,453 cars, all representing decreases under the corresponding week last year.

All districts except the Southern and Northwestern reported increases in the total loading of all commodities compared with the same week in 1928, while all except the Eastern, Central-western and Southwestern districts reported decreases compared with the same period in 1927.

Loading of revenue freight in 1929, with comparative figures for the two years preceding, is as follows:

Four weeks in January..	3,570,978	3,448,893	3,756,860
Week ended February 2..	946,892	926,262	965,664

At Odds on Board's Admonition.

A sharp division of opinion concerning the wisdom of the Federal Reserve Board's latest effort to control speculative credit, with bankers, brokers and even politicians aligning themselves with or against the central banking agency in the matter, has definitely crystallized in the week that has passed since the board's admonitory statement was issued.

Critics of the board's action maintain that it has overstepped its authority in attempting to influence the course of the market, while its supporters hold that the body not only has the power, but can effectively demonstrate it. The latter group recognizes that the board has used this power cautiously, only because of reluctance to increase rates for ordinary business, and for fear of causing importation of too much gold from England.

In the political arena, Senator Heflin has come to the support of the board in its opposition to speculative loans, while Chairman McFadden, of the House banking and currency committee, and Representative Black, of New York, are inclined to be critical. Discussing this development, the Wall Street Journal editorially has called upon the board to change its tactics so as to forestall a "political tournament" in the banking field feeling that this will result in greater injury to business than any contraction in credit.

Attempt Is Termed "Futile."

Among the voices raised against the board is that of Theodore Prince, head of the New York Stock Exchange firm of Theodore Prince & Co., who in a statement issued yesterday characterized as "futile" the attempt to control the flow of credit into the stock market. He charged that the board had no more cause to be aroused over the purchase and sale of stocks than it had over the purchase and sale of real estate. The time has not come, he said, when this country has seen fit to dictate what any one should do with his surplus money.

On the other hand, Norman Merriam, of Samuel Ungerleider & Co., told Princton students that the Federal Reserve authorities have ample powers to make effective their ban on operations of the member banks which aid in maintaining speculation.

Calling attention to circumstances that have led many people to the conclusion that the Federal Reserve authorities have lost control of the money market, Benjamin M. Anderson, president of the Chase National Bank, is emphatic in stating that this is an illusion. The Federal Reserve authorities, he says, can control the money market if they will.

Schiavone Elected President.

Joseph Schiavone, former president of the International Exchange Bank, yesterday was elected president of the new Citizens Mortgage Corporation at the organization meeting held at the offices of the company, 475 H street northwest.

Other officers elected were Dr. Salvatore Floria, vice president and treasurer; John Vacarro, assistant treasurer, and Frank T. Fuller, secretary. Directors are Fernando Cuniberti, Louis Cari, Charles A. Facchina, Salvatore Federico, Dr. Salvatore Floria, Frank T. Fuller, G. Prifoni, J. Heffron, G. G. Loehler, Hilleary O. Offutt, jr., G. Panetta, Joseph Schiavone, Frank J. Sloan, Alfonso Tana and John Vaccaro.

The election of President Cuniberti, of the International Exchange Bank, to the board of directors of the new finance company, whose head was the first president of the International Exchange Bank, brings these two institutions into closer business harmony and insures the fullest cooperation of both organizations in the interest of those they serve. There is an effective liaison between the two. President Schiavone is also a director of the bank. It was stated yesterday that the capital stock of the Citizens Mortgage Corporation, $250,000, has already been more than half subscribed.

Ord Preston Is Reelected.

Ord Preston yesterday was reelected president of the Washington Gas Light Co. at the annual meeting of the directors.

Other officers reelected were Robert D. Weaver, vice president; George M. Whitwll, secretary; Edward T. Stafford, assistant secretary; Thomas B. Gardner, second assistant secretary; Lawrence Townsend, treasurer; A. Gray Dawson, assistant treasurer; Frank R. Holt, second assistant treasurer; Richard A. Ennis, comptroller; C. C. Bayly, assistant comptroller; John L. Schick, assistant comptroller; Minor, Gatley & Drury, general counsel.

Dividends Total $67,100,000.

The New York Life Insurance Co.'s dividends to policyholders in 1929 will amount to $67,100,000, according to the company's annual statement, published elsewhere in this paper. President Darwin P. Kingsley estimates that in round figures the total premiums for the year amounted to $256,000,000, while the total cash payments to policyholders and beneficiaries were $156,000,000. The difference, $100,000,000, was required by law to be added to the company's reserves during 1928.

Mr. Kingsley gives a simple definition of life insurance "reserves"—namely, "funds set aside, from which future liabilities are to be met." He says: "A policy of life insurance is almost exactly like a bond. It will mature some day. Nearly all bonds mature at a definite date. Most policies of life insurance mature at an indefinite date, but all will mature in some form within a limited period of years."

The company's new insurance for 1928 amounted to over $909,000,000. The total insurance in force on December 31 exceeded $6,781,000,000, and the total admitted assets amounted to $1,535,080,347.55.

Robots

One of the popular plays, some years ago, was "R. U. R." in which the author pictured a future age in which all work was done by manufactured metal men, which he called "robots."

The imagination of this author was not so far flung as many, who saw this show, intimated. For even today, you may have the equivalent of paper men working for you. Such are the First Mortgage Notes issued by Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company for they are working day and night to return you interest at 6% on your savings.

You may have the comfort of being served by these faithful men, if you will consult with us before making your next investment.

American Service Company
First Mortgage 15 Year 6% Gold Bonds, Series A
(With Stock Purchase Warrants)
Due January 1, 1944
Price 99 and Interest, Yielding about 6.10%

The First Mortgage Bonds will carry non-detachable Warrants, void after December 31, 1933, entitling the holder to purchase Common Stock of the Company, subject to Indenture provisions, at the rate of thirty (30) shares for each $1,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds at $16.00 per share. If the Bonds are redeemed prior to January 1, 1934, the Warrants thereupon become detachable.

The following is summarized in part from the letter of Mr. J. A. Gibson, Vice-President of the Company:

Business and Territory: American Service Company owns and operates, including properties to be acquired, under centralized management ice utility properties located in 13 adjoining southern and south-central states. The principal cities served are Houston, Galveston, Beaumont, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas; Shreveport and Monroe, Louisiana; Montgomery, Alabama; Leavenworth and Pittsburg, Kansas; Davenport, Iowa; Joplin, Missouri; Hot Springs, Arkansas; Chattanooga, Nashville and Knoxville, Tennessee; Atlanta, Georgia; Asheville and Concord, North Carolina; and 27 other cities and towns in Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. The aggregate population of these communities is about 2,270,000, while the entire territory served by the plants has a population of approximately 4,600,000.

The properties include 72 ice manufacturing plants having a total daily capacity of approximately 4,402 tons, in addition to car icing, cold storage and other service facilities. These properties include land owned in fee, substantial buildings, complete ice-making machinery of standard types, delivery equipment, and cold storage buildings and equipment. The plants are without competition in supplying ice in 20 communities, and in the other cities the plants rank as important units in the ice business.

The Company owns all outstanding Common Stock of Community Ice Company, which owns and operates, including properties to be acquired, ice properties located in North Carolina, serving 8 communities having a population of about 120,000. This subsidiary has 11 ice manufacturing plants with daily capacity of 475 tons.

Security: These Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be secured by first mortgage on all fixed properties of the Company now owned, and on all such property hereafter acquired, against which any bonds may be issued under the mortgage. The net sound value of the fixed property of the Company upon completion of present financing, as recently determined by independent engineers on basis of depreciated value of the property, amounts to over $14,800,000. This issue represents approximately 47% of this sound valuation. The Indenture will contain provisions restricting the issuance of additional bonds.

Earnings: The properties have been independently audited for the 12 months ended August 31, 1928, except certain properties for the 12 month periods ended June 30 and October 31, 1928. The combined revenues, expenses and earnings are certified as follows:

Gross Revenue, excluding Subsidiary Company Operations	$4,579,600.92
Operating Costs and Expenses, including Maintenance and Local Taxes	3,117,424.95
Net Earnings before Interest, Depreciation, Income Taxes	$1,462,175.97
Net Earnings from Subsidiary Company, after all Charges	25,490.85
Total Earnings	$1,487,666.82
Maximum Annual Interest upon these Series A Bonds	420,000.00

The balance after deducting interest, depreciation, Federal and State income taxes, and preferred dividends, including American Service Company equity in wholly-owned subsidiary company earnings after all charges, is equal to more than $1.55 per share on 225,000 shares of Common Stock outstanding.

Management: The management is in the hands of experienced ice and public utility men, whose ability as efficient operators has been thoroughly demonstrated not only in connection with this Company's operation, but over long periods through formerly owning and operating ice and other utility properties in the territories served by American Service Company.

A circular more fully descriptive of this issue will be sent on request.

LA FOLLETTE FUND INQUIRY HERE ASKED

Wisconsin Report Urges Criminal Cases Against Other Progressives.

STATE LAW HELD BROKEN

Madison, Wis., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Warfare between progressive and conservative wings of the Republican party of Wisconsin flared up again today when special State's Attorney Arthur Barry recommended criminal action against a group of leaders of the former faction, including Joseph D. Beck, defeated candidated for governor.

The recommendation was contained in a report submitted to Judge S. B. Schein, of superior court, following conclusion of an investigation conducted by Mr. Barry, which he said revealed violation of the State corrupt practices act in connection with campaign expenditures.

Named in the Report.

Those named besides Beck are Henry Huber, lieutenant governor; Theodore Damman, secretary of state; John W. Reynolds, attorney general; Samuel Sigman, secretary of the progressive party; publishers of the Capital Times, a progressive organ, and Richard Lee, an attorney.

Barry asked that testimony brought out during the inquiry regarding expenditures incident to United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette's campaign be turned over to a senatorial committee in Washington for investigation.

The testimony of the investigation, Barry said, revealed that $131,191.26 had been expended in behalf of Beck, Dubner, Dammann, Reynolds and La Follette.

Sigman was drawn into the charges because he is alleged to have "maneuvered the accounts and reports of the progressive committee, with its consent, to make them conform to the corrupt practices act."

The amount expended would indicate that each candidate used approximately $26,000 in the campaign, the report said. The State law permits the expenditure of only $5,000 for a United States senatorial candidate and $1,500 for candidates for lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general.

Based on Special Edition.

The charge against the Capitol-Times was based on the publication of a special edition of the newspaper in which the election of progressives was advocated. The progressives did not file a report showing the amount expended on the publication or upon whom the burden of the expense fell.

Lee was held liable for prosecution, because he refused to divulge the addresses of nine persons who were named in the report of campaign expenditures filed with the secretary of state as contributors.

Legal skirmishes between progressives and conservatives over alleged excessive campaign expenditures have characterized the political situation in Wisconsin since the primary election last September. Action against the governor, Walter J. Kohler, conservative leader, is pending. Progressives are seeking to oust him from office for alleged violation of the corrupt practices act and have succeeded in bringing the case into Sheboygan County Court.

Mauretania Lands $8,700,000 in Gold

Yellow Metal Consigned to Five Houses; Similar Sum Due on Paris Today.

New York, Feb. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Some very popular local color arrived today aboard the Cunard Liner Mauretania—just $8,700,000 worth of gold for American financial houses.

This gold shipment is only one of many in the last few weeks, representing gold purchases in England by American banks. Of the sum which arrived today, $1,000,000 goes to Dillon Read & Co., $2,000,000 to the New York Trust Co., $1,500,000 to the Central Trust Co., $2,500,000 to Goldman, Sachs & Co., and $1,700,000 to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

A caravan of armored trucks was waiting on the lower level of the pier when the Mauretania tied up. As soon as the liner was fast in her berth, the bullion was unloaded and the caravan pushed for the United States Assay Offices in Wall street. The French Liner Paris will arrive tomorrow with a like amount.

GARDEN SONG.

("Dr. Georg Goretz, of Berlin, perfects an electro-ultra-micrometer, which enables him to hear grass and plants grow."—News item.)

I like to hear the blades of grass a-growing;
It's odd to hear them stretching in the dawn;
I find that it's conducive.
To comfort most exclusive
To sit around and listen to a lawn.

I love to hear the weeds maturing loudly;
It's music that enchants me more and more;
I'm very fond of hearing
The burdock in the clearing
Beyond the barn where dandelions roar.

The charlock I can tell whene'er I hear it;
The pigweed has a pitch that's all its own;
The ragweed and the thistle
Are known to sing and whistle,
The plantain has a most peculiar tone.

When I'm not occupied with greater matters
I like to stroll about the garden near
And listen by the hour
To growing cauliflow'r
And hear the yellow corn come up by ear.

The turnip is a plant that's rather noisy
Except when it is old and on the wane,
But if you want commotion
There's nothing, I've a notion Quite like an onion with a growing pain.

I know the sound of celery whenever
I hear it in the field or hothouse bed,
And I get some employment
And innocent enjoyment
Just harking to the cabbage get ahead.

I like to hear the archichokes achoking;
For footsteps of the running bean I yearn;
I note the parsnips mutter
For their supply of butter
And listen to the yellow turnips turn.

Broccoli plants just love to sit and gossip;
The eggplants say a lot of things that hurt,
But these old ears have never Heard any plant whatever
Like spinach when you want to get the

Toot! Toot!

The Long Island Railroad has turned to song in its safety first campaign. It is distributing "Safety All the Time," for voice, piano, trombone and orchestra bells, and it thinks there would be fewer accidents if everybody would learn the words and music. All out for a rehearsal at the nearest grade crossing tonight! Bring harps!

Well, It Sounds Logical Enough.

"Air traffic will grow. Those that establish paying lines will prosper."—Mr. Brisbane.

* * * *

Whisky, it is now announced, is not a cure for snakebite. But snakebite ought to be a great relief from most present-day whisky.

He Had To.

Well, President-elect Hoover landed a 45-pound sailfish in short order and with little difficulty. Can you imagine the blow to Florida if he hadn't?

* * * *

Still, the sailfish in this instance, acted the part of a snap. It even kept the next President waiting. There is a probability it had heard of him as the great food administrator and assumed he was merely distributing rations.

Five Deaths Mar Revelry As Mardi Gras Fete Closes

New Orleans, La., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Mardi Gras carnival claimed five deaths in New Orleans today.

Henry J. Laux, 38, fell from a truck of maskers and was crushed to death under the wheels of the vehicle.

Four negroes were killed in shootings, one in Shakespeare Park, where a dozen mounted patrolmen were required to quell a general fight.

New Orleans joyously and noisily celebrated Mardi Gras in its traditional manner.

Rex, king of the carnival, who headed a parade of twenty floats throughout the city, had issued instruction to "let joy be unconfined," and it was. From an early hour this morning until late tonight the streets were packed with revelers determined to have as much fun as possible before the 1929 Mardi Gras passed into history.

All of New Orleans and thousands of visitors turned out to give Rex a welcome befitting the king of the carnival. The parade he led depicted the "outline of history" and each float presented a development from the time of Moses to the career of Napoleon.

While Rex rode throughout the city waving and bowing from his throne atop the float his admirers danced, leaped and shouted to show their loyalty to the God of Misrule. The carnival revelers were dressed in all kinds of outlandish costumes.

The Druids and Comus parades also were held to supplement that of Rex, and earlier in the day King Zulu led his negro admirers in a procession. Tonight the Rex, Comus and Druids balls were held.

But that was not all of Mardi Gras. Unnumbered impromptu parades were held. The masked merrymakers would parade on the slightest provocation, or for no reason at all, and were always acclaimed with cheers. In addition to the more formal balls tonight there were hundreds of less pretentious affairs.

Promiscuous kissing was in order until dusk tonight and the opportunity was not passed idly by. At dusk, however, the masks had to be removed, in compliance with a municipal law, and promiscuous kissing was no longer in order.

The King of Carnival this year was William H. McLellan, local business man, and his queen was Miss Beecye Casanas, debutante. He met her at the Boston Club and drank to her health. Tonight they were the center of attraction at the Rex ball.

Mardi Gras, the pre-Lenten celebration, ended tonight, and 40 days of fasting and prayer are scheduled to follow.

Chicago Robbed of Millions In Paving Work, Is Charge

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Chicago was jarred into an acute realization today of the sorry plight of its streets.

The city has been mulcted of millions of dollars in paving work in the last twelve years, Alderman John A. Massen informed a committee of the council.

His findings, he said, were a result of five months' investigation, during which 72 cores, or samples, of paving were taken from the streets and subjected to compression and thickness tests.

Carelessness in laying pavements, skimping on materials, and negligence in city inspection caused the wholesale loss to the city and property owners, the alderman declared.

Examination of the samples of pavements showed:

Fifty-eight per cent of the cores were not as thick as specified in contracts, the average shortage being, .846 of an inch.

Forty-one per cent were under the strength expected from the mixtures specified in contracts. The average lack of strength was 63 per cent.

"There is only one answer to the lack of thickness," Alderman Massen said. "That is, the contractors did not build the streets as thick as specified. Lack of strength may come from two things—sloppy work and skimming on the cement used."

Alderman Massen said he would demand that the council finance committee appropriate $30,000 to complete the investigation of the "street condition" committee started last fall.

Of the 72 cores, the committee reported, two were taken from each of 36 paving jobs laid from 1926 to 1928. Forty-four were of streets with concrete bases and asphalt surfaces. Thirty-three of these were 15 per cent short in thickness. Several of the bases were so rotten they crumbled when touched by the drill.

Cores were sent to Pittsburgh for tests, less than half of them meeting requirements.

PACKARD

Available in Three Price Ranges

FINE CAR enthusiasts who desire the supreme luxury and distinction of Packard Eight transportation today have a wide choice in models and in prices.

For the famous Packard Straight-Eight, acknowledged both at home and abroad as the finest of all fine cars, is now available in three complete and separate lines—and in three distinct price ranges.

These three lines—the Standard Eight, the Custom Eight and the De Luxe Eight—differ only in size, in detail of appointment and in the degree of individuality obtainable in upholstery and in color. In fundamental design and in quality of materials and craftsmanship they are alike—finer in engineering than any cars Packard has built before. Each Packard Eight today is a "Packard" in the fullest sense of that significant word.

We invite you to come in and see the three new Packard lines, to learn from actual figures why it is more economical, over three or four years, to own and operate a Packard Eight than to drive a succession of lesser cars during the same period of time.

The Packard Eight is a long-lived car, providing more miles of luxurious and distinguished transportation than the average owner ever uses. When will you take the model of your choice for a trial drive?

The Packard Standard Eight is priced from $2435 to $2835—the Custom Eight from $3175 to $3850—and the Eight De Luxe from $4585 to $5985—at the factory. Individual custom cars are also available to order on the De Luxe chassis.

If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the Packard Payment Plan most attractive. Many take possession of their new cars without any cash outlay—and with the small monthly payments made smaller because the used car allowance exceeds the down payment on the new car.

Your Complexion is always Lovely!

This is the story of a clear skin that comes from a strong, healthy body and the right number of rich, red-blood-cells.

Your happiness may depend upon a clear skin

BEAUTIFUL is the companionship that abounds in contentment, joy and happiness.

It is no wonder then that good health plays an important part in the affairs of people. Good health is the way to attract, hold interest, and above all inspire deeper love.

Take the skin, for example. Pimples, boils, eczema and sallow complexion are usually but symptoms of a deeper—a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

These outward troubles are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Steal away joy and happiness—and sometimes love.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered.

You, too, may have a lovely complexion, rosepetal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Without plenty of rich, red-blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy beautiful women.

Rich, red-blood, is the means of giving you an appetite, firm flesh, strength, sound sleep, steady nerves, a smooth, clear skin.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes, you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

Thousands of users have testified to the benefits of S.S.S. in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

Take S.S.S. at mealtime. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effects.

All good Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

The Children

By Edith Wharton

A sparkling serial story by one of America's foremost novelists at the gleaming heights of her power.

SYNOPSIS.

Martin Boyne, a civil engineer, who has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, is taking an ocean trip. He is looking forward to another fortnight of solitude, when the steward places a chair next to his tagged "Mrs. Cliffe Wheater." Cliffe Wheater was a schoolmate of his at Harvard. His wife was a friend of those days. Boyne is puzzled by the varied types of children in the entourage and further mystified by its leader. He is told by the gray-haired woman called "Scopy" her name is Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheaters. The oldest boy's name is Terry, and his health is poor. "Scopy" recounts the tangled love affairs of the Wheaters to explain the group for Boyne. Boyne begins to mull over his own affairs, particularly with a Mrs. Sellars. Hilberte, "unattainable," he recalls her husband has died. Terry, the heir-apparent to the Wheater fortune, asks Boyne to intercede on his behalf with his parents to obtain a tutor.

CHAPTER VI.

THERE was no doubt about the Wheaters' welcome. When Boyne entered the big hall of their hotel on the Grand Canal he instantly recognized Cliffe Wheater in the florid figure which seemed to fill the half-empty resonant place with its own exuberance. Cliffe Wheater had been just like that at Harvard. The only difference was that he and his cigar had both grown bigger. And he seemed to have as little difficulty in identifying Boyne.

"Hullo!" he shouted, so that the hall rocked with his greeting, and the extremely slim young lady in a Quaker gray frock and endless pearls to whom he was talking turned her head toward the newcomer with a little pout of disdain. The pout lingered as her eyes rested on Boyne, but he perceived that it was not personally addressed to him. She had a smooth egg-shaped face as sweetly vacuous as that of the wooden bust on which Boyne's grandmother's caps used to be done up, with carmine lips of the same glossy texture, and blue-gray eyes with long lashes that curved backward (like the bust's) as though they were painted on her lids; and Boyne had the impression that her extreme repose of manner was due to the fear of disturbing this facial harmony.

"Why, Martin, dear!" she presently breathed in a low level voice, putting out a hand heavy with rings; and Boyne understood that he was in the presence of the once-redundant Joyce Wheater, and that in her new fashion she was as glad to see him as ever.

"I've grown so old that you didn't recognize me, but I should have known you anywhere!" she reproached him in the same smooth silvery voice.

"Old—you?" he found himself stammering, but the insipidities she evidently awaited were interrupted by her husband.

"Know him? I should say so! Not an ounce more flesh on him than there used to be, after all these years—how d'yer do it, I wonder? Great old times we used to have in the groves of John Harvard, eh, Martin, my boy? 'Member that Cambridge girl you used to read poetry to? Poetry! She was a looker, too! 'Come into the garden, Maud.' * * * Garden they used to call it in those days! And now I hear you're a pal of my son's. * * * Well, no, I don't mean Chipstone—" he smiled largely—"but poor old Terry. * * * Hullo, why here's the caravan! Joyce, I say—you've told them they're to be parked out at the Pension Grimani? All but Chip, that is. Can't part with Chipstone, can we? Here they all come, Judy in the lead, as usual. Hullo, Judy girl! Chippo, old man, how goes it? Give us your fist, my son." He caught his last-born out of Judith's arms, and the others had to wait, a little crestfallen, yet obviously unsurprised, till the proud father had filled his eyes with the beauty of his last achievement. "Catch on to him, will you, Joyce? Look at old man, Chippo! Must have put on another 5 pounds since our last meeting—I swear he has * * * you just feel this calf of his! Hard as a tennis ball, it is. * * * Does you no end of credit, Judy. Here, pass him on to the room next to your mother's. * * * Wish you'd develop that kind of calf, Terry, boy." * * *

"Look at my calfs, too! I can show them upside down!" shouted Bun, bursting in with a handspring upon these endearments; while Blanca, wide-eyed and silent, fastened her absorbed gaze on the golden thatch of her mother's intricately rippled head, and Joyce clasped the children, one after another, to her pearls.

Give Terry a tutor? Boy's own idea, was it? Good old chap—always poking around with books. Wheater would have thought that Terry knew enough to be his own tutor by this time. * * * Funny, wasn't, for a son of his? Cut out to be a doctor of divinity, or president of a university, maybe! Talk of heredity—for him and Joyce to have turned out such a phenomenon! Hoped Chipstone would not turn into a doctor of divinity, too. But, of course, they'd give Terry a tutor—wouldn't they, Joyce? The boy was dead right; he couldn't be loafing about any longer with the women. * * * Did Boyne happen to know of a tutor by any chance? Wheater'ed never before had anything of the sort to bother about. Right up on schools, of course—always meant to send Terry to Groton, but his rotten temperature had knocked that out so now. * * *

The three were sitting after dinner on the balcony of the Wheaters' apartment watching the Grand Canal, gondola-laden, lamp-flecked, furrowed with darting motor boats, drift beneath them in rich coils and glassy volutes. There was nothing done in Venice. Wheather had explained, so early in the season; it was as dead as the grave. Just a handy place to meet the children in, and look them over before they were packed off to the Engadine or Leysin. And besides, the Wheaters had come there to pick up their new steam yacht, the Fancy Girl, a real beauty. They were going on a short cruise in her before they left for Cowes, and Venice was a handy place to try her out. By and by, if Boyne liked, he and Joyce and Wheater might drift out to the Piazza and take an ice at Florian's and a turn on the canal—not very exciting, but the best Wheater could suggest in the circumstances. But Boyne said: Why not stay where they were? And Joyce, with a shrug that just sufficiently displaced the jet strap attaching her dress to her white shoulder, remarked that Cliffe never could stay where he was, but that nobody objected to his painting Venice red * * * he wanted to. * * *

"Where'd I get the paint at this time of year? Nobody here but guys with guide books, and old maids being photo'd feeding the pigeons. * * * Hotels cram full of 'em. * * * Well, look here: about that tutor? You haven't come across anybody on your travels that would do, Martin? University chap, and that sort of thing?"

Martin didn't believe he had: but Mrs. Wheater, lifting a white arm to flick her cigarette into the canal, said: "I know a tutor."

Couzens Wins Big City Slander Suit

Court Rules Senator's Attack on H. P. Cochran Within Rights.

Members of Congress are immune from civil liability for remarks made in speeches before the House or Senate, Justice Wendell P. Stafford ruled yesterday in the District Supreme Court and he dismissed the $500,000 slander suit brought against Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, by Howe P. Cochran, expert tax consultant.

The suit was instituted on the ground that the senator made alleged slanderous remarks against Cochran before the Senate "unofficially" and "unpertinent" to anything before the Senate for consideration. An appeal from the decision was noted by the tax consultant.

Justice Stafford declared congressional immunity was granted in the Constitution, which states "for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place." He held that when a member of Congress addressed either House at a regular assembly he could not speak "unofficially."

Film on Teeth... beware of it

It is the chief source of decay and pyorrhea. The way dentists urge to combat it.

SLIP your tongue across your teeth. Feel that viscous, slippery coating. That is film. You must remove it daily.

According to high dental authority, film is the chief source of decay and an important factor in pyorrhea. It is the cause, too, of dull teeth and those believed to be naturally discolored. To best remove it in the light of modern science a special dentifrice called Pepsodent is urged.

Film—How it destroys

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums—a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum disorders. Film absorbs the stains from food and smoking and gives that cloudy look.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

To remove film use the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film and easily remove it in gentle safety to enamel.

Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. See for once and all how white teeth really are. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter, or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

WIFE DIES AS MATE HELPS GIRL SUICIDE

Iowa Professor Bereaved as He Takes Young Gas Victim Home.

CORONER PLANS INQUEST

Iowa City, Iowa, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—While Dr. Edwin Diller Starbuck, professor of philosophy at the University of Iowa, was accompanying to Minneapolis the body of Miss Linette A. Nelson, an assistant, who committed suicide Sunday, his wife, Mrs. Anna Diller Starbuck, was today found dead in bed at their home.

Coroner George A. Maresh, after a superficial examination, expressed the opinion Mrs. Starbuck died of natural causes and that there was no connection between the two deaths. He assigned cerebral hemorrhage as the cause of death.

An inquest will be held, however, following the return of Dr. Starbuck.

Found Life Intolerable.

Miss Nelson, a graduate student at the university, had been working with Dr. Starbuck as a research assistant on problems of character education. She had received word that her services were to have been terminated shortly, officials learned, and Sunday her body was found in her gas-filled room. A note left by the girl read:

"External circumstances have not driven me to this. I have proved simply that living is intolerable to one whose mind and soul daily destroy his ideals."

Little was known of the girl in campus circles. She was said to have been unobtrusive and retiring. She was about 25 years of age.

Mrs. Starbuck, mother of six children, had been a piano teacher in the School of Music here since 1906.

Dr. and Mrs. Starbuck were married August 5, 1896. She formerly was Miss Anna M. Diller, of Lancaster, Pa. At the time of the ceremony, friends said, Dr. Starbuck adopted Diller as his middle name.

Home Students' Rendezvous.

The Starbuck home was a rendezvous for students interested in art, philosophy and study of religion. Both Dr. and Mrs. Starbuck, who traveled extensively, were recognized as critics of art and music, Mrs. Starbuck having composed many piano selections.

In 1925 Mrs. Starbuck accompanied her husband to Norway when he was selected to deliver the second annual lecture series of the Institute for the Comparative Study of Human Culture.

The Character Education Research Station, in which Miss Nelson was an assistant, was established three years ago by Dr. Starbuck with $20,000 which he and five other Iowans received as first prize in a contest for the best plan of character training.

Robbers Obtain $114 In Chain-Store Holdup

Roberts escaped with $114 yesterday morning after holding up William Conklin, of 1114 F street northeast, manager of the Sanitary Grocery Store at 1301 Fourteenth street northwest and forcing him to open the safe in the store. The robbery occurred as he went to open the store yesterday morning at 6:45 o'clock.

He protested that he did not know the combination to the safe when the men ordered him to open it. They threatened to shoot him if he did not obey, he says. He was unable to furnish a very good description of the robbers, because of the darkness of the early hour.

Salvation Army Head Here Takes Command

Staff Capt. James Asher, of the Salvation Army, recently named divisional commander in the District of Columbia, succeeding Staff Capt. Ernest R. Holz, who was transferred to Oklahoma, yesterday assumed duties here.

Formal induction ceremonies are being planned for late February with officials from Southern headquarters in attendance. "The support given the Washington Community Chest," he said yesterday, "is indicative of the interest shown here in charitable institutions of the city."

Lily Langtry, Once Famous Beauty, Dies in Monte Carlo

Noted Actress, Nearly 77, Was Friend of Edward VII and One of Most Popular Women of Stage; Retired From Public Life in 1915.

Monte Carlo, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Lily Langtry, (Lady de Bathe), famous actress and long known as "The Jersey Lily," died here today after an attack of bronchitis.

The famous beauty had been ailing for three weeks. Her condition grew worse with the cold weather, which has been sweeping all parts of Europe during the last few days.

London, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—An Evening News dispatch from Monte Carlo today stated that Lady de Bathe, more widely known as Lily Langtry, noted actress, was dead of heart disease.

The "Jersey Lily," as she was known to thousands of her admirers, was one of the loveliest women of her day and had a wide circle of friends, including King Edward and other members of royal families in Europe.

She conquered America as well as the rest of the English-speaking theater-going world a generation and more ago and remained a great public favorite to the time of her retirement.

Lady de Bathe, who was almost 77, was stricken ill in London early this winter and left for the Riviera, apparently having reached convalescence last month. The report of her death came as a shock to London and England generally where memories of her triumphs, her beauty and histrionic art were warmly cherished by the older generation of playgoers and members of high British society.

Lily Langtry retired from the stage in 1915, although occasionally she appeared in vaudeville, going to the United States in 1916 for a vaudeville tour. Previously she had appeared many times in America and Canada, and it was said that she had accumulated more than $500,000 on her trip.

From 1916 until 1927, her name did not appear often in dispatches, but in 1927 she was mentioned in connection with a libel case brought by Capt. Peter Wright against Lord Gladstone, son of the late William E. Gladstone, England's "grand old man." Capt. Wright had linked the prime minister's name with that of Lily Langtry in a biography. Lord Gladstone, 73-year-old son of the elder Gladstone, publicly referred to Capt. Wright as a "liar, coward and fool," and the libel suit resulted.

In February, 1927, Lily Langtry, then at Monte Carlo, sent a telegram repudiating testimony of Capt. Wright that he had been told the famous actress at one time was intimate with the elder Gladstone. The telegram read: "I strongly repudiate the slanderous accusation of Peter Wright."

The expression was the first that had come from Lady de Bathe in many years and focused public attention once again upon the woman who for so many years had triumphed both on the stage and in society.

Previous to the receipt of the telegram, Capt. Wright had expressed regret for bringing the actress' name into the case.

Young Hoover Off For Home in Plane

Dines in Spartanburg, S. C., on Return Journey From Florida.

Spartanburg, S. C., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Herbert Hoover, Jr., had dinner in Spartanburg tonight when his plane, in which he had come from Miami, stopped here for more than two hours en route to Richmond and Washington.

The son of the President-elect arrived at 6:20 p. m. and left at 8:00 for Richmond. With only a short stop at the Virginia city Mr. Hoover's plans were to continue on to Washington during the night.

On his flight south to visit his parents he made a brief call at Spartanburg, on that occasion staying only long enough to gather data on the weather conditions.

Woman Claims Injuries On Car; Asks $30,000

Damages of $30,000 were asked against the Washington Railway & Electric Co. in a suit filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs Sarah B. Potter, of 109 Ninth street southeast, alleging personal injuries.

While a passenger on a street car at Alta Vista, Md., on last October 12, Mrs. Potter declared she was thrown to the floor and injured when the vehicle abruptly started. She declared she was injured about the spine and limbs and permanently disabled. Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer appeared for her.

Dry Law Violator Gets 180-Day Term

Accused Quotes Lincoln in Plea for Mercy Without Success.

Convicted of sale and possession of liquor, Max Uber quoted the words of Abraham Lincoln, "malice toward none, charity toward all" in a plea for mercy to Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday in Police Court. The court evidently was not impressed with the plea and sentenced Uber to serve 180 days in the District Jail for sale and pay a fine of $500 or serve an additional 190 days for possession of liquor.

The defendant declared his wife was ill and asked for a light sentence. "Today is Lincoln's birthday and I wish you will recall his immortal words, 'malice toward none, charity toward all.'" Uber declared.

Assistant District Attorney R. P. Camilier told the court an error in spelling saved the defendant from being charged with second offense of liquor violations, as he had been previously convicted under the name of Yuber.

Jardine Will Join Cabinet Discards

Latest Report From Hoover Camp Says Agriculture Head Must Retire.

Latest reports from Hoover's headquarters are that the Cabinet slate brought back by recent visitors is smashed.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, who has been kept in the lists more tightly than any other, except Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, now joins Postmaster General New in the discard.

Dr. Jardine has not as yet received any invitation according to his friends, to remain in charge of the national farming interests, and is reported to have arranged to leave for Idaho, there to take up private enterprise.

Men Arrested After Fight.

Herman R. Nichols, 29 years old, of Vienna, Va., and William A. Perkins, 35 years old, 2607 Wisconsin avenue northwest, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct early yesterday morning, following a fight at 3330 M street northwest. Nichols received a cut over his left eye and was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

A DREAM REALIZED

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO.

(Incorporated under the laws of New York)

A MUTUAL ORGANIZATION, FOUNDED IN 1845

EIGHTY-FOURTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

To the Policy-holders:

Our Eighty-fourth Annual Report has been verified and is being filed with various governmental authorities. May I point out to you, the people chiefly interested, some of its salient facts?

As policy-holders you paid the Company last year in round figures $256,000,000.

The Company paid to you and to beneficiaries $156,000,000.

That left us about $100,000,000.

Our net reserves increased during the year $100,000,000.

We put that $100,000,000 in our reserves.

You may ask, what are reserves?

Broadly speaking, they are funds set aside from which future liabilities are to be met.

We put that $100,000,000 in reserves at the close of the year for that specific purpose.

A policy of Life Insurance is almost exactly like a bond. It will mature some day. Nearly all bonds mature at a definite date. Most policies of Life Insurance mature at an indefinite date, but all will mature, in some form, within a limited period of years.

A sound bond is protected by a Sinking Fund—from which the bond is to be redeemed at maturity. The Sinking Fund is accumulated by yearly deposits.

That $100,000,000 was our 1928 deposit, our addition to the Sinking Fund for that year.

The law requires it. If we had failed to make or could not make that entry (deposit) we would soon be declared insolvent by the Insurance Departments and the Courts.

The reserve increase for 1928 was large, but no larger than the law requires.

That we shall redeem all our bonds (policies) as they come due is certain. You know that.

The other income of the Company was sufficient to pay all the expenses of acquiring $900,000,000 of new business in 1928, the care of about $6,500,000,000 of old business, taxes, $6,700,000, to care of invested funds, the maintenance of other legal reserves and a sum sufficient to pay in 1929 $8,000,000 more in dividends than we paid in 1928, and to increase the general surplus by $4,000,000.

In addition the Company loaned you on the sole security of your policies $52,700,000.

These are round figures, calculated to give you merely an outline sketch of the Company's activities in 1928.

SAVING YOUR MONEY

How much of the $156,000,000 we paid you or to beneficiaries during 1928 and how much of the $52,700,000 loaned you during that year will be lost because unwisely invested? That is a very important question. It goes to the very heart of the usefulness of Life Insurance. To save money by investing it soundly is difficult.

Even men of experience frequently make mistakes.

I do not overstate the truth when I say that few people having small amounts of money to invest do it wisely.

REMEMBER

You can leave the proceeds of your insurance with this Company in trust for your beneficiaries or you can leave any cash due under your policy and the Company will hold it, guaranteeing your principal and not less than 3% interest.

On all such funds we will pay in 1929 (as we have done for some years) 4.6%.

In 1928 you left with the Company in this way under various accounts $28,000,000.

Your total under these accounts on January 1, 1929, was $70,000,000.

That $70,000,000 is not just a deposit. It is mingled with the Company's entire assets and is a part of the Company's liabilities. It is backed, as all our liabilities are, by $1,500,000,000.

Finally study the balance sheet below. There you have the facts about our financial condition, while above you have a picture of the new Home Office: "A Dream Realized."

Show the "Dream" and the balance sheet to your neighbor.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1929. 15

WILLIAMS AGAIN VICTOR OVER WILDERMUTH IN DASH

G. W. Defeated By Bucknell, 48 to 19

Colonials Trail, 20-9, at Half; Seiler in Star Role.

Visiting Center Leads Attack; Makes 7 Straight Fouls.

By GARRETT WATERS.

THE George Washington University Quintet tried once more to get into the winning column last night but failed, the Bucknell College Five, of Lewisburg, Pa., winning 48 to 19 in the H Street Gymnasium.

As expected, the visitors exhibited a well-balanced, flashy team, which swung into momentum soon after play began. A tall rangy lad by the name of Seiler, who took care of the center position, was their chief scoring threat, totaling seven goals from the floor and making good on ten of twelve tosses from the 15-foot mark. Seiler's eye for the rims put the spice into an otherwise listless game.

George Washington looked good only in the first few minutes of play when they passed cut and dribbled in meritorious fashion. This was only momentary, however, as the visitors' belated attack brings out. After getting 2, then 4, and then 6 points in the first few minutes, the Colonials settled down to follow the Bucknell point getters and trailed 20 to 9 at the half.

Colonials Fail to Score Point During 10 Minutes of Play.

The first ten minutes of the second half passed before G. W. got into the scoring column again. Bob Gray, on a shot from the middle of the floor, helped their total to 11 to match the 37-point total collected by Bucknell by this time.

Coach Crum inserted several substitutes and they, at this point, increased the Colonials' total. Tracker sank two baskets, and Canney and Allshouse one each.

Seiler, for Bucknell, displayed the keenest eye for the rims that has been seen here this season in totaling his ten tosses from the 15-foot mark.

Seiler Makes 10 of 12 Foul Shots, Caging Seven in Row.

He caged seven of them in the first half without a miss, while he made good his other three in the second half, out of five chances. Seiler also displayed a penchant for flipping them in from the floor, his seven field goals, including shots from the side, from the center and from underneath the net. He started his team on the right footing by caging two baskets almost immediately after play began.

In George Washington's flashes of early form, Red Allshouse gave a good account of himself. Allshouse led his team in the small scoring it did by caging four baskets for 8 points.

STRIBLING IS GENTLEMAN
—It Would Seem To Be—
TO THE PRIZE RING BORN
By Westbrook Pegler.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—In most discussions of William Stribling, I note a reluctance to give the cocky young man from Georgia his due as a prize fighter. This may be due to his temperamental resemblance to that other distinguished Georgia athlete, Mr. T. R. Cobb, the washed-up ball player who went far in his business, completely sufficient unto himself, not caring who liked or detested him, a lone operator, a frugal spender, himself against the field.

William's money flows like set concrete, his social circle is his family circle. He doesn't fawn on sports writers, and he is a great believer in the even break for Will Stribling. In fact, he likes his breaks about twice as even as the other fellows.

But aside from the fact that William never has fought very dashingly in New York, he has gone his way, dragging the family with him, fighting nobodies by the long dozen wherever the nobodys and the inducement could be found, and by this time he must be a very able prize fighter. Mr. Leo P. Flynn, an old carpetbagger of the prize fight industry himself, offers the opinion that William will hit Jack Sharkey (nee Josef Cuckoshay) on the chin in their contest at Miami Beach and knock him insensible.

Even Defeat of Stupid Strangers Not to Be Taken Lightly.

"Do you know why I think so?" Mr. Flynn inquired. "Because he has been going around the country beating suckers, while Sharkey and all the rest of the big shots, about six of them all told, have been commuting between New York, Boston and Philadelphia, fighting each other.

"It is one thing to learn how to fight five or six different fellows. You get to know their work like your tongue knows the inside of your mouth. But show me a fellow who can roll from one town to another, licking a lot of big, stupid strangers, and never missing, and that's the kind of fighter I want."

William had a long start on the other prize fighters. He was born to the ring, for his mother performed in a genteel boxing act before he arrived and William himself was wearing gloves and performing infant prodigies in a breech clout as soon as he was able to walk. Even his own son, age about three, is now heightening the wholesome, family appeal of the Stribling prize fights around the country by baby antics in the ring with baby boxing gloves.

Willie Predestined to Ring and the Bally Ballyhoo.

It is always slightly upsetting to see a prize fighter's mother lending herself to the ballyhoo of a brutal, smelly business by sitting in the corner embroidering ring trunks while her son fights, but inasmuch as the family lives in the ring, I suppose the lady should be given credit for sincerity anyway.

The idea of hoisting a baby through the ropes to perform as an added, free attraction, appealing to the lady trade and allaying the objection of the pious crusaders for reform, strikes me as sweating the ballyhoo, but out in the small towns where Willie has worked the act has been accepted as a sweet, domestic gesture, showing that Willie is both a loving son and a loving daddy

Boy and man, William has been boxing almost as long as Johnny Dundee He was at it, in unrecorded exhibitions, long before the guides and almanacs

C. U. QUINTET ROUTED BY DUQUESNE

Pittsburgh Five Runs Away With Game in 2d Half, 41-18.

DUQUESNE University, of Pittsburgh, Pa., added its fourteenth victory in eighteen starts last night by defeating Catholic University at Brookland, 41 to 18, dealing the Cardinals their tenth defeat in eleven games. The invaders leave the city with a perfect slate here by virtue of a victory over American University Tuesday night.

The Cardinals gave the visiting quintet a stubborn battle for the first quarter, leading, 7 to 6, at the termination of that period. Hanley and Reilly matched point for point, with Lubic and Stephens, the diminutive guard of the Pittsburghers and star of the fray, and as the first period ended Mullaney's foul shot gave the Cardinals a short-lived lead.

Then the sharpshooters from Pittsburgh, led by this same elusive Stephens and Benedict, who had entered the game during this rally, contrived to give their team a long lead at the half time, 23-9. Capt. Rosenberg, of the visitors, played no small part in this rally by his excellent use of the block play feeding the ball to Stephens on three different occasions, besides making two clever one-hand shots for field goals.

Failure From Foul Line Aids in Defeat of Cardinals.

The Cardinals could not penetrate the Duquesne defense, but missed numerous chances to pull closer to the invaders by poor shooting from the 15-foot line.

During the second half Stephens continued to flash excellent form with his speedy cutting for the basket, drawing no less than five fouls and making good on four. Reilly tried to keep the Brooklanders in the running with two long shots from the center of the floor, but received little assistance from his mates, who passed poorly and consequently could not work the ball down to their basket and had to rely on ineffectual shots from far out. Joey Walsh, the Cardinals' midget guard, played his usually dependable floor game besides contributing a sensational goal from the extreme side court.

MD. YEARLING FIVE BEATS C. U. CUBS

Undefeated Old Line Team Wins, 61-28, As Ronkin Stars.

WITH the BergerRooney-May-Wilson- Chalmers-Ronkin combination functioning in perfect fashion, both on offense and defense, the Maryland Freshmen extended their unbroken string of victories to nine, with an easy victory over Catholic University yearlings, considered by many as their leading rival for top honors in local scholastic circles, by the one-sided score of 61 to 28 on their home floor.

From the time Capt. Berger broke the ice with a follow-up shot a few moments after the action had started, and his mates followed suit, it was just a matter of how large the final score would be. McAree, of the Cardinals, tied matters with a neat goal from under the basket after a brisk scrimmage for possession of the ball. Then Bob Wilson, former Western high star, took matters into his own hand and gave his mates a lead they never relinquished by taking the tap-off and dribbling through the Cathalic U. defense for a beautiful shot.

State Prefers Charges Against Braves Today

Boston, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—State Attorney General Joseph A. Warner announced tonight that he would make complaint in municipal court tomorrow against the Boston Braves as a consequence of his investigation of the Outdoor Recreation League which supported a bill legalizing Sunday sports in this State during the last State election.

Complaint also would be made against O. J. Brusse, of Brookline, treasurer of the league, which raised a fund of $30,000 to wage a campaign in favor of the sports measure, Warner said.

Investigation of the league by Warner started when, in an altercation between officials of the Braves and the Boston city council over the adoption of the Sunday sports measure in Boston, it was charged that the Braves had contributed heavily to the $30,000 fund. It was also charged that Brusse filed a false list of contributors to the fund with the secretary of State to cover contributions made by the Braves.

Football Notoriety Deplored By President of Notre Dame

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (United Press).—Notre Dame will erect a stadium seating 60,000 persons next spring to help keep the football team at home, the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, said today at a luncheon given in his honor by the Notre Dame Alumni Club of New York The stadium will cost $750,000.

"We must have the means of playing games at home," he said. "It is academically not sound to have a band of roving athletes. We're called the Ramblers, but not because we like it."

The Notre Dame Eleven last season played on both coasts, beating the Army in New York and losing to the University of Southern California at Los Angeles.

Father O'Donnell said that crowds from throughout the Middle West would come to South Bend to see Notre Dame play in a suitable stadium.

Answering criticisms of the Notre Dame football policy, Father O'Donnell said he traveled with the team last fall and that at no time did the men discuss football, but spent their time playing bridge, reading and studying.

"We deplore the excessive notoriety that Notre Dame is a place where good football teams are turned out," he said. "No one there is fooled about that, least of all the boys who play. Our boys are first interested in their books

"Football eminence is only a bubble Our friends, Red Grange and C. C. Pyle, taught us that lesson. Grange stands as a monument to this folly."

Tilden Beaten In 3 Sets by Van Ryn

Tilden-Hunter Lose in Doubles; Star Aces a Game.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., made himself the sensation of the new tennis season today by defeating Bill Tilden in three straight sets in the final of the Heights Casino indoor invitation tournament. The scores were 6—1, 6—4, 6—2.

As the former Princeton captain yesterday eliminated Francis T. Hunter in the semifinals, he now has accomplished the remarkable feat of conquering the country's second and first ranking players on successive days. Van Ryn himself is ranked as No. 6. For this young athlete, just returned from two months of play in southern California, Tilden proved considerably easier than Hunter, who was beaten in two sets out of three in an uphill battle.

Van Ryn, with his partner, J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, recent winner of the Canadian championship, added more laurels to his wreath later in the afternoon by winning the doubles final from Tilden and Hunter in a hard four-set match. The scores were 6—2, 9—7, 4—6, 7—5.

Tilden Plays Back Court Game and Is On the Run.

Playing almost exclusively a back court game, Tilden found himself on the run at the very outset before a hard-hitting all-court attack of bewildering versatility. While his own shots occasionally sputtered and flashed in the pan for disconcerting nets and outs to Tilden's audible discomfiture, those of his young opponent were exploding with cannonading effect from baseline to net and back again.

In the second set, Big Bill was able for a time to stem the tide, but even then Van Ryn tore through him at three all. Only at times was the famous Tilden cannon ball serve effective, and when the first ball failed of its mark, the rangy and agile ohnny was well able to handle the second. In one brilliant flash in the first game of the second set, however, Tilden electrified the gallery of about 300 with a rare feat of serving genius. After giving Van Ryn two points by nets, he ran out the game by serving "all the aces in the pack," four straight, three of which were on the first ball.

Van Ryn's Game Not as Spectacular But Proves Effective.

While not so spectacular, Van Ryn's delivery proved fully as valuable an attacking weapon throughout the match

As the pair took the court, there was every evidence that Tilden was in earnest about winning this encounter, although he wore an air of gay sang froid At stake was a handsome trophy which would have been his permanently for the winning, as he has triumphed in this witner fixture for the last two years.

Almost before the spectators knew what was taking place the dynamic Van Ryn had reeled off three straight games, cashing in on Tilden's errors and crashing through his service. In a long, often deuced fourth game, Big Bill managed to carry his service but it was the only one to crown his efforts in the entire set.

Youthful Opponent Travels at Top Speed in Second Set.

Van Ryn was traveling at top speed in the second set and sallying to the net for dazzling volley placements. These tactics, combined with well placed driving, enabled him to break Tilden's service twice while losing his own once to gain the lead and pull out the set, 6—4.

Tilden, who has played little tennis in recent months because of the amateur ban, now removed, and who was 36 years old on Sunday, was breathing hard in the third set and could offer little sustained resistance.

SAILOR TURNS TO TRAINING WITH WILL

Sharkey Goes 3 Hard Rounds With Sparring Mates.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—While Young Stribling angled in Everglades waters today, Jack Sharkey figuratively took the bull by the horns and enjoyed a strenuous round of training.

Avoiding a threatened rain squall, the Boston ex-sailor began his workout an hour ahead of schedule in preparation for his contest with Stribling in Flamingo Park Arena the night of February 27. He sparred one round each with Paul Hoffman, Pat McCarthy and John Grosso.

Sharkey added to his activity a round of jabbing at the light bag, skipped the rope a round, shadow boxed another and then worked on the heavy bag. The day's work was tapered off with a setting-up exercise.

Tomorrow the Georgian will return from the Everglades and get down to business in shaping himself for the fray. He has been taking a daily run of 2 to 3 miles, but will go after his sparring partners hereafter.

Ullrich, 29, of Phillies, Succumbs to Pneumonia

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Frank Ullrich, pitcher on the Philadelphia National Club, died at his home here today of pleurisy and pneumonia, with which he had been ill for the last twelve days.

Ullrich, who was 29 years old, was unmarried and made his home with his stepfather and mother.

Almost the Naked Truth
By JAMES S. COLLINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (N .W.N.S.).—Now is the time to sell railroad and Pullman company stocks short. Annouencement that Notre Dame is to build a stadium at South Bend foreshadows a sharp decrease in their earnings after this year. Knute Rockne and his colorful Notre Dame elevens have been toeing far-flung battle lines for years. No longer will his team flit week after week from Georgia to New York and from California to Baltimore Nor will the railroads and the Pullman company be the only losers through Notre Dame's new policy of playing a game at home once in a while.

The players themselves will miss the broadening educational benefits of extensive travel. In recent years a Notre Dame varsity football player has covered as much ground as a Lindbergh or a Stribling. The Irish were coming to be known as the Wandering Jews of the gridiron. Noncombatant Notre Dame undergraduates rarely saw their heroes in big-time action except in the news reels.

New Yorkers Are Consoled With Army-Notre Dame Fixture.

New York football followers, with whom the Notre Dame eleven has been a prime favorite in recent years, owing to the dashing style of play of Rockne's men, will reflect th satisfaction that in all probability they will continue to have the opportunity to watch the Indianans in action. The Army-Notre Dame game seems to be a fixture, and it is unlikely that the military authorities will permit the Cadets to travel as far as South Bend for that contest, even in alternate years. The Navy-Notre Dame game, played in Baltimore last season, also will probably remain on the Eastern seaboard indefinitely.

Father Time's Steady Play Brings Tilden's Defeat.

Six months' submersion in a suspension bath rid willful Will Tilden of his tennis impurities, but it also seems to have robbed him of some of the elasticity in his 36-year-old props. His first tournament after his reinstatement finds the foremost penitent in the Shrove Tuesday sport news eating crow off young John Van Ryn's racket instead of milk-fed veal, the traditional diet of the returned prodigal.

Maybe the veteran ace will come back far enough to take a few more winning tricks, but it is doubtful now that he will ever regain anything like his old form. Today's score was a victory for the master of them all, Father Time, as well as Van Ryn. Count that day lost whose low descending dew sees old Bill Tilden drop a match, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

The exit gate may be swinging open for Tilden as a front rank tennis star but one distinction is his forever to have and to hold. Long after the chancelleries of the world will have forgotten that he was the No. 1 ranking tennis player of America for nine straight years, they will find in their musty records evidence that he was responsible for making International

MATSUYAMA BEATEN BY SCHAEFER

Chicago Star Victor, 400-331, By Sensational Rally.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Jake Schaefer, former champion from Chicago blasted the title hopes of Kinrey Matsuyama and jumped into a tie for first place with Welker Cochran, Hollywood, Calif., sharpshooter by defeating the tiny Japanese sensation, 400 to 331, this afternoon in a final round match of the 18.2 balk line billiard title tournament. The match ended in the eighteenth inning.

Schaefer added four while Matsuyama picked up five points in the 16th and 17th innings. The former champion ended Matsuyama's title hopes with a fine cluster of 53 to end the match, 400 to 331, in the eighteenth turn.

Schaefer Closes Match With Brilliant Billiard Display.

Schaefer closed the match with a display as brilliant as his play had been mediocre in the opening innings. With Matsuyama leading in the tenth inning, 246 to 54 and Schaefer in constant trouble, the Chicago star found himself and loosed a run of 182.

Schaefer's victory, added to that of Cochran last night, pushed Matsuyama out of first place and all chance of winning the crown with a record of three wins and two defeats Cochran and Schaefer, who will play for the title tomorrow night, now are tied for first place with three victories and one defeat each.

The innings scores:

Schaefer, 2, 7, 10, 7, 9, 2, 17, 24, 0, 54, 182, 2, 1, 19, 8, 1, 3, 52—400.

Matsuyama, 120, 19, 31, 1, 40, 2, 29, 0, 0, 4, 1, 0 15 9, 55, 5, 0—331.

High runs—Schaefer, 182; Matsuyama, 120.

Averages—Schaefer, 22 4-18; Matsuyama, 19 8-17.

In the evening match, Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, making his final appearance as defending champion in the world 18.2 billiard championship tournament defeated Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, 400 to 315. The match lasted twenty innings.

Fritz Maisel Named Baltimore Manager

Baltimore, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Choice of Fritz Maisel, Baltimore International League third baseman, as manager of the club for the coming season was announced today b Charles H. Knapp, club president. Since the death of Jack Dunn, who was manager as well as principal owner, Maisel's name often had been suggested, but announcement was deferred while negotiations were under way for sale of the club. That was still hanging fire today, and in commenting on the appointment of a manager Knapp said "It was impossible to wait any longer. Maisel had proved his ability as manager last year when he took charge of the Orioles during Dunn's suspension."

Labarba Signs for Title Bout Against Graham in Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Sydney Stadium, Limited, boxing promotors, announced today the acceptance of terms by Bushey Graham to fight Fidel Labarba here in an all-American bout for the world's bantamweight championship. It is understood Graham will receive £4,000 for the match.

No fighter now is generally recognized as world's bantamweight champion. Graham, veteran Utica, N. Y., boxer, is accepted in New York as having the best claim to the 118-pound crown since Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, formerly the recognized title holder, outgrew this division.

Labarba retired as flyweight champion to enter Stanford University in September, 1927. He married Mrs. Marjon de Beck, former wife of the cartoonist, in San Francisco last March.

Labarba sailed with his bride for Australia in November. In two fights there he knocked out McAllister in four rounds and scored a victory on points in fifteen rounds over Willie Smith, South African bantam.

Hilltop Relay Winner at 2 Miles

Triumph Over N.Y.U.; Accident Robs Mile Team of Chance.

Sexton Wins in Shot-Put; Nurmi Scores in Slow Time.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Georgetown University trackmen led a contingent of Washington, D. C., athletes in the Meadowbrook A. C. tonight, carrying off two first places in the meet featured by the victory of Percy Williams in the 45-yard dash, in which Karl Wildermuth, of Georgetown, finished second.

Georgetown's 2-mile medley team emerged the victor in a triangular race, leading the New York University quartet over the line in 8 minutes 10 1-5 seconds by virtue of the stellar running of Gerard Gorman and John Carney, the last two baton carriers who cut away a lead gained by New York U. over Tom Milstead and J. Gullicher, and won handily from the Violet.

Hector Falls on Last Turn While in Third Place.

An accident robbed the Georgetown one-mile team of a possible victory in the college relay. Running in third place and gaining rapidly on the leading Fordham and Penn teams, Eddie Hoctor, star Georgetown quarter-miler, fell flat rounding the last turn and Fordham went on to win the race in 3 minutes 32 2-5 seconds.

Leo Sexton, versatile track and field man of Georgetown, reached new heights in the shot put when he won the event with a heave of 87½ feet aided by a 3-foot handicap. He beat out Barney Berlinger, Penn Olympic hero, by 2 feet. Bert Adelman, Georgetown's intercollegiate shot put champion, did not compete.

McKinley Tech High School, of Washington, ran third in the prep school one-mile relay in a close finish which saw Newark Prep win and Mercersburg Academy run second in the fast time of 3:34 8-10.

Fountain, of McKinley Tech, and Quinn, of Maryland, both dash men, failed to survive the preliminary heats in the 45-yard special dash which saw Williams beat Wildermuth for the third time on his American invasion.

Williams Maintains Narrow Lead From Start of Race.

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Percy Williams, of Canada, added another great set of achievements to his list tonight at the Meadowbrook Athletic Club games by twice defeating a picked collection of sprinters to win both his heat and final of a special 45-yard invitation.

After covering the unusual distance in the remarkably fast time of 4 9-10 seconds in the heat, Williams came on to carry off the final in 5 1-10.

Karl Widermuth, of Georgetown, was second; Jimmy Pappas and Chet Bowman, Newark Athletic Club stars, third and fourth, respectively

In adding this latest to his great succession of indoor triumphs, eclipsed only by his Olympic sprint "double," Williams won by narrow but none the less convincing margins. He was just a little better than the others from mark to tape, and his lunge in the final strides each time made victory the more secure. Williams traveled about as fast as 45 yards has ever been traversed indoors, although there is no official world's record for the odd distance. He dug in madly at the start and was ahead by a narrow margin all the way.

Nurmi Wins in Slow Time; Conger Third in His Race

Paavo Nurmi, of Finland, won the 3,000-meter run, but in the slow time of 8 minutes 38 5-10 seconds, and from a field that was only fair. Anderson, Finnish-American A. C., was second, more than a lap behind, and Bob Dalrymple, Boston A. A., third.

Whether or not Nurmi tried to touch his world record time of 8:22 2-5, in hopes of partly stoning for his defeat at 1 mile Saturday night by Ray Conger, he fell far short of that mark.

Comparatively slow though the time was it appeared hard work for Paavo all the way. There was something of straining and forcing about his hitching stride as he drove himself around with occasional worried glances at his famous watch.

Averages—Schaefer, 22 4-18; Matsuyama, 19 8-17.

In the evening match, Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, making his final appearance as defending champion in the world 18.2 billiard championship tournament defeated Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, 400 to 315. The match lasted twenty innings.

California High Star To Join Nats Next June

Manager Walter Johnson yesterday announced that he plans to give Willard Hershberger, catcher and all-around player, who is starring with the Fullerton (Calif.) High School, a trial with the Nationals after school closes next June.

Hershberger, 19 years of age, is highly recommended to Johnson by some of his friends on the West Coast. It was from Fullerton High, by the way, that Johnson practically stepped into professional ranks. Hershberger, the Nat leader has been informed by several whom he rates as good judges of baseball talent, is a hard hitter and not only a first class backstopper but also promising in either the in or out field.

Hilltop Team Superior in Overtime

Lead See-saws From Start; G. U. Rallies to Tie Score.

Debuskey Makes 16 Points; 500 See Struggle.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 12.—A first-rate Georgetown University basket ball team had to go an extra period to defeat Johns Hopkins in a first-rate contest tonight at Carlin's Park. The Hilltoppers added 4 points to their total in the five minutes of extra playing time, while holding the locals to a lone foul shot, and thereby triumphed by the score of 38 to 35.

It was a well-played, highly interesting game from start to finish. The pace was fast enough, the generalship good, the passing and shooting entirely acceptable and the defensive work comparable to that in the other departments.

Besides, the struggle was one of those see-saw affairs, which caught and held the interest of the spectators all the way. Only some 500 fans thought enough of the attraction to attend the game, but they were rewarded with one of the most engaging cage entertainments of the season.

Hopkins' performance was undoubtedly its best for the current campaign. Gene Debuskey, center and key man of the Blue Jay outfit, was at the top of his form, and whenever that is the case the team opposing the Jays usually has its worries. Aside from outjumping the Georgetown center consistently, making himself the wedge by which his mates pried their way into a tight opposing defense, figuring prominently in the play under both baskets and leading both teams in scoring, with a total of 16 points, Debuskey passed a comparatively quiet evening.

The Hopkins center was absent when Hopkins met the Hilltoppers in a previous game in Washington and Georgetown scored an overwhelming victory.

Tonight there was an entirely different story. Taking an early lead of 5 points at 11 to 6, the Jays kept the highly touted visitors, who have lost this year only to New York University, fighting hard throughout the contest.

GONZAGA FIVE BEATEN BY WESTERN

Thompson Brothers Star As High Team Wins, 30 to 23.

THE Thompson brothers, Jimmie and Herbie, put on their brother act with a vengeance yesterday for the Western High Five and led their team to a 30-to-23 victory over the Gonzaga Quintet in the latter's gymnasium.

Jimmie showed the way to his brother by gathering six fielders for 12 points, while Herbie was a close second, registering five fielders for 10 points.

PREP LEAGUE TOSSERS IN TWIN BILL

Gonzaga-Devitt and Emerson-St. Johns Teams Clash.

SURROUNDED by the presence of a new official, two games instead of one, and an old official in a new capacity, the District Prep School League will stage its weekly basket ball program today in the boys' Club Gymnasium beginning at 3:15 o'clock.

The two games will see the Gonzaga and Devitt teams clashing in the opener with Emerson and St. John's supplying the action in the nightcap. The new official will be H. G. Harbin, former Georgetown Prep coach, who will handle the games while the old referee in a new capacity will be Orrel Mitchell, who is now coach of the Gonzaga Quintet.

Gonzaga will be striving this afternoon to get a commanding lead in the race, a thing it can do by beating Devitt, its nearest rival. Devitt can create a tie for the leadership by jolting Gonzaga.

Loss of Holbrook, Al Farrell no Big Handicap to Gonzaga.

The fact that Coach Mitchell will be without the services of Holbrook and Al Farrell, players declared ineligible because of scholastic difficulties, is not worrying the new Gonzaga mentor to any great extent, as he already has rearranged an effective line-up.

The plucky little St. John's Five will be making its fourth bid to get into the win column when it stacks up against Emerson. The Johnnies, in last place, have lost three straight games in the circuit to date. Emerson will be striving to make amends for its losing debut game last week when it lines up for play.

Set of 756 Rejected As New Bowling Mark

The National Duckpin Bowling Congress, governing body of the alley game, has refused to accept as a record the 756 score recently rolled by Ray von Dreele, of Baltimore, in a five-game set.

Although three witnesses of Von Dreele's feat were ready to present affidavits that the Baltimorean did not violate the foul line rule, George L. Iseman, secretary of t he congress, declared here yesterday that the inflexible policy of the governing body was to allow no records where there was no official foul line judge.

Bromley's Are Leading Father, Son Bowlers

George Bromley Senior and Junior last night went into the lead in the "Father and Son" bowling tournament, being rolled this week on the Mount Rainier alleys. Their score was 635. Richard King Senior and Junior turned in a 600 set to go into second place, these two pairs shoving H. & P. Wolfe, who rolled 597 Monday night, from first to third place.

Fine Points At Auction Bridge Given

Whitehead and Work Contend With Denison and Gardner in Game Over WRC—Play by Hands Is Fully Explained.

Some of the fine points of play in Auction were illustrated in the game broadcast yesterday from Station WRC, with E. E. Denison, of Portland, Me., and John C. Gardner, of Brooklyn, N. Y., making up the table with Mr. Whitehead and Mr. Work.

These were the hands: Mr. Denison, Dealer, South: Spades, A, 8, 5; Hearts, Q, 10, 6, 2; Diamonds, Q, J, 4; Clubs, A, Q, 10. Mr. Gardner, West, Spades, 7, 2; Hearts, 9, 7, 4, 3; Diamonds, 8, 7, 5; Clubs, K, J, 6, 2. Mr. Whitehead, North: Spades, K, 4, 3; Hearts, A, 5; Diamonds, A, 10, 9, 6, 2; Clubs, 9, 7, 3. Mr. Work, East: Spades, Q, J, 10, 9, 6; Hearts, K, J, 8; Diamonds, K, 3; Clubs, 8, 5, 4.

Mr. Denison, the Dealer, with all four suits stopped, opened the bidding with one No Trump. Mr. Gradner, West and Mr. Whitehead, North, passed. Mr. Work, East, bid two Spades to indicate a lead in case Mr. Denison, South, secured the contract.

Mr. Denison, holding but one stopper in Spades, passed, as a rebid of No Trump was not safe unless his partner showed some supporting strength. Mr. Denison was ready to go on with his No Trumps in case his partner made any free bid of three. Mr. Gardner, West, passed; and Mr. Denison's partner, Mr. Whitehead, said three Diamonds. Mr. Work, East, passed. Mr. Denison bid three No Trumps. He interpreted his partner's free bid of three diamonds to indicate possibly a solid Ace-King five-card suit in Diamonds (with Mr. Denison's own Queen and Jack), or else side strength to justify Mr. Denison's going on with his No Trumph if holding a stopper in Spades.

All passed the three No Trump bid; therefore Mr. Denison became Declarer. Mr. Gardner, West, opened the play with the 7 of Spades, his top card in his partner's suit. Mr. Whitehead's hand became Dummy, and from it Mr. Denison, Declarer, played low, the 3 of Spades, in order to win the trick in his own hand for a Diamond finesse. Mr. Work played the 9 of Spades, the lowest card of his sequence, and Declarer won with the Ace.

Mr. Denison then led the Queen of Diamonds, losing the finesse to Mr. Work's King. Mr. Gardner, West, and Dummy playing the 5 and 2, respectively. Mr. Work led the Queen of Spades, the top card of his sequence; Mr. Denison played the 5; Mr. Gardner the 2; Dummy the King, since it was apparent to Declarer that Mr. Gardner was out of Spades, inasmuch as Mr. Work, East, must have held five originally to warrant his bid. Therefore there was no reason for Dummy to hold off with his King, since Mr. Gardner could not make a Spade lead to Mr. Work's established suit.

Dummy then led the 6 of Diamonds; Mr. Work played the 3; Declarer the Jack; Mr Gardner the 7. Declarer continued with the 4 of Diamonds; Mr Gardner played the 8; Dummy the 9; and Mr. Work discarded the 8 of Hearts, indicating strength in that suit. Dummy led the Ace of Diamonds; Mr. Work discarded the 4 of Clubs; Declarer the 2 of Hearts; Mr. Gardner the 3 of Hearts. Dummy led his last Diamond, the 10; Mr. Work discarded the 5 of Clubs; Declarer the 6 of Hearts; Mr. Gardner the 4 of Hearts.

Mr. Denison, the Declarer, at this point could read Mr. Work's remaining cards as consisting of three good Spades with probably the guarded King of Hearts and a singleton Club. If Mr. Work had the King of Hearts twice guarded, he must be void of Clubs. In any event he had but one Club, which, if held, Mr. Denison proceded to take, leading the 3 of Clubs from Dummy. Mr. Work played the 8; Declarer the Ace, as a finesse was needless, if he had read Mr. Work's holding correctly. Mr. Gardner played the 2.

Mr. Denison then led the 8 of Spades, prepared to lose three Spade tricks in order to assure himself of two Heart tricks after Spades were exhausted. Mr. Gardner discarded the 6 of Clubs; Dummy played the 4 of Spades; Mr. Work the 10 of Spades. Mr. Work proceeded to take his two good Spades—the Jack and 6—Mr. Denison discarding the 10 and Queen of Clubs; Mr. Gardner the Jack of Clubs and 7 of Hearts; and Dummy the 7 and 9 of Clubs.

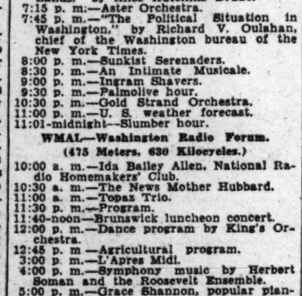
Then, as Mr. Denison had deduced, Mr. Work was obliged to lead either his King or Jack of Hearts, either of which gave the last two tricks to Mr. Denison, holding Queen-Ten in his hand, and Ace in Dummy. Mr. Denison, therefore, held the adversaries to three Spade tricks and one Diamond trick, while he himself made game, 30 points, at No Trump, and 40 for four Aces divided. The most delightful feature of Mr. Denison's handling of the deal was that when his Diamond finesse lost, he forced discards from Mr. Work, East, until he found out whether East's side strength, in addition to the King of Diamonds, to justify his Spade bid, was the King of Hearts or the King of Clubs. Mr. Denison then was able to manage his play accordingly.

The Contract bidding of this hand, according to Mr. Work, would be somewhat different from the Auction bidding. South, with four suits stopped and a count of 16 (4 for the Ace of Spades, 2 for the Queen of Hearts, 3 for the Queen-Jack of Diamonds, 6 for the Ace-Queen of Clubs, and 1 for the two Tens) would be tempted to bid two No Trumps. As a matter of fact, it would not be a serious overbid, as a count of just one more (17), would fully justify the declaration.

However, it would not matter whether South bid one or two No Trumps; North would jump the one No Trump to two, or the two No Trumps to three. If the former case—that of North jumping to two—South, having bid with much more than a minimum, would jump to three. East would have to bid at least three Spades to insert his lead director, and it is very doubtful if any player, under the same circumstances in a Contract game, would do so.

The Spade bid by East not being made, the play in Contract would be quite different from the Auction hand. West's initial lead would be a Club up to South's double tenace, so that Declarer, without any difficulty, would make a minimum of two Spades, one Heart, four Diamonds and two Clubs. Doubtless he would be able to make another trick, but that would be the trick immaterial.

WORK'S BRIDGE



The above deal was played recently in a Duplicate Progressive game and most admirably illustrates the importance of sound bidding.

At the tables where South bid No Trump, everybody passed, West led the Club Six, Dummy played small and East (knowing the Rule of Eleven that South had no Club higher than the Six) finessed the Eight. So the adversaries started by running five Club tricks, after which West led a Diamond. Declarer was obliged to lose to the King of Hearts, taking only one-odd.

A five-card Major always should be bid in preference to No Trump with any hand that has no unstopped suit, and at the tables where South bid a Heart originally, all passed and the adversaries started by winning two Clubs; but Declarer trumped the third, played two rounds of Diamonds, ruffled the third in Dummy (although it was a winner) and then led Hearts from Dummy for a finesse which captured the adverse King. Dummy then was put back with a trump to lead Spades and Declarer secured five-odd—one more than game.

Only with hands in which all four suits are safely stopped should a No Trump be given the preference over a five-card Major when making an original bid; although No Trump generally should be named in preference to a biddable five-card Minor even when the hand contains a weak double-ton. Transpose the Hearts and either the Diamonds or Clubs in South's hand given above, and South's proper bid would be one No Trump.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Net income upon which the tax is assessed is gross income less certain specified deductions, such as business expenses, losses, interest paid, bad debts, depreciation, rents, contributions, etc.

Deductions for business expenses form a large item in the returns of many taxpayers and must have certain qualities to be allowed. They must relate to the business, trade, profession, or vocation in which the taxpayer has invested time and money for the purpose of livelihood or profit.

A taxpayer may conduct more than one business and claim deductions for the business expenses of each.

Oulahan to Talk Politics Over Radio

Capital Correspondent Will Discuss Situation Over WRC Weekly — Donald Brian on WMAL 9:30. Army Band on WJSV.

Following its previously announced plan of expanding the weekly talk, "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight," from a one-man job to a general coverage of governmental politics through discussions by Washington newspaper correspondents, the National Broadcasting Co. will present Richard V. Oulahan, chief of the Washington bureau of the New York Times.

Mr. Oulahan's newspaper career began in 1899 on the staff of the Washington Critic. He has served as chief correspondent of the Times and the New York Sun since 1904 and has seen service on important news events in America and Europe.

Another program of Spanish numbers will be broadcast by the Sunkist Serenaders at 8 o'clock tonight from WRC. Featuring a native string orchestra under the direction of Har Reser, vocal arrangements of old Spanish folk songs also will be heard s sung by a mixed quartet composed of Marjorie Horton, Paula Hemminghaus, Judson House and Frank Croxton.

Trotere's "In Old Madrid" will be sung by the quartet, immediately following an orchestral version of Gallini's old song, "Sorella." "The Orange Dance" of Langey and Faenger's tango, "Jacquita," are further high lights of the program.

Elizabeth Mazur, soprano, and Verson Jason, barytone, will again be featured as solo artists with the Jospe String Quartet in an "Intimate Musicale" to be broadcast at 8:30 o'clock tonight through WRC. Victor Herbert's "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," from "Naughty Marietta," and "Im Herbst," by Franz, are listed as solos by Miss Mazur. Mr. Jason offers Quilter's song, "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal" and "Tally Ho" by Leoni.

The Jospe Ensemble opens the program with the old ballad, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," later offering the first movement from Schumann's "Piano Quintet in E Flat" and the reel "Molly on the Shore," by Percy Grainger.

The Gold Strand Orchestra will begin a new series of broadcasts at 10:30 o'clock tonight. The orchestra will be assisted by Fred Vetell, tenor, and the two-piano team of Pollack and Mering. The program for tonight follows: "By My Fireside," "The Song I Love," selection from "Ups a-Daisy," two pianos; "Danse Barbare," "I Looked Into Your Garden," Fred Vetell; "I'll Get By," and "Poor Punchinello," Fred Vetell.

A program of Italian operatic excerpts will be played as the hour of Slumber Music at 11 o'clock tonight, as follows: Overture to "Semiramis," Rossini; selection from "Le Villi," Puccini; selection from Il Pagliaci," Leoncavano; selection from "Rigoletto," Verdi; sextet from "Lucia," Donizetti, and intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana."

The United Choral Singers will present a half hour at 8:30 o'clock, followed by the Then and Now broadcast.

Mrs. John Allan Daugherty will talk about "The Inaugural Charity Ball" for fifteen minutes, beginning at 7:15 o'clock.

Miss Margaret Burns, the singer of Irish songs heard over WOL a week or so ago, will be heard in another recital from the station at 6:15 o'clock tonight. Miss Burns will be accompanied by Renee Settle, pianist.

The Carolinians Dance Orchestra will be on th air at 7 o'clock from the station for an hour. The next feature will be the Wardman Park Dance Orchestra from 10 o'clock until midnight

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am now a 52-year-old widower of 16 years' standing and still mourning for my second wife who was the true ideal wife, mother and homemaker.

We married on not much more than true love and courage for the hard work we saw ahead, but during the short six years of blessed wedlock, the question of money was hardly ever thought of. We both did our share and were not afraid of long hours. The money was in her keeping because she could spend it with better result than I could and it was only an agent in her hands to supply food and clothing, &c. for our two "kiddies" and ourselves, nothing more.

Our main thoughts were in planning together for the children, welfare present and future and the happiness of our every-day companionship was all the pleasure we cared about.

She used to say that she got more "thrills" out of having her babies asleep in her arms than she would get at a theater. She once told me that she looked upon tending and laying out our clothes as a chance to weave her life into ours and committed all the wifely duties as a blessing instead of a drudgery.

At night she would place a light in the window as a beacon for my return home from work and it never failed to hasten my lagging gait no matter how tired I was and to send such stirrings through my tired frame that would make up for the hard work of the day.

I helped her at hard tasks, and she planned to spend as much time as she could out in the fields or woods with me and the children. That was life, beautiful, real though humble and simple.

Marion's short letter speaks volumes. She would be a homemaker in a log cabin or in a $50,000 house, the atmosphere would be such as would draw a man home at the end of the day and she would welcome him although she might be busy mending his socks, and do it with the same spirit that my wife did. Many unsuccessful husbands would be different if they were under the influence of such a wife as Marion. Unfortunately there are still good wives who have unsuccessfully thrown in their lot with the wrong men.

Before closing I want to comment on "Hard as Stone." In her letter recently she states that she is in love! With what? Her letter would lead one to think that she can not love any one but herself. She is the type of female who generally prefers to be on parade at the beauty parlor, or at a card party. They must have a house (not home) to park themselves and poodle dogs or other pet ornaments. The atmosphere draws the husband only when he can't possibly avoid it.

They derive their "thrills" from the flattery of questionable men in whose company you usually find them; or in riding in the expensive cars of unscrupulous wealthy married men or feeding at the same trough with those animals. If fate has been unkind enough to bring such a female any children, you can wager your high hat, they are liable to be sleeping under the influence of opiates in order that "mother" can be tootting out.

No "Hard-as-Stone," if your letter typifies you, remain single. You are a misfit for true wife and motherhood.

"FIFTY TWO YEARS OLD."

Jane Interprets the Mode

Black tulle woven over with silver and posed over a pink chiffon foundation, which appears in the front in the form of a scarf sash, makes a lovely tea gown with exagere cascading cuffs and skirt flares in a train effect. (Courtesy of Maison Louiseboulanger, Paris.)

New York, Feb. 12, 1929.

THERE is one particular art possessed by every well trained Parisian mannequin, which any woman who prides herself on being an elegante, or who would like to become one, should cultivate—an art, incidentally, much neglected in America.

And that is simply the knack of adjusting your posture and movements to the type of garment you are wearing at the moment.

It is a positive joy to watch a skillful Paris mannequin as she displays sports wear, then tailleurs, then afternoon dresses and coats, then dinner dresses, then evening frocks. For each she modifies her manner of walking and moving about so as to be entirely in harmony with what she is wearing, and to look like just the sort of lovely lady who should wear it.

Some of them carry it even further—there will, for instance, be a marked difference between their manner of wearing one dinner gown and another.

All this, of course, is for the sake of displaying the good points of a particular garment to a prospective buyer—but don't let the fact that you are not a mannequin and are not displaying your clothes commercially stop you from giving a bit of thought to this. For, after all, you do want your clothes to look as though you belonged in them, and you do want their best points, and yours, to show up to good advantage, don't you!

There are bags that make you happy—there are b-a-a-a-gs that make you sad—and where, oh where are the former! Well, we invented one, and made it, and carried the durn thing for two years, before we found that it simply grew in remarkableness to the point where we just couldn't live without telling you about it!

If you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this weeks' illustrataed leaflet you will find out not only all about the bag, but how to make it yourself.

When a tea gown is a creation we move heaven and earth for permission to sketch it for you. It took all of that, and then some more labor to really interpret it for you in ink—so fragile and so lovely it was in its black tulle-ness, sprinkled with silver embroidery, and made over a rose foundation! YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

What I Expect of the Boy of Fourteen. Reprinted by Request of Many Readers.

RIGHT at the start I expect him to be a boy—not a cherub, not a little old man, not a sneak. Just plain unadulterated boy. I expect that he stands well on his feet, looks you in the eye, tells you the truth; that he sleeps when he sleeps, works when he works, plays when he plays; that he swims like a duck, runs like a deer, sees like an eagle; that he plays fair on the field, at the school, in the home; that he likes a dog, delights in woods and fields, believes in comrades; that he admires real men, stands by his heroes, looks up to his mother; that he sees in a violet, a sparrow, a worm the touch of the hand of God.

Furthermore, I expect that the boy has a father as well as a mother, a few brothers and sisters, a wise teacher or two; that his father remembers that he was once a boy; that his mother tempers her all-abiding love with justice; that his home is more than a pantry and a bed; that his school is more than a recitation period; that his teacher sees something beyond marks; that his church is more than a pulpit.

But my expectations are more than one sided or two sided, they are many sided. I rather suspect that the boy expects a few things himself. He expects that his parents are wholesome, responsible, clean; that fresh air is his in sleep, at play, in school; that he is fed at least as sanely as horses, cows and hens; that his desire for activity is turned from devilitry into useful knowledge, productive labor, wholesome play; that his parents reverently tell him of the functions and care of his beautiful body; that he is taught obedience and right thinking by example as well as preachment; that his capacity, interest and native ability is studied and wisely directed; that the idealism of his adolescence is nurtured as though it were the voice of God. In fact, he expects that every hour out of the 24 is a step forward in his education and that the task of educating him is more than a school affair.

There is yet more. Beyond my expectations or his expectations, there are our expectations. You and I—everybody. Now he is our boy. Later he is to be his own man. It is for us to give him his chance to be great, good and Godlike. It is for us to give him a parentage untainted by disease—social, civic or industrial. It is for us to give him his rightful heritage of playgrounds, of good schools, of clean cities. It is for us to close the door of the speakeasy, the vulgar show. It is for us to prevent his exploitation in sweatshop, factory or store.

Our boy can not run the race with his feet tied. He can not do it all. He will do his share. We must do ours. Now let's all push and pull together. Then we shall find that our boy meets my expectations, his expectations, our expectations.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
Heroines.

Do many girls like their mothers better than any other woman they know or read about? I must admit Helen Wills is my dream girl but when I am a mother I hope to be like my mama.

MISS ELEVEN YEARS.

Answer—Yes, Miss Eleven, a test which I gave in the column a while ago shows that many girls choose their mother above all other women. If you would like to see who comes second you might send for the helplet called "Heroines" and inclose a stamped and addressed envelope. Space does not permit listing here.

A Vocabulary.

I am sore at this moment because father has just finished telling me how no-account I am. He called me "fool, liar and jellyfish." I think I could hold down a job. Should I get out of this home? DAD'S SON.

Answer—Under such circumstances, I know boys flare up and want to get out. But before getting out ask yourself whether you can support yourself, whether the boarding house will have a nice cookie jar, whether the landlady will bring you a couple of doughnuts and a glass of milk before you go to bed. I am afraid, son, that you will even miss your father's language. Never leave home until you have the education and ability to dig your own bait.

Animals of Long Ago

VIII. THE EARLIEST KNOWN BIRDS.

AN interesting subject to study is "geology." It is "the science of the earth—past and present."

In the small space we have, it is hard to tell many of the reasons for believing that the strange animals I have described, ever lived; but if you made a careful study of geology, you would see how the rocks have saved the story through the ages.

An effort to picture the earliest known bird, based on incomplete remains.

One part of the story which is not at all complete is the history of birds. For some reason, their bones are very scarce in the rock layers. That is most likely due to the fact that the bones of birds are lighter than the bones of other animals. Animal skeletons which have been best preserved are those whose owners died in water and sank to the bottom, to be covered by mud or sand.

A dead bird will float on water; and there was not such a good chance for ancient birds to be covered by the ooze at the bottom.

Yet we have proof that there were birds living at the same time as Old Steggy, Three Horns and the Tyrant Lizard. In Germany bones and feather marks have been found in rock dating back to the Age of Terrible Lizards.

What strange birds they were! Their tails were long, they had claws at the bends of their wings, and there were teeth in their beaks! A few modern birds have claws at the bends of their wings, but who ever saw a modern bird with teeth?

The wings of the earliest known birds were shaped something like those of modern birds; but there were spreading feathers on their legs. There is reason to believe that they were better at gliding through the air than at actual flying.

Could those early birds sing? We do not know but we may guess that they were not masters of the art. Yet their presence on the earth was a promise of the time when our springtime should be made joyous by the songs of our feathered friends.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THINK DOCTOR SHOULD TALK.

THE National Tuberculosis Association criticizes the medical profession for not telling their patients with tuberculosis as much as they should be told. This applies to how to take care of themselves in part, though principally to protection of others. Their concluding statement is: "The medical profession as a whole gives insufficient thought to the personal instruction of the tuberculosis patient."

This conclusion was based on inquiry made of 1,500 sanitaria patients who had consulted from one to fourteen physicians each before entering institutions. Over 600 had never been told how to take care of their sputum. Of the 871 who had had detailed instruction on this important point, less than 700 had been instructed by the first physician who made the diagnosis. Over 100 who had not been instructed by the first physician had been told what to do by the second physician consulted. Twenty-four had received their instructions from some physician further down the list. A little more than one-half the total number had been told to use separate glasses, cups, spoons, dishes. About the same number had been instructed to have their dishes washed separately. About 40 per cent had not been told to destroy the sputum and in detail how to do so.

Nine hundred and forty-five of their number were told to sleep alone and 919 were instructed in detail about their sleeping arrangements. More than 500 did not receive instruction on this important point.

Patients in public sanitaria reported better attention in these particulars by their private physicians than did the patients of private sanitaria. Most sanitaria now supply each patient with a booklet on instruction on "How to Live with Consumption." Some private physicians follow this example. Some sanitaria make such booklets available for tuberculosis people outside the institution. Two hundred and fifty-five of these sanitaria inmates had been supplied with such booklets by their physicians before entering the sanitarium. Nearly one-half of the patients in one county sanitarium reported that their private physicians had given them such booklets.

BUTTERMILK.

Miss F. N. writes: Is buttermilk fattening? I drink a bottle every morning.

REPLY.

It is if one drinks an abundance of it.

It is not if one drinks it sparingly and at the same time lessens his intake of other foods.

MARRIAGE AS PIMPLE CURE.

A. D. writes: A very good friend of mine, in his early thirties, intends to marry. He is not in the best of health. His face is almost covered with pimples. They go and come. Is this an indication of blood impurity?

REPLY.

By all means help your friend to get married. Marriage is the best cure for pimples.

Besides, if pimples were a bar to marriage, the industry would suffer. Pimples do not indicate bad blood or poor health.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

FEBRUARY 13.

JULIA CAROLINE RIPLEY DORR, one of the most widely read American authors of the nineteenth century, was born this day, 1825.

Mrs. Dorr lived and did her life work in Rutland, Vt.

Her first published work was a poem submitted to a magazine without her knowledge by her admiring husband. Her works include "Farmingdale," "Lannere," "Sibyl Huntingdon," "Poems" and "Friar Anselme and Other Poems," "The Legend of Baboushka" and "Afternoon Songs." A complete edition of her poems has been issued by Scribner's.

Annie M. Smith, born this day, 1858, achieved distinction as one of America's outstanding botanists. From 1900 to 1910 she was the sole editor of "The Bryologist," a journal devoted to the study of North American mosses, hepaticas and lichens.

Those interested in cooking and desiring recipes used last week in The Washington Post Cooking School can obtain them by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Miss Frost, care of The Washington Post.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY MARKED IN CAPITAL BY SOLEMN SERVICE

Senator Shortridge Pays Homage at Memorial to Emancipator.

SMOOT SAYS MARTYR WAS NOT "PACIFIST"

Gettysburg Address Is Read in House; Flags Show Respect of City.

The people of the wealthiest and most powerful nation, vibrant in every phase of human activity, yesterday paused to pay homage to the man who in his humble yet determined way rekindled the spirit and made sure the fact of the United States.

The 120th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was formally observed at exercises, simple yet of appealing dignity, at the Lincoln Memorial overlooking the Potomac. Senator Shortridge, of California, extolled the emancipator in the address of the occasion, and in the Senate and House members paused to pay tribute to the martyred President.

At the massive memorial building, where each State of the Union is represented by inscription, numerous patriotic societies gathered at noon to hear Senator Shortridge, one of the Senate's ablest orators, describe Lincoln as "that humble, loving, forgiving, sublime man * * * sainted and immortal."

Flags Flown on Avenue.

The day was not a holiday for Government employes, but the Capital took on holiday aspect through display of flags along Pennsylvania avenue and at the Capitol. At the east front of the Capitol, where in a few weeks a new President will take the oath on the same spot where Lincoln twice stood, flags attracted especial attention.

In the Senate, Senator Smoot, of Utah, in paying tribute to Lincoln, took occasion to urge adequate defense of the Nation.

"Lincoln was not a pacifist and would not be a pacifist if alive today," Smoot asserted. "National honor and national defense were the keynotes of his whole life. The birthplace of Lincoln is dedicated to peace; yet Lincoln was not for peace at any price. He was ready to fight for human freedom and a united Nation."

Gettysburg Address Read.

In the House the Gettysburg address was read by Representative Moore, of Ohio.

Clear skies and winds that whipped flags out from their staffs greeted those who participated in the exercises at the memorial. Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, representatives of patriotic groups, the Army Band and the public were called to attention by the sound of a bugle promptly at noon. Several wreaths had been placed at the shrine and formal dress of military and naval escorts added color to the scene. The Rev. George F. Dudley pronounced the invocation. Then Senator Shortridge was introduced by Charles Mason Remey, of the Order of the Loyal Legion.

When the Government was in mortal danger of perishing from the earth, said Shortridge, "the great captain of our country's salvation came."

Called "Great Captain."

"He came and thenceforth all was clear. Simple in speech, plain in manner, straightforward in action; tender as a child, fearless as a hero, humble and lowly, he came to speak and to act. Born of Southern parents and reared in the broad prairies of the West, whose very winds sang liberty, he realized the curse of bondage and the blessing of freedom. From the unfelled forest, from the log cabin and the country store, from humble forum and obscure dwelling—from out the ranks of the people the great captain came. He came, and statesmen paused and wondered; he spoke, and a Nation hearkened to his counsel. * * *

"Who was this man that came unheralded out of the West? Who was this man that rose above great statesmen of his day,—who was as earnest as Phillips, as gifted as Baker, more profound than Seward, more wise than Chase, more logical than Douglas, more eloquent than Everett?

Known to Whole World.

"Wheresoever among men there is a love for disinterested patriotism and sublime attachment to duty; wheresoever liberty is worshiped and loyalty exalted, his name, his life, his deeds are known. Today his image is in all hearts, his name is on all lips. That humble, loving, forgiving, sublime man was the rail-splitter of Illinois—sainted and immortal Abraham Lincoln—Abraham Lincoln, child of poverty, champion of freedom, savior of the Union."

The brief exercises were brought to a close with the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the Army Band.

Later in the afternoon a delegation from the colored Boy Scouts of the city visited the shrine.

The life of Lincoln was the subject of programs at meetings of various patriotic societies. Today the Washington Chapter of the National Sojourners will hold a special meeting at the Army and Navy Club, and the Hoover-Curtis Republican League will meet at 7:45 p. m., in the Metropolitan Baptist Church to hear N. E. Weathless, of the faculty of Dunbar High School, speak on Lincoln.

Societies at Services.

The patriotic societies which were represented at the services at the Lincoln Memorial were:

American War Mothers, District of Columbia Society, Sons of the American Revolution; American Red Cross, American Women's Legion, George Baldwin McCoy Unit, National Society, Sons of the American Revolution; Abraham Lincoln Circle, No. 3 Ladies of the G. CHARGE OF MURDER IN 58 INDICTMENTS

Andrew J. Hawkins Accused of Slaying Woman During Course of Quarrel.

MERCHANT FACES TRIAL

A total of 58 indictments, including one of first degree murder and another of manslaughter, were reported by the District grand jury yesterday to Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in criminal division of the District Supreme Court. The jury ignored fourteen charges, among which were two of homicide.

Andrew Jackson Hawkins, colored, was charged with first degree murder of Ruth Watkins, colored, on December 23. During the course of an argument at 1506 Twenty-sixth street northwest Hawkins is alleged to have deliberately shot and killed the woman.

Manslaughter was charged against John H. Day, also colored, in connection with the shooting of Harry Smith, colored, during an argument over a card game on December 16 at 643 Newton street northwest.

Accused of obtaining a consignment of poultry from a North Carolina firm and selling it without making return to the firm, Maynard J. Willars, commission merchant, was indicted on a larceny-after-trust charge. The shipment totaled 1,567 pounds and was valued at $540.

Housebreaking Laid to Ten.

Housebreaking and larceny were charged in indictments against James Redman, Tom Boyd, John W. Mason, James W. Chase, James Summerville, Thomas L. Kaiser, Solomon Holmes, Charles Brown, Joseph W. Craven and James J. Turner. Charges of receiving stolen property were placed against Pine Little, DeWitt Jones, Levi Dublin and Sylvester Holmes.

Embezzlement Is Charged.

Murray Wilson was indicted on an embezzlement charge. Douglas Steadman, Kent Keys, William Elder and Albert Simcoe were charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. Kay Frederickson was indicted on a robbery charge and James S. Fowler one of forgery and uttering.

The jurors ignored a murder charge against Lee Loi, a Chinese, who was accused of shooting and fatally wounding Lee Sue and wounding three other Chinese last October 14 at 325 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Witnesses failed to give accurate accounts of the tong war shooting to the jurors.

Exoneration of John Henry Long, colored, of a homicide charge was also voted by the jury. Long was accused of shooting and mortally wounding William Cunningham, colored, on February 2. Cunningham was drunk and boisterous and broke into a house, from which he had been ejected at the time of the shooting, witnesses declared.

Others acquitted by the jurors were Mary Scott alias Mary Oats, charged with bigamy; Dupree Lockhart, violation of the Harrison narcotic act; Earl Kettner, larceny after trust; Clifford Mead, Charles Edward Washington, James Summerville, Thomas Marshall, James Chase, Charles Robinson, Silas Young, Shirley Ridgeway, Walter Smith and Joe Frazier, joy riding; James Cross, robbery; Josephine Sommers, grand larceny, and Ralph C. Funds Are Sought For New Memorial Want Auditorium Ready for 1932 Birthday of Washington.

Plans are being formulated for a great observance in Washington of the bicentennial anniversary of George Washington's birth in 1932, according to announcement by Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, president of the George Washington Memorial Association, which is sponsoring the event.

In connection with the proposed observance arrangements are being made to complete the erection of the George Washington Memorial edifice here in order that the memorial auditorium will be available for use in the bicentennial celebration.

Charles Evans Hughes will deliver a radiophone address over a national network of stations one week from Friday in an effort to stimulate public interest in the memorial. The site for the memorial has been donated by Congress with the condition that funds for the building be raised by popular subscription.

Inauguration to Modify Lenten Observance Here

Lent, the 40-day period between Ash Wednesday and Easter, begins today. As usual there will be appropriate Ash Wednesday services in Catholic and Episcopal churches throughout the city.

The Lenten season usually is marked by a curtailment of social activities. Herbert Hoover's inauguration on March 4, with its attendant social functions, however, is expected to bring about a somewhat modified observance in Washington.

Three services will be held at the Church of the Epiphany today, 11 a. m., 11:30 a. m., and 4:45 p. m. Bishop Freeman will speak at the first service.

INJUNCTION ASKED AGAINST 13 UNIONS

Concern Accuses Labor Units of Blocking Work by Their Squabble Over Rights.

DATE FOR HEARING IS SET

Suit for an injunction against thirteen labor unions, the Washington Building Trades Council and 40 individuals was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by the Dahlstrom Metallic Door Co., of Jamestown N. Y., as the result of a jurisdictional dispute between three of the unions and a sympathetic strike against the Charles H Tompkins Co., construction engineers, of this city.

The complaint charged that the Jamestown company had a contract for work on a building being erected by the Tompkins firm at Fourteenth and K streets northwest. Three of the unions claimed the right to have the work of installing material done by their members and refused to permit the work to be done by others, it was charged. The plaintiff declared the president of the American Federation of Labor decided the plaintiff had the right to have the work done by whatever union workmen he desired.

Justice Jennings Bailey signed an order for hearing of the motion a week from today. The unions named as defendants are the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers of America, International Union of Elevator Constructors, Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers International Alliance, United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters of America, Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers International Association, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of America and International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers.

Veteran Sailor's Estate Given Relief Society

The small estate of John Bowen, veteran sailor, who died in Oregon last June, bequeathed to Mrs. Roger Welles, wife of Admiral Rodger Welles, U. S. N., retired, for whom he had worked in Newport, R. I., and who had befriended him after he retired, has been forwarded by Mrs. Welles to the Navy Relief Society, welfare organization for naval personnel and their families.

Mrs. Welles turned over the money accruing from Bowen's estate to the society with headquarters here for disbursement. Bowen was a chief boatswain's mate and had served in the Navy from 1898 to 1928.

Maj. Carl Spatz, who directed its record flight; Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada, one of the flight's night pilots; Sergt. Roy W. Hooe, flight mechanic, and Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, who piloted the refueling plane in the record flight, were members of its crew on the Middletown trip.

City Club Is to Hear Explorer Tell Adventures

Dr. Matthew Stirling, explorer and Smithsonian Institution ethnologist, will address members of the City Club tonight at 8:30 on his 2-year trip into the heart of New Guiana, in the club ballroom.

Dr. Stirling was the first white man to penetrate to the interior of the island. He discovered a race of pygmies living on mountain tops at an elevation of 15,000 feet, was accompanied by 400 natives, and used an airplane to cross tropical jungles and streams with dangerous whirlpools. Six reels of motion pictures taken on the expedition will be shown.

OYSTER HOUSE RAID TRIO FOUND GUILTY

Third Trial Ends Speedily for Three Arrested on Dry Law Charges.

DEFENSE LAWYERS QUIT

After a speedy trial, William Deegan, 29 years old, his brother, Francis Deegan, 21 years old, and Clarence Myers, 25 years old, were found guilty late yesterday by a Police Court jury of liquor charges, which grew out of the sensational raid on the Ambassador Oyster House, 2106 Eighteenth street northwest, last August 3.

It was the third trial of the case. In early October the first trial resulted in a mistrial declaration after a juror assented himself from duty for several days. The jury was unable to agree at the second trial, held in December, but Burgess Fran Hart, who was also arrested in the raid, was acquitted upon a directed verdict.

The case yesterday was put to the jury with remarkable celerity. In the other trials several days were needed to complete the case. Testimony showed that revenue agents went to the place on July 27 and alleged they made a purchase of liquor from Francis Deegan. On August 3, after a search warrant had been obtained, the agents said they made another purchase just before the raiding squadron arrived.

When the case was called for trial yesterday, Harry Whelan and Denny Hughes were permitted to withdraw as defense counsel, and Robert I. Miller and John Sirica were appointed by Judge Isaac R. Hitt to succeed them. The prosecution was conducted by Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart.

The jury found Francis Deegan guilty of the sale made on July 27, and all three guilty of the sale and possession of liquor on the night of the raid. It was during this raid that Earl Rickert, a spectator, charged he was dragged into the place from a "booing" crowd and beaten by John J. Quinn, deputy prohibition commissioner, and Detective William F. Burke, of the police vice squad.

Three Are Injured In Auto Collision

Three persons were injured early yesterday morning in a collision between two automobiles at Connecticut avenue and K street northwest. The injured were occupants of the same automobile, driven by Sterling Shearer, 2153 K street northwest. They were taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment, and were Mrs. Annie Williams, 51 years old, fractured pelvis; Mabel Shearer, 32 years old, cuts, and Mack Forrest, 23 years old, bruises. All live at 2153 K street northwest.

Roy Estep, 2201 K street northwest, was driving the other machine involved in the collision.

Veterans Will Attend Inaugural Parade

CONFEDERATE YELL MAY RESOUND OVER INAUGURAL PARADE

Aged Remnants of Gray Hosts Invited to Participate in Trbiute to Hoover.

WOMAN, 84, WHO NURSED GRANT'S SON, TO ATTEND

Dr. Work Names Staff Chief; City Householders Praised for Moderate Prices.

Picture a little group of the few remaining Confederate veterans unloosing a "rebel yell" in the inaugural parade of a Republican President.

The inaugural committee has invited the Confederate Veterans Association to participate on Mach 4 and, while a response to the invitation has not been received, Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, chairman of the parade committee, thinks it not unlikely that men wearing the gray of Lee's famous hosts will ride in the procession from the Capitol to the White House.

Never have two Confederate veterans met in uniform on a public occasion that an old-time rebel yell has not been given.

Confederate Unit United.

Maj. Gen. Stephan pointed out that heretofore organizations have been permitted to participate in inaugural parades indiscriminately. Curtailment of the parade this year led the committee to invite representative groups and the Confederate Veterans Association was included. A second invitation was sent to insure its receipt.

One Southerner is assured of participation. She is Mrs. William Lynn, 84-year-old Virginia woman, who nursed Frederick Dent Grant while his father's troops camped in her back yard. Mrs. Lynn, now a resident of Washington, wrote to Col. U. S. Grant 3d, general inaugural chairman, requesting a seat for the parade and yesterday she received a complimentary ticket.

Her letter to Col. Grant read:

Nursed Gen. Grant's Son.

"Your father, Capt. Frederick Dent Grant, had typhoid fever at my home in the Civil War. Your grandfather, Gen. Grant, had his headquarters in our yard at the battle of Jerico Ford (between Fredericksburg and Richmond, Va.), and I am now 84 years old, and have never seen an inaugural. Can you arrange to give me a seat in a building for March 4, so I can see the inaugural parade? I would so appreciate it. Thanking you, if this courtesy can be allowed an old Virginia lady."

The record shows that Frederick Dent Grant, later commandant of West Point, accompanied his father on several lesser battles of the Civil War. Capt. Grant was born in 1850, and was a youth at the time referred to by Mrs. Lynn.

Work Names Staff Chief.

Inaugural plans went forward yesterday, with the committee working on details in connection with various phases. Col. Ephraim G. Peyton, of the War Department general staff, was designated by Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, as his chief of staff for the second division of the parade, of which Dr. Work is marshal. The committtee let several contracts for decoration of the parade route and received word from the Treasury Department that the Treasury Building will be decorated in white and green.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, chairman of the housing committee, in commenting on the prices of accommodations, said that rates are not much higher than in the days of Harrison and Cleveland. For individuals, the rates will range from $2 to $6, the latter figure including breakfast.

"Our inspectors are more impressed every day by the unselfishness of Washingtonians in opening their doors to strangers at most unselfish prices," she said.

Style Paramount, Advertisers Told

Luncheon Speaker Stresses Importance of Fashions; Party Is Planned.

Style controls the business world, Carl L. Gibson, vice president of the Standard Publishing Corporation, told members of the Washington Advertising Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday in the ballroom of the National Press Club.

The speaker declared that quality, price and everything else take minor places to style. He pointed out that clothing and articles popular twenty years ago can not be bought today, and added that this will be true twenty years hence of the things that are right in style at the present time.

The advertising men were told that style travels as rapidly as news. As an illustration of this, Mr. Gibson said that if the Prince of Wales appears in London today with a new hat or coat, well-dressed American men have an opportunity to buy the same garments within a few days.

Mr. Gibson was introduced to the advertising men by Howard W. Berry. Ernest S. Johnson, president of the club, presided. It was announced that a Valentine party will be held by the club Thursday night at the Madrillon.

FILM STAR GREETS POST PRIZE WINNER

PARTY TO SEE HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 12.—The dream of Janet Coon, Washington Post-Mary Pickford prize winner, to visit Hollywood and meet Mary Pickford was realized today.

As the "Coquette" Special pulled into the Los Angeles station Mary Pickford stood smiling on the platform, nattily attired in a gray ensemble over which she wore a gray fur coat and her hat was a close fitting, green straw one. "Why, you are little like me," she said as she welcomed Miss Coon. Later she posed for her picture with the 26 contest winners, pulling the Washington girl to a place on her right as she did so.

While the winners sang a song of greeting, to the tune of "Sweetheart," to Miss Pickford, Miss Coon whistled the accompaniment in lark like treble tones. She was complimented on her achievement by Miss Pickford.

Innumerable other motion pictures and still pictures were then made, Miss Pickford posing good naturedly at the command of the camera men.

Then with a wave of her hand and a cheery "will see you later," the star of "Coquette" was whisked away to Pickfair, in Beverly Hills, where the visitors will be entertained at tea on Sunday.

In a fleet of ten swift limousines, the "Coquette" party was driven rapidly through the streets of Los Angeles to the Hotel Roosevelt, Hollywood, bicycle policemen sounding sirens, clearing the way.

For a week Miss Coon and the woman member of The Washington Post staff accompanying her, will be guests of Miss Pickford in Hollywood. All the secrets of motion picture making will be told them and they will see Miss Pickford and her company actually making a scene in her new sound drama, "Coquette" in the United Artists Studio on Monday.

Tonight the executives of the United Artists Studios gave a dinner in honor of the visitors and they then witnessed the first presentation of new motion pictures in the United Artists Theater in Los Angeles.

Gertrude Brown, the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald winner, yesterday finished her first ride on a railroad train, when she arrived in Los Angeles after a 3,500-mile ride across the continent. Although 20 years old, she had never before ridden on a railroad train.

School Holiday Aid Treated in Booklet

"Happy and Useful Hours for Children" Parent-Teachers Theme.

Summer activities for school children which will employ their vacation months in instructive natural science tasks and lay the foundation for later school work are the subject of a new booklet published by the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers, "Happy and Useful Hours for Children," by Mrs. Aura Fike Jones, chairman of the vacation activities committee.

Note books on flowers, flower box and plotted gardens, collections of natural objects and plants, mounting of butterflies, seed collections, bird houses and bird baths are suggested as means to keep children interested while learning during vacation periods.

"Teachers can do much toward interesting their pupils in these activities by speaking of the things which can be found during the summer and by planning to arrange a display of them in the fall," Mrs. Jones writes. "Our school museums should be made up largely of things the children themselves have collected."

DRAMA TOURNAMENT OPENS WITH THREE ONE-ACT PLAYLETS

Two Sketches Are Presented, Written by Authors of Washington.

PRELIMINARY ROUND TO CLOSE FEBRUARY 23

Increase in Clubs Seeking Honors Is Shown Each Year of Contest.

The presentation of three one-act plays last night in the Columbia Heights Community Center at Wilson Normal School opened the third annual one-act play tournament which the Community Drama Guild of Washington is sponsoring.

Some 300 persons attended the opening night of the tournament which gives promise of being the most successful of any yet undertaken.

Altogether 27 dramatic groups will compete during the preliminary contest. Of these 27 the judges will pick the four groups that have done the best work and these will participate in the final contest that will be held February 27 at the McKinley Auditorium.

Capital Authors Score.

Two of the plays given last night were written by Washington authors and performed for the first time publicly. These two were "Empty Arms," written by Edith Ogden Heidel and presented by the Women's City Club Drama Unit; and "He Who Hesitates," written and directed by Caleb O'Connor and enacted by the O'Connor Dramatic Players.

The third play was given by The Masks, the dramatic society of the Alumni of Central High School, and was entitled "The Bedroom Suite." Christopher Morley is the author.

All three presentations were well received by the large audience.

The cast in "Empty Arms" included Roy Donohue, Edna Ellis Hilton, Ida Garrett Mattingly and Ed Muth. Mr. Donohue substituted on a two-day notice for Paul Hunter, who was taken ill Sunday and was to have acted the leading male role in the playlet.

Patrick Heney, Irma Beall and Melissa Boyer enacted the three roles in "He Who Hesitates," while Dorothy Shore, Vinton Haworth and Andrew Allison took the parts in "The Bedroom Suite."

Tournament Size Grows.

The first year that the one-act play tournament was held only eight drama groups participated. Since then the idea has spread each year. In 1928 there were seventeen dramatic societies and this year there are 27.

These groups represent churches, business houses, community centers, high school alumni groups and women civic organizations. Besides these there are three groups from nearby Maryland.

No plays will be held tonight, but tomorrow night the Playmakers, of Thomson Community Center; the McKinley High Alumni Dramatic Club, the Southeast Community Players and the Jabberwock Players will give presentations on the stage at East Washington Community Center in Eastern High School.

Then on February 20 four more plays will be given at the East Washington Community Center by the St. Peter's Players, of St. Peter's Catholic Church; the East Washington Players, of East Washington Community Center, and the Woodlothian Players, of Woodward & Lothrop Department Store.

Policeman on "Murder" Call Shot in Arm by Blind Man

Allen Baker, 29, of Sixth Precinct, Is Victim; Assailant Held.

Allen B. Baker, 29-year-old policeman attached to the Sixth Precinct, was wounded severely early yesterday morning when a blind colored man fired upon him with a shotgun as he and three other policemen broke into the house at 825 New Jersey avenue northwest to locate the cries of "murder" that were arousing the neighborhood.

Baker was taken to Sibley Hospital, where it was found that the shot had almost blown away his right forearm. Dr. William Marbury, police surgeon, operated yesterday to remove the bullets. For a time he thought it would be necessary to amputate the arm, but it was later found that the bone had not been shattered.

William Lawson, the colored man who fired upon the police, was disarmed and taken to the Sixth Precinct where he was charged with assault with a deadly weapon. He was arraigned in Police Court later in the day and committed to the District Jail in default of bond.

The clerk at the station house was notified about 2:50 o'clock yesterday morning that some one was yelling "murder" and shooting and otherwise causing a terrific disturbance at New Jersey avenue and I streets northwest.

Sergt. J. E. Thompson, M. P. Lewis, Baker and E. E. H. Browning, a retired policeman who was in the station house at the time, were sent out to investigate the disturbances. When they arrived at the intersection they were greeted by cries of "Murder" issuing from 825 New Jersey avenue.

Running up to the porch they broke out the glass door and entered the house when they could not get a response to their knocks. Rushing down the hallway they came to the rear room in which some one was yelling, "Murder, police, help."

Calling out that they were police, Baker threw open the door and stepped inside. As he did so a blaze of fire leaped out of the dark and Baker crumpled to the floor as the report of the shotgun died out.

ALLEN B. BAKER,
Policeman of the Sixth Precinct, who was shot yesterday morning in the course of duty.

Sergt. Thompson, Lewis and Browning rushed forward to disarm the colored man, who they learned later was blind. He is said to have put up a stiff fight, explaining later that he believed them to be burglars.

Baker, with his arm bleeding profusely, was taken to the hospital in the patrol wagon, and given first aid treatment by physicians there.

Lawson was then taken to the station. There he explained that he was awakened by some one trying to get into the house and when the policemen came bursting into the room shortly afterward he believed they were burglars.

He denied hearing the police identify themselves before entering the room, it was said.
